

CV Categories

Just like a resume, your CV should be split into categories that allow the reader to easily sort through all of the information. It is important that your CV be well organized to present a professional document. Below are some suggested categories and sub-categories that one can list on their CV. As CVs do not have a page limit ensure that you carefully consider each potential category and list any experience that would fit within it.

Education

Projects

Thesis

GPA

Presentations

Conferences

- Oral
- Poster

Guest Lectures

- Seminars
- Classes

Publications

Peer-reviewed

Non-peer reviewed

Submitted for publication

Book chapters

Books

Research Experience

Lab

Field

Teaching Skills

Teaching assistant/ marker positions

Instructor positions

CV Categories

Supervising Experience

Volunteers

Honours students

Co-op students

Recognition

Grants

Fellowships

Scholarships

Awards

Special Skills

Software

Instruments

Methods

Other

Professional affiliations/ memberships

Relevant work/volunteer experience

Professional Development

Research Interests In

What you want to work in

Relevant experience to your research interests

References