
CREDIT HOURS: 3
This course introduces first-year students to the principles and practices of historical research as they investigate the circumstances, facts and personalities of various historical figures against the backdrop of their period and society. The goal of the course is to engage students in historical debate, writing and group work at the university level, while helping them develop effective research and writing skills that will assist them throughout their university education.

FORMAT: Seminar

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

RESTRICTIONS: Restricted to students who have completed 60 credit hours or less. Students can take up to 6.0 credit hours in the Life Stories Seminar classes.