After completion of the Diploma program, students are eligible to be considered for admission to a graduate program in Atmospheric Science at Dalhousie.

Courses

Below you will find descriptions for courses offered in this field of study. You will find a general overview of the topics covered and any prerequisite course or grade requirements, credit value and exclusions.

The first digit of the course indicates the general level. Those in the 1000 series are introductory degree level. Courses at the 2000, 3000, 4000 series are available to students in the second, third, and fourth year. Courses numbered at the 5000 level or above are graduate level. Courses listed at the 0100 or 0200 series are technology level courses. Courses below the 0100 level are generally non credit courses.

Some courses are listed as exclusionary to one another. This means that students may not take both courses as designated.

Not all courses are offered each year. Please consult the current timetable for this year's offering. For further information please contact the department.

Course Descriptions

PHYC 0010 University Prep Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course can be used as a prerequisite for PHYC 1100X/Y.06 and PHYC 1300X/Y.06. The course will develop problem-solving techniques in preparation for topics to be covered in PHYC 1100X/Y.06 and PHYC 1300X/Y.06. This course is offered by the College of Continuing Education. Students may register and pay for this course at the College of Continuing Education located at 1220 LeMarchant Street, 2nd Floor or by calling (902) 494-2375. This course is offered in the Fall and Summer sessions only (see College of Continuing Education for more details <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>).

PREREQUISITE: Grade 12 Pre-Calculus Math

PHYC 1190 Introduction to Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course concentrates on mechanics (forces and motion). Primarily for students interested in Physical Sciences and Engineering. Students entering this course must be familiar with algebra, graphs, and trigonometry, and should be taking calculus (MATH 1000.03/1010.03 or MATH 1280.03/1290.03) concurrently. Ideas are introduced through in-class demonstrations enabling students to relate physical theory to events in the real world. Students explore many concepts via hands-on labs.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: High School Physics equivalent to the Nova Scotia 12 level. Students not having a physics credit equivalent to Nova Scotia Grade 12 Physics are strongly advised to take PHYC 0010.00 available in the summer and in the fall term. See the College of Continuing Education at: <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>.

EXCLUSIONS: Credit will be given for only one of 1190.03, 1280.03, or 1310.03

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course concentrates on oscillations and waves, optics, electricity and magnetism. Primarily for students interested in Physical Sciences and Engineering. This course is required for all Engineering programs. Students entering this course must be familiar with algebra, graphs, and trigonometry, and should be taking calculus (MATH 1000.03/1010.03 or MATH 1280.03/1290.03) concurrently. Ideas are introduced through in-class demonstrations enabling students to relate physical theory to events in the real world. Students explore many concepts via hands-on labs.

PREREQUISITE: High School Physics equivalent to the Nova Scotia 12 level. Students not having a physics credit equivalent to Nova Scotia Grade 12 Physics are strongly advised to take PHYC 0010.00 available in the summer and in the fall term. See the College of Continuing Education at: <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>.

EXCLUSIONS: Credit will be given for only one of 1190.03/1290.03, 1280.03/1290.03, 1300X/Y.06, or 1310.03/1320.03

PHYC 1300X/Y Physics In and Around You

CREDIT HOURS: 6

An introduction to physics for students in Biology, Psychology, Arts and Environmental Sciences, and for students preparing for MCAT, and Medicine, Dentistry and Applied Health Sciences. It is accepted as a prerequisite to advanced courses in physics when combined with MATH 1000.03 and 1010.03. Basic concepts in physics are applied, where possible, to realistic biological models, e.g. forces and torques are related to muscles and joints, electricity to cellular activity, fluids to blood circulation, etc. NOTES: 1. This course is not acceptable in the Engineering program. 2. Students taking this course must register in both X and Y in consecutive terms; credit will be given only if both are completed consecutively. 3. Labs do not start until the second week of classes.

NOTES: Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms and partial credit cannot be given for a single term.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: High School Physics equivalent to the Nova Scotia 12 level. Students not having a physics credit equivalent to Nova Scotia Grade 12 Physics are strongly advised to take PHYC 0010.00 available in the summer and in the fall term. See the College of Continuing Education at: <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>.

EXCLUSIONS: Credit will be given for only one of PHYC 1000X/Y.06, 1100X/Y.06, 1190.03/1290.03, 1280.03/1290.03, 1300X/Y.06, or 1310.03/1320.03

PHYC 1310 Physics in and Around You

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This half course along with PHYC 1320 are, as a pair, equivalent to PHYC 1300X/Y.06. They are available ONLY to accommodate special circumstances; permission from the Department is required for students not in Kinesiology. PHYC 1310.03 is strongly recommended for all first year Kinesiology students. PHYC 1320.03 is strongly recommended for Kinesiology students considering the Ergonomics stream. See the Health and Human Performance section of this calendar.

PREREQUISITE: High School Physics equivalent to Nova Scotia Grade 12 level is highly recommended. Students not having a physics credit equivalent to Nova Scotia Grade 12 Physics are strongly advised to take PHYC 0010.00 available in the summer and in the fall term. See the College of Continuing Education at: <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>.

EXCLUSIONS: Credit will be given for only one of PHYC 1000X/Y.06, 1100X/Y.06, 1190.03/1290.03, 1280.03/1290.03, 1300X/Y.06, or 1310.03/1320.03

PHYC 1320 Physics in and Around You

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This half course along with PHYC 1310 are, as a pair, equivalent to PHYC 1300X/Y.06. They are available ONLY to accommodate special circumstances; permission from the Department is required for students not in Kinesiology. PHYC 1310.03 is strongly recommended for all first year Kinesiology students. PHYC 1320.03 is strongly recommended for Kinesiology students considering the Ergonomics stream. See the Health and Human Performance section of this calendar.

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1310.03 or permission of the instructor.

PHYC 1450X/Y Astronomy: The Evolving Universe

CREDIT HOURS: 6

Both the universe and our understanding of it are evolving. Topics include naked "eye" astronomy, underlying laws of nature, the revolution in our understanding of the solar system (planets, moons, origin), and the recently discovered "other" planetary systems. We examine our advances in the study of stars, galaxies, and the universe at large. Finally, we introduce the weird and the wonderful - black holes, dark matter and dark energy.

NOTES: This course meets the science distribution requirements for BA students. The course does not count as a prerequisite for any other science course. Algebra and geometry are used only when helpful. Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

EXCLUSIONS: Not open to students taking or having taken PHYC 2450X/Y.06, or PHYC 2451.03 or PHYC 2452.03. BSc students should take PHYC 2451.03 and PHYC 2452.03 instead.

PHYC 1600 Understanding Weather

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The changing weather is a topic of almost universal interest. This course provides an introductory explanation for the basic processes that comprise the day to day weather changes in a non-mathematical way. Topics include weather maps and the wide range of atmospheric phenomena.

FORMAT: Lecture

PHYC 2140 Physics Tools: Theory

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The character of physical laws is most lucidly expressed in mathematical terms. The objective of this course is the acquisition of mathematical tools and gainful proficiency in their use. Topics will include complex numbers, partial derivatives, vector calculus, linear transformations and differential equations. Theorems and proofs will be kept to a minimum. Instead, lectures, homework and tutorials will be largely driven by example problems from a wide variety of physics fields. Text book: Boas, Mathematical Methods in the Physical Sciences.

FORMAT: Lecture| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or 1300X/Y.06 and a 1000 level calculus class or permission from the instructor.

PHYC 2150 Physics Tools: Experiment

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Introducing experimental tools and techniques within a theoretical framework, this course explores concepts in oscillations, waves, electricity and magnetism. The aim is to learn and apply techniques commonly used in Physics research. The following experimental tools and techniques are explored: Instrumentation; Fourier series; Data analysis; building AC and DC circuits; Detection and production of ultrasonic, acoustic, visible, microwaves; Mechanical systems. For example, the concept of resonance is applied to electronic (e.g. Radio), optical, acoustic (e.g. Music), mechanical and nuclear (e.g. MRI) systems in the lab. Textbook: An Introduction to Error Analysis, John R. Taylor.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 5

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or 1300X/Y.06 or SCIE 1500X/Y.30 and a 1000-level calculus course, or permission of instructor

PHYC 2250 Physics of Biological and Medical Technology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course focuses on the nature of different forms of radiation and their interactions with living organisms. Particular attention is given to imaging techniques for the examination of internal organs, and the resulting effects of radiation. Topics may include ultrasound, nuclear medicine, X-ray tomography, magnetic resonance imaging, and exposure to ultraviolet and nuclear radiation.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or 1300X/Y.06: MATH 1000.03/1010.03 or SCIE 1500X/Y.30, 1501X/Y.30, 1501X/Y.27, 1502X/Y.21 1503X/Y.21, 1504X/Y.27, or 1510X/Y.33 or permission of the instructor.

PHYC 2310 Energy and the Environment

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The physical principles and limitations of renewable energy source utilization and energy conversion. A quantitative introduction to energy conversion and storage systems, including solar power and heating, wind, tidal, geothermal, hydroelectric, nuclear power, hydrogen technology, electrical and mechanical energy storage. The input of these energy options on the global climate and environment will be discussed.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or PHYC 1300X/Y.06, MATH 1010.03, CHEM 1011.03 or permission of the instructor.

EXCLUSIONS: Students who have previously taken PHYC 3330 can not take PHYC 2310.

PHYC 2451 Astronomy I : The Sky and Planets

CREDIT HOURS: 3

An introduction to astronomy for science students. If you have ever marvelled at the beauty of the night sky and yearned to learn a little about how Science can help us understand it, then this course (and its companion PHYC 2452.03) is for you. After learning the fundamentals, (observation of the sky, gravitation, radiation and telescopes), we will study the Solar System, primarily the planets and their major satellites.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: A first year science course

PHYC 2452 Astronomy II: Stars and Beyond

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course is the second part of an introduction to astronomy for science students. This course builds on the knowledge gained in the first half of PHYC 2451.03 to study the nearest star (the sun) and develops this to explain the behaviour of objects outside the Solar System like stars, pulsars, quasars and black holes. Finally, galaxies and the Universe as a whole (cosmology) are studied with questions like, "will the universe expand forever - or will it collapse in the Big Crunch"? How do we know all of this and how well do we know it?

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2451.03 or permission of the instructor

PHYC 2510 Electricity and Magnetism

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The course will develop the vector calculus needed for the description of electric and magnetic fields. Other topics include scalar and vector potentials, forces on charges, magnetic induction and Maxwell's equations. The course will give students the necessary foundation for an understanding of more advanced topics in electricity and magnetism.

FORMAT: Lecture| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140.03, a multi-variable calculus course (MATH 2001.03/2002.03, which can be taken concurrently), or permission of the instructor

PHYC 2515 Modern Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces two physics revolutions: Einstein's theory of special relativity and the theory of quantum mechanics. Important early experiments are considered throughout the course. We consider length contraction, time dilation, and relativistic kinematics. Then, to account for wave-like properties of matter, we introduce complex wave functions in one-dimension and show how they lead to energy quantization, Schrodinger's equation, and penetration into classically forbidden regions. Other topics of modern physics, such as random walks (transport theory) may be introduced. A tutorial is offered.

FORMAT: Lecture| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or PHYC 1300.06 or SCIE 1500.03, and a 1000 level calculus course

PHYC 2610 Introduction to Biomechanics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course provides an introduction to mechanical and analytical concepts applied to the study of biological systems, particularly human movements and tissues. It expands on the knowledge acquired in PHYC 1310, the mechanics as it applies to the human body. It deals with the muscle forces required for the different tasks, the role of the centre of mass in balance and motion and the stresses and strains endured by the different biological tissues. The primary goal of the course is to learn to apply basic mechanical concepts to human movements.

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1300.06 or PHYC 1310.03 or PHYC 1190.03 or permission of the instructor

EXCLUSIONS: KINE 2465.03

PHYC 2800 Climate Change

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The workings of the Earth's climate system are examined and then applied to help understand contemporary climate change. The role of numerical climate models is discussed with the aim of interpreting climate change predictions for the coming decades. Finally the impacts of climate change are studied with a focus on the various mitigation and adaptation strategies needed.

CROSS-LISTING: GEOG 2800.03, OCEA 2800.03

EXCLUSIONS: ECON2850.06, PHYC2850.06

PHYC 2850 The Science and Economics of Climate Change

CREDIT HOURS: 6

This course examines how climate change will impact the environment and human activities, and how to formulate and implement economically realistic solutions. It integrates the physical and biological science with economics in order to analyze the response options as we move towards a carbon-neutral society.

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: Any first year science or math course or permission of the instructor.

CROSS-LISTING: ECON 2850

EXCLUSIONS: PHYC 2800, ECON 2216

PHYC 3000 Experimental Physics I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces students to electronics and measuring techniques. Topics include digital electronics: logic gates, clocks, shift registers, counters, memory; analog electronics; R.C.L. circuits, operational amplifiers; electronic systems: A/D and D/A chips, computer chips, and displays. The course also introduces students to modern data acquisition methods (including LabVIEW), skills which will be applied in the design and execution of experiments that illustrate fundamental concepts in physics.

This course is open to Honours students only.

NOTES: This course has no final examination. Student evaluation is through performance on assignments and projects, and evaluation of written lab reports.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 6

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2150.03 and PHYC 2515.03, or permission of the instructor.

PHYC 3010 Experimental Physics II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Designed to give the students a chance to do non-set experiments and thereby encounter and solve the problems of experimentation. Original approaches by the students are encouraged. As the number of experiments is small (three) students should achieve a real understanding of a few physical phenomena. Lecture topics include data analysis as encountered in the different areas of physics.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 6

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3000.03 with a minimum grade of B, or permission of the instructor

PHYC 3050 Introduction to Numerical Programming

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course explores computer programming for numerical computation. It introduces a modern programming language and it uses it to model simple physical systems (for example, projectile motion with realistic drag). Techniques are introduced to solve the governing equations. An important aspect is the interpretation of modelled results and comparison with experiment.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or equivalent, or MATH 1010.03 or equivalent

PHYC 3180 Contemporary Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course covers a variety of topics related to areas of current interest in physics. Presently, topics include high temperature superconductivity, quantum hall effect, neutrino oscillations, gravitational radiation and fusion reactors.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: MATH 2001.03 and at least one of PHYC 2515.03 or PHYC 2150.03 or permission of the instructor

PHYC 3200 Thermodynamics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

An introduction to the basic concepts and laws of thermodynamics. There will be a short survey of required Mathematics (partial derivatives). Topics include: thermometry, equations of state, energy and entropy, thermodynamic potentials, heat engines, thermodynamic efficiency and phase transitions.

FORMAT: Lecture| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140.03, MATH 2001.03/2002.03, or permission of the instructor.

PHYC 3210 Statistical Mechanics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Using statistical entropy, we will explore how macroscopic thermodynamic behavior emerges from microscopic models. We will consider the microcanonical, canonical, and the grand canonical statistical ensembles. We will examine two-state systems as well as non-interacting Fermionic and Bosonic systems. Finally, we will learn about deceptively simple interacting systems such as the Ising model.

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3200.03 or equivalent; MATH 2001.03/2002.03

PHYC 3250 Computational Methods in Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The objective of this course is to teach students the use of computers in physical analysis. The UNIX operating system will be introduced and used throughout the course. A modern programming language will be applied to a selection of problems drawn from physical theory and experiment. This is a hands-on, practical, and interactive class with an emphasis on the development of computational skills that scientists use.

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or equivalent, MATH 1010.03 or equivalent, PHYC 3050.03 or equivalent

PHYC 3303 Materials Science

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The emphasis is on the principles involved in understanding physical properties of materials, such as thermal and mechanical stability, and electrical and optical properties. All phases of matter are examined: gases, liquids, films, liquid crystals, perfect crystals, defective solids, glasses. Important processes such as photography and Xerography are explained.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: CHEM 2301.03 or PHYC 3200.03 (which may be taken concurrently) or EARTH 2001.03/2002.03 or ENGI 2800.03 or permission of the instructor

CROSS-LISTING: CHEM 3305.03

PHYC 3340 Electronics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Topics include digital electronics: logic gates, clocks, shift registers, counters, memory; analog electronics: R.C.L. circuits, operational amplifiers; electronic systems: A/D and D/A chips, computer chips, and displays.

NOTES: Credit cannot be given for both PHYC 3000.03 and PHYC 3340.03

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2150.03; or ENGI 2001.03

PHYC 3640 Quantum Physics I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces the formal structure of quantum mechanics as well as quantum mechanical calculations. The emphasis is on problem solving. The course starts with quantum measurement, then considers particles in a box and the quantum harmonic oscillator. The course starts with one-dimensional quantum mechanics and ends with higher dimensional problems. The course introduces quantum mechanical operators, time-evolution, quantum angular momentum, and the solution of the hydrogen atom.

PREREQUISITE: MATH 2002.03, MATH 2030.03, PHYC 2515.03 and PHYC 2140.03

PHYC 3810 Microcomputers and the Real World

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Subject material: measurement theory, modern sensors, microcomputer architecture, and software simulation of digital electronic circuits. Interfacing techniques including serial, parallel USB and GPIB ports. The graphical programming language is used throughout.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2150.03, PHYC 3340.03
CROSS-LISTING: CSCI 3122.03

PHYC 3900 Introduction to Soft Condensed Matter Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The aim of this course is to provide an introduction to some concepts used in soft condensed matter physics through the study of three systems, polymers, colloids and liquid crystals. The course will be divided in four modules: I) Brownian dynamics and diffusion II) Polymers shape, molecular mass distribution, osmotic pressure, gel, entropic elasticity III) Colloids: van der Waals and electrostatic interactions, Hamaker constant, DLVO theory, polymer layers (brushes), gel electrophoresis IV) Liquid crystals: order parameter, optical properties of nematics (birefringence), phase transitions, LCD

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: MATH 2001.03, 2002.03: Intermediate Calculus I and II

PHYC 4098 The Physical Cosmology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The course is intended to provide a sound physical foundation to modern cosmology and the formation and evolution of the Universe. The course introduces the principles of geometrical and astrophysical cosmology and emphasizes the direct confrontation of observational data with contemporary theories.

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2515, PHYC 2140, or permission of instructor

PHYC 4099 Stellar Structure and Evolution

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces concepts in stellar astronomy, building an understanding of stellar physics to probe the evolution of stars. Topics covered include stellar timescales, energy generation, and derivation of equations of stellar structure, evolution of stars from the pre-main sequence, through the main sequence hydrogen burning, and beyond.

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2515, PHYC 2140, or permission of instructor

PHYC 4100 Electrodynamics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course first introduces Maxwell's equations, then conservation laws, propagation of electromagnetic waves in various media, radiation, potential and fields.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2510.03

PHYC 4151 Quantum Physics II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course is a continuation of PHYC 3640.03. Topics include: the spin-1/2 problem, quantum dynamics, entanglement and the EPR Paradox, perturbation theory, identical particles, and the quantised radiation field.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3640.03

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5151.03

PHYC 4160 Mathematical Methods of Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Topics discussed include: complex variable theory, Fourier and Laplace transform techniques, special functions, partial differential equations.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: MATH 3120.03, PHYC 2140.03 or permission of instructor.

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5160.03, MATH 5165.03

PHYC 4180 Nuclear and Particle Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This is an introductory course in nuclear physics. Topics discussed include: nucleon-nucleon interactions, nuclear structure, gamma transitions, alpha decay, beta decay, nuclear reactions and elementary particle physics, with applications to the interior of stars and the earlier universe.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3640.03

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5180.03

PHYC 4230 Introduction to Condensed Matter

CREDIT HOURS: 3

An introduction to the basic concepts of solid state physics which are related to the periodic nature of the crystalline lattice. Topics include crystal structure, X-ray diffraction, phonons and lattice vibrations, the free electron theory of metals, energy bands, magnetism and superconductivity.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3640.03 and 3210.03 which may be taken concurrently, or permission of instructor

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5230.03

PHYC 4311 Fluid Dynamics I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

An introduction to the theory of fluid dynamics with some emphasis on geophysically important aspects. Contents: tensor mathematics, flow kinematics, equations of motion, viscous flow, potential flow, convection, turbulence, and basic aerodynamics.

FORMAT: Lecture
LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3
PREREQUISITE: Subject to instructor approval
CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5311.02, OCEA 4311.03/5311.01

PHYC 4411 Atmospheric Dynamics I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The basic laws of fluid dynamics are applied to studies of atmospheric motion, including the atmospheric boundary layer and synoptic scale weather disturbances (the familiar highs and lows on weather maps). Emphasis will be placed on the blend of mathematical theory and physical reasoning which leads to the best understanding of the dominant physical mechanisms.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140.03 or permission of the instructor

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5411.03, OCEA 4411.03/5411.03.

PHYC 4412 Atmospheric Dynamics II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The approach is the same as for PHYC 4411.03, with emphasis on synoptic-scale wave phenomena, frontal motions and the global circulation. Additional topics including tropical meteorology, middle atmospheric dynamics, severe storms, mesoscale meteorology and numerical weather prediction may be included.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 4411.03 or permission of the instructor.

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5412.03, OCEA 4412.03/5412.03

PHYC 4460 Advanced Optics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This class covers a selection of topics in advanced optics, that may include: a quantum treatment of light-matter interactions, strong field effects, quantum optics, nonlinear optics, optical resonators, laser physics, laser dynamics, and photonic devices.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3540.03 and PHYC 3640.03

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5460.03

PHYC 4505 Atmospheric Physics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Moist thermodynamics is applied to a variety of atmospheric phenomena. These include aerosols, cloud droplets, precipitation formation, convection, supercells, hurricanes, lightning, and the boundary layer. We also discuss the radar equation and the interpretation of radar images.

FORMAT: Lecture

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140 and PHYC 4520, or permission of the instructor

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5505, OCEA 4505/5505

PHYC 4520 Introduction to Atmospheric Science

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The general overview of the atmosphere provides the student with an understanding of the composition and thermal structure of the atmosphere, air mass and frontal theory and weather generating physical processes and their consequences. Other topics include atmospheric radiation, dynamic meteorology, climatology and the physics of clouds and storms.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140.03 or permission of instructor

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5520.03, OCEA 4520.03/5520.03

PHYC 4540 Synoptic Meteorology I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces the practical skills of meteorological observation and analysis. Emphasis is on developing skills in drawing and interpreting weather maps, and on studying the three-dimensional structure of weather systems. Satellite and radar remote sensing of the atmosphere is also introduced. Case studies of atmospheric systems and processes are carried out during the tutorial-laboratory period.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

COREQUISITE: PHYC 4411.03

PREREQUISITE: At least one third-year physics course

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5540.03, OCEA 4541.03/5541.03

PHYC 4550 Synoptic Meteorology II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course extends the analysis and diagnosis of atmospheric dynamics and weather processes introduced in PHYC 4540.03. Emphasis is on the practical application of meteorological theory, particularly in the area of diagnosing the cases of weather events. Modern computer and statistical methods are discussed, and students receive an introduction to weather forecasting.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab| Tutorial

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 4540.03

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5550.03, OCEA 4550.03/5550.03

PHYC 4570 Light Scattering, Radiative Transfer, and Remote Sensing

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The equations of radiative transfer through the atmosphere will be developed and used. Special topics include transfer of infrared radiation. Mie scattering, absorption by atmospheric gases and aerosols, transfer through clear and cloudy atmospheres. Also remote sensing techniques and radiative transfer models are covered.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 2140.03, PHYC 2510.03

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5570.03, OCEA 5570.03

PHYC 4595 Atmospheric Chemistry

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A fundamental introduction to the physical and chemical processes determining the composition of the atmosphere and its implications for climate, ecosystems, and human welfare. Origin of the atmosphere. Nitrogen, oxygen, carbon, sulfur cycles. Climate and the greenhouse effect. Atmospheric transport and turbulence. Stratospheric ozone. Oxidizing power of the atmosphere. Regional air pollution: aerosols, smog, acid rain.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: MATH 1000, PHYC 1190.03/1290.03 or PHYC 1300 and CHEM 1011/1012

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5595.03, CHEM 4595.03, OCEA 4595.03/5595.03

PHYC 4650 General Relativity

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A review of differential geometry will be given followed by an introduction to the general theory of relativity. Various topics will be discussed, including: linearized theory and gravitational radiation, spherically symmetric metrics and the Schwarzschild solution, gravitational collapse, black holes, and cosmology.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: MATH 3045.03 or permission of the instructor

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5650.03, MATH 4650.03/5650.03

PHYC 4660 Cosmology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A self-contained introduction to cosmology will be given and no prior knowledge of differential geometry or general relativity will be assumed (although some knowledge of elementary differential equations will be useful). A cosmological model is a model of the universe, as a whole, on the largest scales; the emphasis of the course will be on the modeling aspects of cosmology.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: Instructor's permission

CROSS-LISTING: PHYC 5660.03, MATH 4410.03/5410.03

PHYC 4800X/Y Honours Research Project I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Students in the honours stream in Physics and Atmospheric Science will do a research project under the direction of a faculty member. A research plan, interim progress reports and a formal final report are required. The final grade will be based on an evaluation of the reports and an oral presentation. Students in the major stream can apply to the department to take this course.

COORDINATOR: H. Rotermund

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 3010 and permission of the coordinator and supervisor.

PHYC 4850 Honours Research Project II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Students in the honors stream will do a second research project or continue the project started in PHYC 4800 under the direction of a faculty member. A research plan, interim progress reports and a formal, final report are required. The final grade will be based on an evaluation of the reports and an oral presentation.

COORDINATOR: H. Rotermund

PREREQUISITE: PHYC 4800 and permission of the coordinator and supervisor.

PHYC 8891 Co-op Work-Term I

Introduction

Psychology is an experimental science: Its purpose is to discover the conditions which control the activities of animals and people, to measure these conditions and the responses they produce, and to use this knowledge to invent ways of predicting behaviour and changing it. It is a subject for inventive but also scientifically rigorous people, better suited to those who want to find out for themselves than to those who want to be told what to believe.

Psychology at Dalhousie treats behaviour as a natural phenomenon, and in that sense shares much with the other life sciences. Today, for example, the boundaries that have historically separated psychology from zoology, physiology, or even cellular biology have begun to blur. On the other hand, important ties are being made to such disciplines as anthropology, sociology, and philosophy. The student will find that the diverse subject matter includes three major levels of analysis: the organism, the organism's biological machinery, and the broader social-environmental context in which particular behaviour patterns are expressed. Meaningful integration of these diverse levels and forms of analysis is an intellectual challenge of major proportions. Similarly, the time perspectives of immediate causation, development, evolution, and function all contribute to the modern approach to behavioural science and each must be evaluated in relation to the others.

A. Enrolment Limitations

Psychology is a popular program, and we have a high enrolment of students. Potential Major and Honours students, and those intending to enrol in the 90 credit hour BA or BSc Minor program in Psychology should note that there are limitations on the number of students that can be accepted into these programs in any given year. Passing introductory psychology courses with the required grade of B- and declaring an intent to Major in Psychology does not guarantee a place in any of these programs. Students are advised to register as early as possible for required courses to secure a space within a program.

There are strict size restrictions on individual courses. Lecture courses are limited by room size. Enrolment in laboratory courses is further restricted because of equipment limitations and requirements for supervision. All Major and Honours students, and those enrolled in a 90 credit hour program, should take the 2000 level prerequisites for at least two 3000 level laboratory courses. Laboratory courses fill rapidly, and not all laboratory courses are offered every year.

B. Enrolment of Other Students

Only Major and Honours students in Psychology may enrol in PSYO 2000.03, PSYO 2470.03 or PSYO 2770.03, and PSYO 2501.03, and such students are given preference in other second-year courses. All students must have at least a B- in both terms of the introductory psychology courses, or a B- in the psychology component of the Integrated Science Program, to be permitted to register in any second-year course in Psychology.

C. Laboratories

Psychology laboratories are of two types. In research-type laboratories, students collect data and write reports on the results of their research. All Major and Honours students must take the second-year research laboratory course (PSYO 2000.03) and at least one third-year research laboratory course (six credit hours for Honours students). Other courses may have a proficiency or skills laboratory, which often involves computer exercises or other additional work related to the lecture material and course readings.

Degree Programs

The Department of Psychology and Neuroscience offers the following degree programs in Psychology:

- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Honours (Concentrated)*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Combined Honours*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Major*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Double Major*
- BSc or BA (90 credit hour) Minor in Psychology
- Minor in Psychology

* May be combined with Minor programs from other disciplines.

Departmental requirements for each degree program can be seen by following the links in the menu to the right.

In addition to departmental requirements, students must satisfy the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and the College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees.

A student is governed by the academic regulations in place at the time of initial enrolment, as long as the degree is completed within the time permitted (10 years). Subsequent changes in regulations shall apply only if the student so elects. Students applying the old academic regulations should consult the calendar of the appropriate year.

Students should plan their programs of study carefully and are strongly encouraged to do so in consultation with a Psychology undergraduate academic advisor.

A detailed description of the Psychology programs is available in a pamphlet titled "A Student's Guide to Psychology Classes". The pamphlet is available from the Psychology and Neuroscience Main Office (Life Sciences Centre, Room 3263) and online from the Department's website (www.dal.ca/psychandneuro).

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Concentrated Honours in Psychology

Students who want a challenging program resulting in a broad background in Psychology, and that includes an independent research experience, may want to enroll in an Honours program. Students interested in eventually pursuing graduate studies are particularly encouraged to consider Honours. Honours students complete a minimum of 54 credit hours above the 1000 level in Psychology with a minimum GPA of 3.0 and write a research-based Honours thesis. The Honours thesis and Qualifying Examination requirements are satisfied through completion of PSYO 4500.06.

Admission to Honours

Students must apply for admission to Honours programs. Students wishing to enrol in Honours in Psychology should consult with an Honours Advisor. Students may not apply for Honours before January of their third year of studies. A detailed description of the Honours application process can be found on the departmental website www.dal.ca/psychandneuro. Admission requirements include:

- A grade of B or better in PSYO 2000.03
 - A minimum of A- or better in the most recently completed:
 - 18 credit hours of PSYO courses (for admission January of 3rd year)
- OR

- 27 credit hours of PSYO courses (for admission at end of 3rd year)

Departmental requirements

All students must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees. In addition, students in a Concentrated Honours program in Psychology must complete the following:

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours)
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18).

2000 level

- PSYO 2000.03: Methods in Experimental Psychology (with grade of B or better)
- PSYO 2501.03: Statistical Methods I (or STAT 2080.03)
- PSYO 2470.03: Systems Neuroscience or PSYO 2770.03: Brain and Behaviour
- Three courses selected from:
 - PSYO 2080.03: Social Psychology
 - PSYO 2090.03: Developmental Psychology
 - PSYO 2130.03: Introduction to Cognitive Psychology
 - PSYO 2140.03: Learning
 - PSYO 2150.03: Perceptual Processes
 - PSYO 2160.03: Animal Behaviour
 - PSYO 2220.03: Abnormal Behaviour
 - PSYO 2570.03: Cellular Neuroscience

Care should be taken in selecting second-year courses to ensure they provide the necessary prerequisites for courses intended to be taken in third and fourth years of study.

3000 level

- PSYO 3502.03: Statistical Methods II
- A minimum of 15 credit hours selected from courses in Categories A and B, of which
 - At least 6 credit hours must come from each category and
 - A minimum of 6 credit hours must be designated LAB courses

Students are encouraged to also take PSYO 3000.06 or PSYO 3001.03 as preparation for their thesis work in fourth year.

- PSYO 4500.06: Honours Thesis
- Six credit hours of 4000-level seminar courses
- Six additional credit hours of 3000- or 4000-level courses

Other regulations

- Students in the Honours program should find a thesis supervisor, and begin the preparation for their Honours research (reading, learning laboratory methodology, submitting ethics forms) no later than the summer preceding their thesis year.
- Students in a Psychology Honours program cannot use cross-listed Neuroscience courses as electives.
- Laboratory courses focusing on human psychology typically require students to serve as participants and/or as experimenters in course projects. Students who do not wish to participate in such projects should ensure that they have the prerequisites necessary to register in alternative laboratory courses.

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Combined Honours in Psychology and another subject

Students who wish to study Psychology in conjunction with another subject may wish to pursue a Combined Honours degree program. The other subject may be from any discipline in the Faculty of Science (other than Neuroscience), the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the Faculty of Computer Science, or the College of Sustainability. Psychology may be the primary subject (with a minimum of 45 credit hours beyond the 1000 level), or the secondary subject (30 credit hours).

Students planning to enroll in a Combined Honours program should consult with academic advisors from both programs early in their studies. Students must have their program of study approved by Academic Advisors in both subject areas. Students complete an Honours Qualifying Examination in one of the two subject areas, a requirement normally completed in the primary subject area. For Psychology, this requirement is satisfied through PSYO 4500.06.

Departmental requirements

All students must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees. In addition, students in a Combined Honours program in Psychology and another subject must complete the following:

Psychology as the primary subject

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours):
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18)

2000 level

- PSYO 2000.03: Methods in Experimental Psychology (with grade of B or better)
- PSYO 2501.03: Statistical Methods I (or STAT 2080.03)
- PSYO 2470.03: Systems Neuroscience or PSYO 2770.03: Brain and Behaviour
- An additional 9 credit hours at the 2000 level

3000 level

- PSYO 3502.03: Statistical Methods II
- Six credit hours in 3000 level LAB courses
- An additional six credit hours in 3000 level PSYO courses

The above selection must include a minimum of three credit hours from each of Categories A and B.

- PSYO 4500.06: Honours Thesis
- Six credit hours of 4000-level seminar courses

Psychology as the secondary subject

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours):
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18)

2000 level

- PSYO 2000.03: Methods in Experimental Psychology (with grade of B or better)
- PSYO 2501.03: Statistical Methods I (or STAT 2080.03)
- PSYO 2470.03: Systems Neuroscience or PSYO 2770.03: Brain and Behaviour
- An additional 9 credit hours at the 2000 level

3000/4000 level

- A minimum of 12 credit hours at or above the 3000 level

The above selection must include a minimum of 3 credit hours from each of Categories A and B, and 3 credit hours of a laboratory (LAB) course.

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Major in Psychology

The 120 credit hour Major is suited to students who want to focus on Psychology, but wish to have a program that is somewhat less constrained than the Honours program. Psychology Majors complete a minimum of 42 credit hours in Psychology courses above the 1000 level. Research and other experiential learning opportunities are available through laboratories and research project classes.

Students should plan carefully and, if required, obtain advice from an academic advisor. Advisors can be consulted by contacting the Psychology and Neuroscience Main Office (Life Sciences Centre, Room 3263 or 902 494-3417).

Departmental requirements

All students must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections of this calendar. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees. In addition, students in a Major program in Psychology must complete the following courses:

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours):
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18)

2000 level

- PSYO 2000.03: Methods in Experimental Psychology
- PSYO 2501.03: Statistical Methods I (or STAT 2080.03)
- PSYO 2470.03: Systems Neuroscience or PSYO 2770.03: Brain and Behaviour
- Three courses selected from:
 - PSYO 2080.03: Social Psychology
 - PSYO 2090.03: Developmental Psychology
 - PSYO 2130.03: Introduction to Cognitive Psychology
 - PSYO 2140.03: Learning
 - PSYO 2150.03: Perceptual Processes
 - PSYO 2160.03: Animal Behaviour
 - PSYO 2220.03: Abnormal Behaviour
 - PSYO 2570.03: Cellular Neuroscience

Care should be taken in selecting second-year courses to ensure they provide the necessary prerequisites for courses intended to be taken in third and fourth years of study.

3000 level

- A minimum of 24 credit hours at or above the 3000 level, which must include
- A minimum of six credit hours from each of Categories A and B. Courses in Category C are intended for students planning to enter the Honours program.

- A minimum of three credit hours of a laboratory (LAB) course

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Double Major in Psychology and another subject

The Double Major degree program allows students to combine a study of Psychology with another subject. The other subject may be from any discipline in the Faculty of Science, the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the Faculty of Computer Science or the College of Sustainability. A Double Major in Psychology requires 30 credit hours beyond the 1000 level. Psychology may be the primary subject (defined as the subject with the larger number of credits), or the secondary subject. If the primary subject area is from the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the degree granted will be a BA.

Students enrolled in a Double Major program must have their program of study approved by advisors in both subject areas.

Departmental requirements

All students must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees. In addition, students in a Double Major program in Psychology and another subject must complete the following:

Psychology as the primary or secondary subject

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours):
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18)

2000 level

- PSYO 2000.03: Methods in Experimental Psychology
- PSYO 2501.03: Statistical Methods I (or STAT 2080.03)
- PSYO 2470.03: Systems Neuroscience or PSYO 2770.03: Brain and Behaviour
- Three additional second-year courses

3000 level

- A minimum of 12 credit hours at or above the 3000 level

The above selection must include a minimum of three credit hours from each of Categories A and B, and three credit hours of a laboratory (LAB) course. Courses in Category C are intended for students planning to enter the Honours program.

BSc or BA (90 credit hour) Minor in Psychology

The 90 credit hour degree with a Minor in Psychology is appropriate for students who want to study some Psychology but do not wish to complete the conventional four-year program. The degree is best suited for students who want a general Science degree with some specialization in Psychology. A 90 credit hour degree program is not suitable for students who wish to pursue graduate studies. With additional study, the degree may be upgraded to a 120 credit hour Major or Honours degree at a later date.

A 90 credit hour BSc or BA in Psychology is usually the preferred option for students who wish to combine studies in Psychology with a degree in Engineering (see BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program below).

See the Minor in Psychology section of this Calendar.

Minor in Psychology

This Minor is available to non-Neuroscience/Psychology students registered in a 120 credit hour Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Commerce, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Computer Science, Bachelor of Informatics or Bachelor of Management program.

A BSc or BA (90 credit hour) degree program with a Minor in Psychology is also available.

Requirements

- A minimum of 18 to a maximum of 36 credit hours in Psychology courses at the 2000 level or higher, other than PSYO 2000.03 and PSYO 2501.03, which are restricted to students in a Major/Honours program

Please note that entry into upper level Psychology (PSYO) courses requires completion of six credit hours with a minimum grade of B- at the first year level (PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03), or Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1505.18 or SCIE 1515.36 or SCIE 1520.30 or SCIE 1540.27), or equivalent.

Co-op, Minors, Certificates and Engineering Concurrent Programs for Students Minors available to students in Psychology

Minor programs allow students to develop subject specialities in addition to their Major or Honours subjects. Minors in other subjects are normally added to 120 credit hour BSc or BA programs (including Science Co-op).

Students in a BSc or BA (120 credit hour) program in Psychology may choose to include a Minor selected from the list of approved Minors. Courses counted toward a Major or Honours subject cannot be used to fulfill the requirements of a Minor program.

Certificates

In combination with a BSc or BA in Psychology, students may obtain one or more Certificates. A Certificate indicates that a student has achieved a certain level of proficiency in a given area or subspecialty. Courses counted toward a Major, Honours or Minor subject may also be used to fulfill the requirements of a Certificate. Students must apply to the Certificate Coordinator to be considered for a Certificate. Certificates are awarded upon graduation and are noted on the student's academic transcript.

A complete list of Faculty of Science Certificates and requirements can be found at the beginning of the Faculty of Science section. Students may also work toward obtaining Certificates offered by other Faculties; some of these are listed in the College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements section.

Certificates of particular interest to student enrolled in a BSc or BA in Psychology include:

- Certificate in Animal Behaviour (Biology, Psychology)
- Certificate in Science Leadership and Communication

BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program

Students interested in combining their interest in Psychology with a degree in Engineering may choose a BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program, normally completed in a 5 year period. Over the first three years, students complete the requirements for a 90 credit hour BSc or BA degree in Psychology and a Diploma of Engineering (the first two years of engineering studies). Two more years of engineering studies are then required to obtain a BEng. Interested students should see an undergraduate advisor from Psychology and from the Faculty of Engineering in their first year of study.

Required Psychology courses for a BSc/BEng or BA/BEng program in Psychology

1000 level

- Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I and II (six credit hours):
- PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 (with grade of B- or better)
- Or a B- in the Psychology component of the Integrated Science Program (SCIE 1515.36, SCIE 1520.30, SCIE 1540.27 or SCIE 1505.18).
- A minimum of 18 credit hours in Psychology courses at the 2000 level or higher, other than PSYO 2000.03 and PSYO 2501.03, which are restricted to students in the Major and Honours programs

Courses

Below you will find descriptions for courses offered in this field of study. You will find a general overview of the topics covered and any prerequisite course or grade requirements, credit value and exclusions.

The first digit of the course indicates the general level. Those in the 1000 series are introductory degree level. Courses at the 2000, 3000, 4000 series are available to students in the second, third, and fourth year. Courses numbered at the 5000 level or above are graduate level. Courses listed at the 0100 or 0200 series are technology level courses. Courses below the 0100 level are generally non credit courses.

Some courses are listed as exclusionary to one another. This means that students may not take both courses as designated.

Not all courses are offered each year. Please consult the current timetable for this year's offering. For further information please contact the department.

Course Notes

In 2006/2007, the six credit hour Introduction to Psychology courses were divided into two three credit hour courses. PSYO 1000X/Y.06 became PSYO 1021.03 and PSYO 1022.03, and PSYO 1001X/Y.06 became PSYO 1011.03 and PSYO 1012.03. If a course now requires PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03 as prerequisites, this requirement may also be met by either PSYO 1000.06 or PSYO 1001.06.

Psychology Course Categories

All students enrolled in a Psychology Major or Honours program must take a selection of courses from each of Categories A and B, and must include one or more designated laboratory (LAB) courses in their programs. Category C courses are intended for Honours students. See Degree Programs (above) for minimum number of required credit hours in each.

Category A. Brain, Language, Learning, and Cognition

- PSYO 3043.03: Neurobiology of Learning
- PSYO 3044.03: Lab Methods of Learning and Conditioning (LAB)
- PSYO 3051.03: Sensory Neuroscience I. Vision (LAB)
- PSYO 3052.03: Sensory Neuroscience II. Hearing and Speech
- PSYO 3084.03: Social Cognition
- PSYO 3131.03: Research Methods in Attention (LAB)
- PSYO 3132.03: Research Methods in Visual Cognition (LAB)
- PSYO 3133.03: Research Methods in Memory (LAB)
- PSYO 3134.03: Research Methods in Psycholinguistics (LAB)
- PSYO 3137.03: Research Methods in Cognitive Neuroscience (LAB)
- PSYO 3161.03: Measuring Behaviour (LAB)
- PSYO 3162.03: Advanced Animal Behaviour
- PSYO 3165.03: Neuroethology (LAB)
- PSYO 3170.03: Hormones and Behaviour
- PSYO 3180.03: Psychoneuroimmunology/Ecological Immunology
- PSYO 3190.03: Psycholinguistics
- PSYO 3227.03: Principles of Human Neuropsychology
- PSYO 3237.03: Drugs and Behaviour
- PSYO 3260.03: Biological Rhythms
- PSYO 3264.03: The Science of Sleep
- PSYO 3270.03: Developmental Neuroscience
- PSYO 3370.03: Neuroscience Laboratory I (LAB)
- PSYO 3371.03: Neuroscience Laboratory II (LAB)
- PSYO 3670.03: Genes, Brain and Behaviour
- PSYO 3770.03: Behavioural Neuroscience
- PSYO 3775.03: Behavioural Neuroscience Laboratory (LAB)
- PSYO 3790.03: Neurolinguistics
- PSYO 3970.03: Molecular Neuroscience

Category B. Clinical, Developmental, History, Personality, and Overviews of Psychology

- PSYO 3010.06: Advanced General Psychology
- PSYO 3030.03: Psychometrics (LAB)
- PSYO 3082.03: Experimental Social Psychology (LAB)
- PSYO 3091.03: Methods in Developmental Psychology (LAB)
- PSYO 3092.03: Early Development
- PSYO 3093.03: Development of Language and Literacy Abilities
- PSYO 3122.03: Methods in Experimental Clinical Psychology (LAB)
- PSYO 3129.03: Childhood Psychopathology
- PSYO 3220.03: Clinical Psychology
- PSYO 3224.03: Forensic Psychology
- PSYO 3225.03: Health Psychology
- PSYO 3280.03: Personality
- PSYO 3390.03: Cognitive Development
- PSYO 3581.03: History of Psychology I
- PSYO 3582.03: History of Psychology II

Category C. Directed Research Courses for Potential Honours Students

- PSYO 3000.06: Independent Research in Modern Psychology
- PSYO 3001.03: Directed Project in Psychology
- PSYO 4500.06: Honours Thesis

4000-Level Seminars

These seminars are intended for fourth-year Honours students. Third-year Honours students are eligible provided they obtain permission from the instructor, and the needs of all the fourth-year Honours students have been met. The topics covered in these courses vary from year to year. Go to the departmental website (www.dal.ca/psychandneuro) for more detail about the topics to be covered in the current academic year.

Course Descriptions

PSYO 1011 Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I: From Neuron to Person

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Material covered includes historical background, research methodology, neural mechanisms that underlie behaviour, sensory and perceptual processes, states of consciousness, learning, and memory. The course is taught by several different instructors with expertise in the topics covered. Biweekly labs add depth to the material covered in lectures.

NOTES: To enrol in 2000-level Psychology courses, a grade of B- is required in PSYO 1011.02 or PSYO 1021.03 or 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03.

PSYO 1031 Introduction to Psychology and Neuroscience I: From Neuron to Person

CREDIT HOURS: 3

PSYO 1031 is the online distance education equivalent of PSYO 1011. Material covered includes historical background, research methodology, neural mechanisms that underlie behaviour, sensory and perceptual processes, states of consciousness, learning, and memory. Recorded lectures, lab activities and write-ups, quizzes, and class discussions will be delivered through BbLearn.

NOTES: To enrol in 2000-level Psychology courses, a grade of B- is required in PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 OR PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03.

PSYO 2000 Methods in Experimental Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The course provides a thorough grounding in scientific research methods used by psychologists. Lectures explore analytic procedures commonly employed to investigate human and animal behaviour. Students conduct and analyze in written reports a series of experiments in the laboratory to illustrate important concepts discussed in class.

NOTES: Restricted to students registered in Psychology Major or Honours programs. Students should endeavor to take PSYO 2501.03, Statistical Methods I, or STAT 2080.03 concurrently with PSYO 2000.03. Students must attend the first lecture session.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

EXCLUSIONS: NESC 2007.03

PSYO 2080 Social Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The course undertakes a critical analysis of social theory and research promoting a close and skeptical evaluation of our knowledge, our obedience and rebellion, our affections and hostilities, our willingness to help and injure, our attempts to explain ourselves and others, our erotic orientations, and our gender roles.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

PSYO 2090 Developmental Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

People change with age. This course examines the changes that occur in humans from conception through adolescence. Biological, social, cognitive, and linguistic aspects of development are considered. Theory, research, and practical implications are integrated throughout the course.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, 1520X/Y.30 or 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

PSYO 2130 Introduction to Cognitive Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Lectures focus on the processes involved in transforming sensory information into the meaningful everyday world that we know. Initially, emphasis is on the visual system, and how information within that system is structured and organized, followed by a consideration of the character of internal representations used in thinking and remembering.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2130.03

PSYO 2140 Learning

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Lectures focus on several goals: (1) providing general principles of learning; (2) understanding the behaviour of particular species; (3) direct application to human problems. Emphasis is on understanding why researchers in animal learning do what they are currently doing (given the goals and the historical context).

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, 1520X/Y.30 or 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2140.03

PSYO 2150 Perceptual Processes

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Perception deals with the way in which our senses provide us with information about our environment. This course focuses on the process by which sensory experiences are coded, how they are interpreted by the nervous system, and how experience modifies perception.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505 X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better), or BIOL 1010.03 or BIOL 1020.03 and BIOL 1011.03 or BIOL 1021.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2150.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO 3005.03/NESC 3005.03

PSYO 2160 Animal Behaviour

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Using concepts from behavioural biology and psychology, animal behaviourists attempt to explain why animals behave the way they do. The course examines topics such as mating and social systems, mate choice, the evolution of behaviour, and animal communication. The behaviour of a wide range of animals is studied.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better), or BIOL 1010.03 or BIOL 1020.03 and BIOL 1011.03 or BIOL 1021.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2160.03

PSYO 2220 Abnormal Behaviour

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course involves the study of a broad range of manifestations of abnormal behaviour in adults (e.g., anxiety disorders, substance abuse/dependence, schizophrenia, affective disorders, personality disorders). Causes of abnormal behaviour and the scientific techniques developed to better understand and intervene with various forms of behavioural dysfunction are appraised.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

PSYO 2470 Systems Neuroscience

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course provides an introduction to the functional systems of the brain. We examine neural systems (e.g., the sensory systems, motor system, neurotransmitter-specific systems) individually. We explore their anatomy and function, neurobiological properties that make each unique, and factors that are common to all neural systems (e.g., development and plasticity).

NOTES: Restricted to students registered in Psychology or Neuroscience major or Honours programs.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, 1520X/Y.30 or 1540X/Y.27 or (BIOL 1010.03 or BIOL 1020.03) and (BIOL 1011.03 or BIOL 1021.03) (with a grade of B- or better)

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2470.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO 2770.03

PSYO 2500 Contemporary Research Problems in Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A continuation PSYO 2000.03, this course introduces prospective Honours students to the design, execution, and analysis of independent research projects. Each student works with a supervisor on a one-to-one basis preparing a research project that the student then conducts and describes in a formal written report.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LAB HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03, with grade of B or better, and permission of the instructor

PSYO 2501 Statistical Methods I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course provides an introduction to research design and statistics within Neuroscience and Psychology. Particular emphasis is placed on conducting and interpreting various statistical procedures, including descriptive and inferential statistics (z-test, t-test, ANOVA, chi-square tests), frequently used in these fields.

NOTES: Only students undertaking a Major or Honours degree in Psychology or Neuroscience are eligible for enrolment. This course does not fulfil any part of the Faculty of Science Mathematics requirement.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03 (may be taken concurrently), or instructor's consent

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO 3501.03, STAT 2080.03

PSYO 2570 Cellular Neuroscience

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course explores the brain at the neuronal level. Material covered includes: the ionic basis of resting potentials; the electrical activity of neurons; synaptic transmission and plasticity; synthesis and action of synaptic transmitters; and drug actions. Cellular phenomena relevant to healthy and neurologically-dysfunctional systems are also discussed.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18, SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 or BIOL 1010.03 or BIOL 1020.03: and BIOL 1011.03 or BIOL 1021.03 (with a grade of B- or better)
CROSS-LISTING: NESC 2570.03, PHYL 2570.03

PSYO 2770 Brain and Behaviour

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines the brain's role in controlling experience and behaviour in both animals and humans. It focuses on the functional anatomy of brain systems: in particular on neural pathways involved in motivation, mood, memory, and sensation/perception. Recent research findings and methodologies for studying brain systems are emphasized.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 1011.03 or PSYO 1021.03 or PSYO 1031.03 and PSYO 1012.03 or PSYO 1022.03, or SCIE 1505X/Y.18 SCIE 1515X/Y.36, SCIE 1520X/Y.30 or SCIE 1540X/Y.27 (with a grade of B- or better)

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO/NESC 2470.03, PSYO/NESC 2270.03

PSYO 3000X/Y Independent Research in Modern Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 6

Primarily for Honours students wishing research experience. Requirements include a minimum grade of B in PSYO 2000.03, a high level of performance in other Psychology courses, an overall B+ (GPA 3.30) average, and securing a faculty advisor to supervise the research project. SIGNATURE REQUIRED COORDINATOR: J. Christie

NOTES: Note: This course cannot be used to fulfill the department's research laboratory requirement. Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms and partial credit cannot be given for a single term.

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO 3001.03/NESC 3001.03

PSYO 3001 Directed Project in Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Primarily for Honours students wishing research experience. Requirements include a minimum grade of B in PSYO 2000.03, a high level of performance in other Psychology courses, an overall B+ (GPA 3.30) average, and securing a faculty advisor to supervise the research project. Note: This course cannot be used to fulfill the department's research laboratory requirement. SIGNATURE REQUIRED COORDINATOR: J. Christie

NOTES: This course provides only a half-year research experience. Students wanting a full-year research experience in a lab should register for PSYO 3000X/Y.06.

PSYO 3010X/Y Advanced General Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 6

An active learning course for suitably-qualified senior students. Students complete a series of oral and written assignments designed to consolidate critical thinking and communication skills in Psychology/Neuroscience. After instructional training, assignments include preparing and delivering lab material to a small group (approximately 30) of PSYO 1011.03 and 1012.03 students. SIGNATURE REQUIRED

NOTES: Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms and partial credit cannot be given for a single term.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab| Seminar

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, advanced courses in Psychology or Neuroscience, and instructor's consent.

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3010X/Y.06

PSYO 3030 Psychometrics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course focuses on the theory and method of psychological measurement. Basic and advanced analytic methods employed in quantifying human abilities, traits, and syndromes are examined. Students contribute to the design of, and report on, a new measure of behaviour in the laboratory component of the course.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03

PSYO 3043 Neurobiology of Learning

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines the neurobiological processes underlying various forms of learning such as classical and operant conditioning, song learning by birds, spatial learning, and fear conditioning. Different methods used to study the neurobiology of learning, and the evolutionary origins of these systems are also considered.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and one of PSYO/NESC 2140.03 or PSYO/NESC 2470.03 or PSYO 2770.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3043.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO 3041.03

PSYO 3044 Laboratory Methods of Learning and Conditioning

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A hands-on course on techniques used to test learning and memory in animals, including operant conditioning and spatial memory, and an exposure to the neurobiological systems involved. Students work in pairs to conduct a series of experiments, analyze data as a class, but write individual laboratory reports on each experiment.

NOTES: Students should be aware that some data collection occurs outside of class time.

FORMAT: Lab

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and one of PSYO 2140.03/NESC 2140.03 or PSYO 2470.03/NESC 2470.03 or PSYO 2770.03

PSYO 3051 Sensory Neuroscience I Vision

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines the neural basis for the perception of light, colour, movement, depth, and form. The course covers developmental events important for vision, and the extent to which vision is constrained by anatomical and physiological development.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2470.03/NESC 2470.03 or PSYO 2770.03, and PSYO 2150.03/NESC 2150.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3051.03

PSYO 3052 Sensory Neuroscience II Hearing and Speech

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course explores hearing at levels that include stimulus parameters and their psychophysical correlates, middle ear function, cochlear biophysics, central auditory neurophysiology, and principles of speech perception. We emphasize mechanisms of normal hearing and speech, but address pathology wherever it helps us understand the relation between neurophysiology and perception.

FORMAT: Lecture

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3052.03

PSYO 3082 Experimental Social Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course attempts to develop students' skill level in empirical analysis of social psychology phenomena. Students complete two research projects during the term.

The projects involve testing subjects, coding data, computer data analysis, and report writing. Familiarity with computer-based statistical analysis and text processing is strongly recommended.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO 2080.03

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course focuses on the understanding people develop of themselves and others as social beings. The contributions of evolution, historical, and cultural factors are considered. The ways in which human development of social perception and cognition differs from that of other species are also examined.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and one of PSYO 2080.03 or PSYO 2090.03 or PSYO 2220.03

PSYO 3091 Methods in Developmental Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course provides a survey of research methods in developmental psychology. It assumes knowledge of basic methodology and design, and concentrates on methods of relevance to the study of human development. In addition to lectures, students conduct a number of research exercises to gain experience in conducting research with children.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO 2090.03

PSYO 3092 Early Development

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines development in infancy and the preschool period. The main theme of the course is to examine the integration of perceptual, cognitive, emotional, social, and linguistic changes occurring during the first five years of life.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and PSYO 2090.03

PSYO 3093 Development of Language and Literacy Abilities

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines the cognitive and linguistic processes underlying language acquisition and how they interact in influencing the development of language and literacy abilities.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and PSYO 2090.03

PSYO 3122 Methods in Experimental Clinical Psychology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Students learn how to conduct research on topics in applied clinical psychology. Students conduct a series of research projects in the laboratory by serving both as subjects and experimenters, and analyze the results of these studies in written lab reports. Research studies serve to illustrate concepts discussed in class.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO 2220.03

PSYO 3129 Childhood Psychopathology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines a wide range of mental health disorders in children (e.g., reading disability, autism, ADHD). The goal is to gain a better understanding of the nature of these disorders, to learn about evidence-based assessment and treatment, and to review research findings in relation to children's mental health.

FORMAT: Lecture

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03; PSYO 2220.03 is recommended

PSYO 3131 Research Methods in Attention

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The methods, findings, and theories that underpin our understanding of attention (alertness, preparation, selection, and control of information processing) are covered. Behavioural and neuroscientific evidence as well as computational models are examined in the lectures. Laboratories emphasize behavioural methods used to isolate and reveal the components of attention.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO/NESC 2130.03 or PSYO/NESC 2150.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3131.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO/NESC 3130.06

PSYO 3132 Research Methods in Visual Cognition

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Visual cognition is the study of how we extract meaning from our visual environment and use it to direct our behaviour. Emphasis is placed on object, face, and word recognition as revealed by normal behaviour, and by neuroimaging techniques and neuropsychological studies of brain-damaged individuals who have lost these recognition abilities.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO/NESC 2130.03 or PSYO/NESC 2150.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3132.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO/NESC 3130.06

PSYO 3133 Research Methods in Memory

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines human memory from the perspective of cognitive psychology and, to a lesser extent, cognitive neuroscience. Lectures emphasize cognitive approaches to the study of memory with an explicit focus on empirical research methods, data, and interpretation of results.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO/NESC 2130.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3133.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO/NESC 3130.06

PSYO 3134 Research Methods in Psycholinguistics

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Provides hands-on experience with various methodologies employed in the study of language processing, and uses these to explore topics in psycholinguistics in greater depth. Methods covered may include reaction time, priming, self-paced reading, computational modeling, corpus-based research, and event-related brain potentials. Students serve as experimenters and participants in class experiments.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 3

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, PSYO 2501.03 or STAT 2080.03, and PSYO/NESC 3190.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3134.03

EXCLUSIONS: PSYO/NESC 3130.06

PSYO 3137 Research Methods in Cognitive Neuroscience

CREDIT HOURS: 3

An overview of neuroimaging and other techniques of cognitive neuroscience (including fMRI, ERP, and others) focusing on how they work, how they are applied, and their inherent limitations. Labs include experience collecting and analyzing ERP data, demonstrations of fMRI scanning, and analysis of fMRI data.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3137.03

PSYO 3161 Measuring Behaviour

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Measuring behaviour is essential in the study of ethology, behavioural neuroscience, developmental, social and clinical psychology. The function of this laboratory course is to teach methods of observing and scoring behaviour using qualitative and quantitative methods. Sampling methods, behaviour description and analysis will be done in laboratory and naturalistic settings.

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3162.03

PSYO 3165 Neuroethology

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Neuroethology explores how assemblies of neurons work together to produce behaviour. Neural control of selected behaviours from a wide range of animals, both invertebrate and vertebrate, are examined. From this comparative perspective an attempt is made to tease out common themes in the physiological control of behaviour. NOTES: All experiments in the accompanying lab involve insects. Students are required to handle insects during the lab.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

LECTURE HOURS PER WEEK: 2

PREREQUISITE: PSYO/NESC 2160.03 or BIOL 3062.03; and PSYO/NESC 2570.03 or BIOL 3078.03 and 3079.03, or MARI 3074.03 and 3076.03; and PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03 or one of following Biology classes: 2003.03, 2004.03, 2020.03 2030.03 2060.03

CROSS-LISTING: NESC 3165.03

PSYO 3170 Hormones and Behaviour

CREDIT HOURS: 3

How chemical signals of the neural, endocrine, and immune systems interact to influence the brain and behaviour. How neurotransmitters, cytokines, and hormones control neural and behavioural development, sexual, aggressive, and maternal behaviour. Hormone receptors in the brain, reproduction, puberty, brain sex differences, and stress are also examined.

PREREQUISITE: PSYO 2000.03 or NESC 2007.03, and either PSYO 2770.03 or PSYO/NESC 2470.03, or BIOL 1010.03 or BIOL 1020.03 and BIOL 1011.03 or BIOL 1021.03

PSYO 3970 Molecular Neuroscience

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course examines the development, function, and pathology of the brain at the molecular level. Model systems are examined from the perspective of ion channels, messengers, receptors, intracellular signaling cascades, transcription factors, and genes. The concepts underlying basic cellular and molecular neuroscience tools are emphasized.

Courses

Below you will find descriptions for courses offered in this field of study. You will find a general overview of the topics covered and any prerequisite course or grade requirements, credit value and exclusions.

The first digit of the course indicates the general level. Those in the 1000 series are introductory degree level. Courses at the 2000, 3000, 4000 series are available to students in the second, third, and fourth year. Courses numbered at the 5000 level or above are graduate level. Courses listed at the 0100 or 0200 series are technology level courses. Courses below the 0100 level are generally non credit courses.

Some courses are listed as exclusionary to one another. This means that students may not take both courses as designated.

Not all courses are offered each year. Please consult the current timetable for this year's offering. For further information please contact the department.

Course Descriptions

SCIE 1111 Writing for the Sciences

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course satisfies the Faculty of Science Writing Requirement. The course covers the history of writing and information theory, grammar and punctuation, sentences and paragraphs, scientific style, proposals, the scientific paper, citations and references, graphics, posters, and ethics. Weekly assignments/quizzes develop and reinforce writing skills introduced in lectures.

FORMAT: Lecture| Tutorial

SCIE 1505X/Y Integrated Science

CREDIT HOURS: 18

This program provides comprehensive first-year preparation for science major or honours degrees and includes a full-year writing course and research project in the sciences. Concepts and techniques are taught in Biology, Earth Science, Psychology, and Statistics and are linked to material taught in separate Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics courses.

NOTES: Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms and partial credit cannot be given for a single term.

FORMAT: Lecture| Lab

SCIE 2000X/Y Knowing and Making the World: The History of Science from the Ancients to the Moderns

CREDIT HOURS: 6

This course is a broad introductory survey of the central developments in the history of science, open to first and higher level students whatever their fields, and may be an introduction to further study in the history of science. It examines the most revolutionary figures from the Greeks to the modern period. The work of each of these had such a profound influence upon their own era and upon subsequent times that students in the humanities will find this course clarifies the nature of science and its cultural importance. Students in the sciences will recognize that their contributions have been permanently woven into the fabric we call science. In uncovering the sources and character of each of these transformations in the theory and practice of science, the course will challenge conventional views about the nature and place of science. This course may be taken as an arts or science credit.

NOTES: Credit can only be given for this course if X and Y are completed in consecutive terms and partial credit cannot be given for a single term.

SCIE 2800 Science Co-op Seminar Orientation

CREDIT HOURS: 0

This course is designed to introduce Science Co-op students to aspects of career development and preparation for their work terms. This course is a prerequisite to the first work term and is a mandatory component of the Science-Cooperative Education program; all Science Co-operative Education students are required complete this course at least four months prior to the first workterm. A grade of Pass is required before students undertake the first work term experience.

FORMAT: Seminar

SCIE 3111 Communicating Science

CREDIT HOURS: 3

A course for senior science students to hone communication skills. Students (1) learn to communicate scientific information to various non-specialist audiences, and (2) prepare and deliver tutorials to small groups of SCIE 1111.03 students. The course allows students to use different communication styles and topics to build a portfolio.

PREREQUISITE: Permission of instructor

SCIE 3600 Exploring Geographic Information Systems

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course provides a general overview of Geographic Information Systems (GIS), examining what GIS is, what it can do, and how it works. The course is aimed at students studying in all disciplines and will involve creating, understanding, manipulating and displaying geographic data. Topics will include data models, analysis of vector and raster data, creation of spatial databases, the Global Positioning System and other aspects of spatial data. Lectures (3 per week) will explore basic aspects of GIS in detail and introduce material to be covered in the labs. Labs are held once per week and will provide practical experience in data manipulation and problem solving.

PREREQUISITE: Two years of university study

EXCLUSIONS: EARTH 3500.03, ENVS 3500.03, GEOG 3500.03, EARTH 5600.03

SCIE 4001 History of Marine Sciences

CREDIT HOURS: 3

In this course, we will trace the history of marine sciences from the ancients to the 20th century. Topics may include ancient cosmologies, voyages of discovery, ocean circulation, and a range of scientific perspectives and technological developments that have shaped human understanding of the oceans.

FORMAT: Lecture

SCIE 4444 Leadership in Science

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Students will develop leadership skills and build confidence while applying their scientific knowledge. Through in-class activities and a science-based practicum, students gain experience with various aspects of leadership, allowing for integration and application of their expertise.

PREREQUISITE: Instructor permission. Students should have completed at least three (3) third year courses in their declared major and have a minimum of B+ average in their major.

CROSS-LISTING: BIOL 4444.03

SCIE 4850 Geographic Information Science Research Project

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Students learn how to design, manage and complete a research project in Geographic Information Science (GIS). Projects must include a substantive analytical component where GIS is central to methods employed. Evaluation includes a written report, oral presentation and digital data. Required for completion of the Certificate in GIS.

FORMAT: Lecture

It doesn't matter if you want to design computer games, study the safety of nuclear power plants, analyzing the stock market or conduct political polls: scientists of all kinds work with numbers to measure and explore the world. That's where statistics comes in. Statistics is the study of the collection, organization, analysis, interpretation and presentation of data. Pulling knowledge from data helps us plan for the future and improve our quality of life.

The Dalhousie Statistics program is the only program in the Maritimes that offers a full range of undergraduate and graduate programs. Our undergraduate courses are also approved by the accreditation committee of the Statistics Society of Canada, so that our graduates can apply for the Associate Statistician designation.

Statistics makes a great undergraduate degree with wide applicability and is an essential component of any program in the sciences or social sciences.

Degree Programs

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics offers the following degree programs in Statistics

- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Honours (Concentrated)*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Combined Honours*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Major*
- BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Double Major*
- BSc or BA (90 credit hour) Minor in Statistics
- Minor in Statistics

* May be combined with Minor programs from other disciplines

Departmental requirements for each degree program can be seen by following the links in the menu to the right.

In addition to departmental requirements, students must satisfy the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and the College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections. Students are advised that a number of requirements differ for the BA and BSc degrees.

A student is governed by the academic regulations in place at the time of initial enrolment, as long as the degree is completed within the time permitted (10 years). Subsequent changes in regulations shall apply only if the student so elects. Students applying the old academic regulations should consult the calendar of the appropriate year.

Students should plan their programs of study carefully and are strongly encouraged to do so in consultation with a Statistics undergraduate academic advisor.

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Concentrated Honours in Statistics

Students who want a challenging program resulting in comprehensive knowledge of both theoretical and applied Statistics may want to enroll in an Honours program. Students interested in eventually pursuing graduate studies are particularly encouraged to consider Honours. Honours students complete a minimum of 54 credit hours above the 1000 level in Statistics with a minimum GPA of 3.0 and write a research-based Honours thesis. The research thesis and the Honours Qualifying Examination requirement are satisfied through completion of STAT 4950.03.

Admission to Honours

Students must apply for admission to Honours programs. Students considering Honours in Statistics should consult with a Statistics Honours Advisor early in their studies.

Departmental requirements

In addition to fulfilling the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections, students in a BSc or BA Concentrated Honours program in Statistics must complete the following courses:

1000 level

- MATH 1000.03/MATH 1010.03 or MATH 1215.03/MATH 1010.03
- STAT 1060.03¹
- CSCI 1100.03/CSCI 1101.03²

2000 level

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03/MATH 2040.03 or MATH 2030.03/MATH 2135.03
- STAT 2060.03
- STAT 2080.03³
- An additional six credit hours of STAT courses⁴ at or above the 2000 level, other than the courses listed below.

3000 level

- STAT 3340.03
- STAT 3350.03
- STAT 3360.03
- STAT 3380.03
- STAT 3460.03
- An additional nine credit hours of Statistics or Mathematics courses at or above the 3000 level, other than the courses listed below.

4000 level

- STAT 4066.03
- One of STAT 4350.03, STAT 4390.03 and STAT 4620.03
- STAT 4950.03

¹The requirement to take STAT 1060.03 may be waived for students entering the program in their second year.

²Math 3210 may be taken in place of CSCI 1101. Thus students can fulfill the basic computer skills requirement by taking CSCI 1100 and Math 3210.

³Some students may take STAT 2080.03 in the first year of their degree program.

⁴Statistics courses are any courses listed or cross-listed as STAT. The following can also be counted towards statistics credit hours:

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03
- MATH 2040.03

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Combined Honours in Statistics and another subject

Students who wish to study Statistics in conjunction with another subject may wish to pursue a Combined Honours degree program. The other subject may be any discipline from the Faculty of Science, the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the Faculty of Computer Science, or the College of Sustainability. Statistics may be the primary subject (defined as the subject with the larger number of honours credits), or the secondary subject.

Students planning to enroll in a Combined Honours program should consult with academic advisors from both programs early in their studies. Students must have their program of study approved by Academic Advisors in both subject areas. Students must complete an Honours Qualifying Examination in one of the two subject areas, a requirement normally completed in the primary subject area. For Statistics, this requirement is satisfied through STAT 4950.03.

Departmental requirements

Students in a BSc or BA Combined Honours program in Statistics and another subject must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections.

- A minimum of 30 credit hours in statistics courses at or above the 2000 level with a grade of C or better in each, which must include
- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2030.03
- STAT 2060.03
- STAT 2080.03
- STAT 3340.03
- STAT 3360.03
- STAT 3460.03
- One additional three credit hours STAT course at the 4000 level.
- The remaining courses may be any Statistics⁴ courses at or above the 2000 level.

If Statistics is the primary subject, students will also complete

- STAT 4950.03 Honours Thesis and an additional six credit hours of STAT courses⁴ at or above the 2000 level

OR

- An honours thesis in another subject and an additional 9 credit hours of STAT⁴ courses at or above the 2000 level

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03
- MATH 2040.03

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Major in Statistics

The 120 credit hour Major is suited to students who want to focus on Statistics, but wish to have a program that is somewhat less constrained than the Honours program.

Departmental requirements

In addition to fulfilling the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections, students in a BSc or BA Major program in Statistics must complete the following courses:

1000 level

- MATH 1000.03/MATH 1010.03 or MATH 1215.03/MATH 1010.03
- STAT 1060.03¹
- CSCI 1100.03/CSCI 1101.03²

2000 level

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03/MATH 2040.03 or MATH 2030.03/MATH 2135.03
- STAT 2060.03
- STAT 2080.03³

3000 level

- STAT 3340.03
- STAT 3360.03
- STAT 3380.03 or 3350.03
- STAT 3460.03
- At least six additional credit hours in Statistics⁴ or Mathematics courses at or above the 3000 level

¹The requirement to take STAT 1060.03 may be waived for students entering the program in their second year.

²Math 3210 may be taken in place of CSCI 1101. Thus students can fulfill the basic computer skills requirement by taking CSCI 1100 and Math 3210.

³Some students may take STAT 2080.03 in the first year of their degree program.

⁴Statistics courses are any courses listed or cross-listed as STAT. The following may also be counted towards statistics credit hours:

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.04
- MATH 2030.03
- MATH 2040.03

BSc or BA (120 credit hour) Double Major in Statistics and another subject

The Double Major degree program allows students to combine a study of Statistics with another subject. The other subject may be any discipline from the Faculty of Science, the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the Faculty of Computer Science or the College of Sustainability. Statistics may be the primary subject (defined as the subject with the larger number of credits), or the secondary subject. If the primary subject area is from the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, the degree granted will be a BA.

It is recommended that students enrolled in a Double Major program consult with advisors in both subject areas.

Departmental requirements

Students in a BSc or BA Double Major in Statistics and another subject must fulfill the requirements outlined in the Academic Regulations and College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements sections.

- A minimum of 30 credit hours in statistics courses at or above the 2000 level, including at least 12 credit hours above the 2000 level, which must include
- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2030.03
- STAT 2060.03
- STAT 2080.03
- STAT 3340.03
- STAT 3360.03
- STAT 3460.03
- The remaining courses may be any statistics courses⁴ at or above the 2000 level.

⁴Statistics courses are any courses listed or cross-listed as STAT. The following can also be counted towards statistics credit hours:

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03
- MATH 2040.03

BSc or BA (90 credit hour) Minor in Statistics

The 90 credit hour Minor in Statistics is appropriate for students who want to study some Statistics but do not wish to complete the conventional four-year program. The degree is best suited for students who want a general science degree with some specialization in Statistics. A 90 credit hour degree program is not suitable for students who wish to pursue graduate studies. With additional study, the degree may be upgraded to a 120 credit hour Major or Honours degree at a later date.

A 90 credit hour BSc or BA in Statistics is usually the preferred option for students who wish to combine studies in Statistics with a degree in Engineering (see BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program).

See the Minor in Statistics section of this Calendar.

Minor in Statistics

This minor is available to students registered in a 120 credit hour Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Commerce, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Computer Science, Bachelor of Informatics or Bachelor of Management program.

A BSc or BA (90 credit hour) degree program with a minor in Statistics is also available.

Requirements

A minimum of 18 to a maximum of 36 credit hours in Statistics

- STAT 2060.03: Introduction to Probability and Statistics
- STAT 2080.03: Statistical Methods for Data Analysis and Inference
- STAT 3340.03: Regression and Analysis of Variance
- at least three credit hours of STAT at the 3000 level
- six credit hours of STAT at 2000 level or higher

¹Statistics courses are any courses listed or cross-listed as STAT. The following can also be counted towards statistics credit hours: MATH 2001.03, MATH 2002.03, MATH 2030.03, MATH 2040.03.

Co-op, Minors, Certificates and Engineering Concurrent Programs for Students

Minors available to students in Statistics

Minor programs allow students to develop subject specialities in addition to their Major or Honours subjects. Minors in other subjects are normally added to 120 credit hour BSc or BA programs.

Students in a BSc or BA (120 credit hour) program in Statistics may choose to include a Minor selected from the list of approved Minors. Courses counted toward a Major or Honours subject cannot be used to fulfill the requirements of a Minor program.

Certificates

In combination with a BSc or BA in Statistics, students may obtain one or more Certificates. A Certificate indicates that a student has achieved a certain level of proficiency in a given area or subspecialty. Courses counted toward a Major, Honours or Minor subject may also be used to fulfill the requirements of a Certificate. Students must apply to the Certificate Coordinator to be considered for a Certificate. Certificates are awarded upon graduation and are noted on the student's academic transcript.

A complete list of Faculty of Science Certificates and requirements can be found at the beginning of the Faculty of Science section. Students may also work toward obtaining Certificates offered by other Faculties; some of these are listed in the College of Arts and Science Degree Requirements section.

Certificates of particular interest to student enrolled in a BSc or BA in Statistics include:

- Certificate in Actuarial and Financial Mathematics
- Certificate in Applied and Computational Mathematics

BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program

Students interested in combining their interest in Program with a degree in Engineering may choose a BSc/BEng or BA/BEng Concurrent Program, normally completed in a 5 year period. Over the first three years, students complete the requirements for a 90 credit hour BSc or BA degree in Statistics and a Diploma of Engineering (the first two years of engineering studies). Two more years of engineering studies are then required to obtain a BEng. Interested students should see an undergraduate advisor from Statistics and from the Faculty of Engineering in their first year of study.

Required Statistics courses for a BSc/BEng or BA/BEng program in Statistics

- A minimum of 18 credit hours in Statistics courses at the 2000 level or higher, which must include STAT 2060.03, STAT 2080.03, STAT 3340.03 and at least one other STAT course⁴ at or above the 3000 level

⁴Statistics courses are any courses listed or cross-listed as STAT. The following can also be counted towards statistics credit hours:

- MATH 2001.03
- MATH 2002.03
- MATH 2030.03
- MATH 2040.03

Course Notes

Certain courses have been approved for use in fulfilling the educational requirements of the Associate Statistician (A.Stat.) designation of the Statistical Society of Canada (SSC). See the Department or the SSC website (<http://ssc.ca/en/accreditation/apply/suggested-courses-use-towards-astat-designation>) for details.

Credit may not be obtained twice for the same course even if the numbers have been changed.

Actuarial Science

ACSC 3703 Actuarial Models I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This class builds on the material in STAT 3360 to develop the theoretical basis for construction and evaluation of actuarial models. Topics covered include survival models, probability distributions, deductibles and limits, and aggregate loss models, with application to insurance.

PREREQUISITE: STAT 3360.03 OR MATH 3360.03 or permission of instructor

CROSS-LISTING: STAT 3703.03

EXCLUSIONS: STAT 4701.03

ACSC 3720 Life Contingencies I

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course introduces the student to the mathematical models for valuation of life contingencies (e.g. life insurance policies). The course covers both the statistical aspects of modelling survival data, and the financial aspects of valuing uncertain future cash-flows.

PREREQUISITE: STAT 3360.03/MATH 3360.03 and STAT 2600.03/MATH 2600.03

CROSS-LISTING: STAT 3720.03

ACSC 3750 Credibility Theory

CREDIT HOURS: 3

Credibility theory deals with the difficulty in combining information from two samples, one of which is small but relevant, the other is large but less relevant. In this course, we will study different approaches to dealing with this problem.

COREQUISITE: STAT 3703.03/ACSC 3703.03

ACSC 4703 Actuarial Models II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course focuses on the development of statistical methods for the estimation and validation of actuarial models. Topics to be discussed include: methods of estimation, properties of estimators, goodness of fit, credibility theory, survival estimators, measures of risk, estimation of severity and ruin models.

PREREQUISITE: STAT 3703 or ACSC 3703

ACSC 4720 Life Contingencies II

CREDIT HOURS: 3

STAT 3720.03 covers the basics of life contingencies in a simple standard situation. In this course we extend this to deal with a number of common additional features that affect life insurance policies. We introduce multiple-state models, pensions, interest rate risk and profit testing.

Statistics

STAT 1060 Introductory Statistics for Science and Health Sciences

CREDIT HOURS: 3

This course gives an introduction to the basic concepts of statistics through extensive use of examples. The topics include experimental design, descriptive statistics, simple linear regression and the basics of statistical inference. Students will learn to use the statistical package MINITAB. NOTE: Students who have already taken university level Calculus should consider taking STAT 2060.03 instead of STAT 1060.03.

NOTES: Students will not receive credit for taking STAT 1060.03 after receiving credit for STAT 2060.03.

STAT 3350 Design of Experiments

CREDIT HOURS: 3

The aim of the course is to develop the fundamental statistical concepts required for designing efficient experiments to answer real questions. The first main subject is unit variation and control. The basic concepts of replication, blocking and randomization are each examined. The second main subject is treatment questions and structure. The ideas of factorial designs, split-plot and incomplete plot designs are presented. We conclude with a look at response surface methodology.

Centres and Institutes

A number of centres and institutes for study and research in specific fields are based at the University. These are:

Atlantic Health Promotion Research Centre

Managing Director: Sally Walker, PhD
Scientific Director: Lois Jackson, PhD
Other: Project Coordinators, Research Associates, Research Assistants, and students
Tel: (902) 494-2240
Fax: (902) 494-3594
Website: <http://www.ahprc.dal.ca>

The Atlantic Health Promotion Research Centre (AHPRC) is a leading Canadian health promotion research centre based at Dalhousie University. AHPRC was established in 1993 to conduct interdisciplinary, collaborative population health and prevention research that informs policies and programs to improve the health of Canadians.

The centre is conducting research on health services and health systems, healthy eating and physical activity, knowledge translation, prevention of chronic illness and disability, oral health of seniors, youth obesity, aboriginal health, and harm reduction.

The AHPRC is currently supported by the Faculties of Health Professions, Dentistry and the Office of the Vice President Academic and Provost at Dalhousie University. Support for specific research projects comes from agencies such as Canadian Institutes for Health Research, Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, Nova Scotia Health Research Foundation, and Heart and Stroke Foundation of Canada.

Our research associates hold appointments in the Faculties of Health Professions, Architecture, Management, Medicine, Dentistry and Science.

Atlantic Institute of Criminology

Director: D.H. Clairmont, BA, MA, PhD

The Atlantic Institute of Criminology (AIC) is a research institute that is heavily policy-oriented in the field of crime and the criminal justice system. Its mandate is to foster the exchange of information among researchers and policy makers in those areas. Consultative services are provided to fellow scholars and researchers, including graduate students and visiting professors, with respect to the planning and execution of research projects and related undertakings. The AIC is an entity that itself conducts extensive research in criminology, especially with respect to policing, the administration of justice, youth justice issues, race, ethnic and equity issues in justice. It has produced a significant body of policy-oriented research on Aboriginal and African-Canadian justice issues. The AIC Dalhousie website (Dalhousie - SOSA-AIC), which is regularly updated, provides a clear indication of the research products of recent years even though the website is largely restricted to research output that does not include articles in professional journals or edited books available elsewhere.

Atlantic Research Centre (ARC)

Director: Neale Ridgway
Phone: (902) 494-7133
Website: <http://arc.medicine.dal.ca/>

Established in 1967, the ARC conducts basic biomedical research in the fields of lipid metabolism and cell signalling, areas of fundamental importance to a variety of disorders including cancer, neurological, heart and infectious diseases. It also provides education and expertise in these fields to undergraduate and graduate students, other researchers, and the general public. The ARC houses state-of-the-art facilities for biochemical and molecular biological research, including a regional proteomics service facility (DalGEN, <http://genomics.medicine.dal.ca/pms>), and is affiliated with the IWK Cheminformatics & Drug Discovery Laboratory. The Centre's staff hold appointments in the Departments of Pediatrics and Biochemistry and Molecular Biology in the Faculty of Medicine. Research at the ARC is supported by agencies such as the CIHR, NSERC, CFI, Heart and Stroke Foundation, National Cancer Institute, Atlantic Innovation Fund, and the IWK Health Centre.

Brain Repair Centre

Chair: Dr. Victor Rafuse, Director
Website: <http://www.brainrepair.ca/>

The Brain Repair Centre (BRC) is a collaboration of Dalhousie University, the Capital District Health Authority and the IWK Health Centre. The BRC is a multi-disciplinary unit focusing on research that can lead to the diagnosis, treatment, and repair of the brain to overcome the effects of neurological and psychiatric disorders such as Parkinson's disease, Huntington's disease, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), Epilepsy, Muscular Sclerosis (MS), stroke and spinal cord injury. The BRC grew out of the clinical Neural Transplantation Program, collaboration between basic neuroscientists and clinicians interested in treating Parkinson's disease. The success of the Neural Transplantation Program led clinical and basic neuroscientists to decide to form the Brain Repair Centre. The BRC was formed in 1999 and has focused on stem cell transplantation, Parkinson's disease, spinal cord injury, psychotic disorders, stroke and neuroimaging as areas of innovation at Dalhousie University, Capital Health and the IWK Health Centre.

Examples of BRC achievements include:

- Attracted capital funding from private donors, institutions and the public sector to support construction and fit-up of the new Life Sciences Research Institute. When the LSRI is completed, the Brain Repair Centre will become the anchor tenant of this new research and commercialization building with state-of-the-art research, equipment and facilities.
- Establishment of collaboration agreements with research teams at McLean Hospital/Harvard University; Jilin University, China; Cardiff University, Wales; and Neurodyn, Inc.
- Establishment of a $12 million magnetic resonance imaging facility with the national Research council's Institute for Biodiagnostics (NRC-IBD).
- In 2006, the BRC was awarded $5.5 million for infrastructure from the Canadian Foundation for Innovation, the largest such award to date in Atlantic Canada. Also in 2006, BRC received a $3 million Atlantic Innovation Fund award for research, a follow-on to an earlier $3 million research award.
- Dr. David Clarke, a member of the Brain Repair Centre used a virtual model of a patient's brain to remove a simulated brain tumour before removing the actual tumour the following morning. Developed by a partnership of the National Research Council and a team of about 50 people in 10 Centres across Canada, this was the first such surgery performed in the world.
- Medtronic Canada, Capital District Health Authority, QEII Foundation, and the Brain Repair Centre established a Canadian Centre of Excellence and Training at the Halifax Infirmary. This new $3.5 million centre provides important new clinical facilities for training and development in imaging, spinal cord and neuromodulation.
- In the neurotransplantation field, the BRC is unique in Canada and one of only four centres worldwide involved in clinical application of neural transplantation, with the "Halifax Protocol" accepted as the world gold standard.
- The BRC is an innovative collaboration that integrates its research expertise with pioneers in the fields of imaging, neurology, stem cell neurobiology, vision, molecular neurobiology, pharmacology, psychiatry, clinical trials and cognitive neuroscience.
- The BRC brings together the expanding fields of neuroimaging and stem cell technologies with application to the treatment of neurological and psychiatric disorders.
- The BRC is the Atlantic Canada presence in the Stem Cell Network, a National Centre of Excellence in stem cell research.

The BRC places emphasis on moving basic science research from the bench to the clinical bedside and from the bedside back to the bench. A key objective of the BRC is to produce innovative technologies that will be commercialized.

Canadian Institute of Fisheries Technology (CIFT)

Director: A. T. Paulson, PhD
Telephone: (902) 494-3280
Fax: (902) 420-0219
Website: <http://cift.engineering.dal.ca>

CIFT was established in 1979 at the former Nova Scotia Technical College (later TUNS). The federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans provided much of its early specialized laboratory and seafood pilot scale processing equipment, and Industry Canada provided start-up funding and designated CIFT a centre of excellence. As a government-approved laboratory for advanced technology, it also provides R&D services on a cost-recovery basis to industry and to various governmental agencies. The Institute promotes technology transfer and the development of advanced technologies aimed at more effective commercial utilization of both marine and terrestrial resources in Canada and throughout the world.

In addition, CIFT offers unique opportunities for post-graduate training and research through the Food Science program. Major areas of emphasis are: food biochemistry and microbiology; fats, oils, nutraceuticals and other bioactives; physical properties of foods; fish/food process engineering; food safety and preservation; food rheology, food fermentation and beverage science.

Facilities

CIFT is located in the MacDonald Building of Sexton Campus at 1360 Barrington Street in downtown Halifax. The Institute's facilities include:

- fats and oils laboratory

- food chemistry laboratory
- food development laboratory
- sensory evaluation laboratory
- food process engineering pilot plant
- low temperature storage facility
- food physical properties laboratory
- food microbiology laboratory

These areas contain specialized instrumentation and food processing equipment to enable experimental processing, laboratory analysis, and product storage evaluation. In addition to a computer- controlled cold-storage facility, the pilot plant is equipped for experimental processing including freezing, chilling, thermal processing, drying, centrifugal separation, and meat-bone separation.

The pilot plant is well equipped for thermal processing with an automated retort capable of steam, steam-air, or water immersion processing research. The specially designed cold-storage facility is computer controlled and particularly useful for the study of changes in foods as a result of frozen storage history. The pilot plant is also equipped with a custom-built computer-controlled heat pump dryer that is used in food dehydration experiments.

Specialized laboratory equipment includes: automated high performance and fast protein liquid chromatography systems, gas chromatography/mass spectroscopy system, preparative ultracentrifuge, multi-purpose refrigerated centrifuge, microtube centrifuge, analytical and preparative electrophoretic/isoelectric focusing equipment, pulsed field electrophoresis system, thermocycler, DNA gel electrophoresis, Hoefer Daltix for 2D electrophoresis, Image Master 2D elite software, capillary electrophoresis system, ultra-low temperature freezer, universal texture testing machine, various colorimeters, U.V. and visible spectrophotometer, spectrofluorometer, electrokinetic analyzer, workstation for mathematical modelling and computer simulation, Linkham shearing stage/microscope, Nikon microscope (various attachments), controlled stress rheometer with a high temperature/pressure attachment, controlled rate rheometer, Viscomat, and a rolling ball viscometer.

Educational Opportunities

Graduate (MSc and PhD) programs are available through the Food Science and Technology program. Also post-doctoral research opportunities are offered. Graduate level class work and research opportunities relate to food science, seafood processing technology, marine oils, engineering design, packaging technology, fish post-mortem biochemistry, food microbiology, food rheology and food process science. Students with degrees in food science, engineering, chemistry/biochemistry, microbiology or biology are invited to apply.

Canadian Center for Vaccinology

Director:	Scott Halperin, MD
Associate Directors:	Robert Anderson, MD Joanne Langley, MD Janice Graham, PhD
Website:	www.centerforvaccinology.ca
Email:	ccfv@iwhk.nshealth.ca
Facebook:	CCfVhfx
Twitter:	@VACCres
Telephone:	902 470-8141
Fax:	902 470-7232

Vision

CCfV is an integrated collaborative multidisciplinary vaccine research team committed to excellent research. CCfV unites the biomedical and clinical sciences with the social sciences and humanities to effectively span the research continuum from basic discovery to translation into useful vaccines to prevent disease in humans and to change population and public health outcomes.

Organization

Activity within CCfV is organized into three groups

- Vaccine Discovery Group

- Vaccine Evaluation Group
- Health Policy & Translation Group

An Advisory Committee of CCFV investigators and external advisors provides counsel on the strategic direction and objectives of CCFV research.

Members

Anyone with an interest in vaccine-related research may apply for membership at <http://www.centerforvaccinology.ca/about-ccfv/join-us/>

For a list of current members go to <http://www.centerforvaccinology.ca/about-ccfv/members/>

CCFV is made possible by a continuing collaboration of Dalhousie University, the IWK Health Centre, and Capital Health. The CCFV's 20,000 square foot facility in the IWK Health Centre includes laboratories for microbiological and molecular research, ambulatory and inpatient clinical trial facilities, data analysis, training and conference space. It was founded in 2007 with financial assistance from the Canada Foundation for Innovation, the Nova Scotia Research and Innovation Trust, and the Government of Nova Scotia's Department of Economic Development, among others. The Clinical Research/Vaccine Challenge Unit, which opened in 2009, was made possible by additional funding from Sanofi Pasteur.

Centre for African Studies

Director: Theresa Ulicki, PhD
 Phone: (902) 494-3814/1377
 Fax: (902) 494-2105

This Centre, established in 1975, advances instruction, publication, research and development education programs in African Studies. Associated faculty offer classes through the Departments of History, International Development Studies, Political Science, French, Sociology and Social Anthropology and Philosophy. The Centre organizes academic and informal seminars and public policy conferences on Africa and encourages interdisciplinary interaction at all levels on African subjects and issues. It co-operates with the International Development Studies department and with the International Research and Development office.

Centre for Comparative Genomics and Evolutionary Bioinformatics

Director: Andrew J. Roger, PhD
 Coordinator: Wanda Danilchuk
 Phone: (902) 494-2620
 Fax: (902) 494-1355
 Website: <http://www.cgeb.dal.ca>

The Centre for Comparative Genomics and Evolutionary Bioinformatics (CGEB) at Dalhousie University encompasses an interdisciplinary group of researchers in the Faculties of Medicine, Science and Computer Science. Although microbial genome evolution and diversity is at the heart of many of the CGEB researchers' activities, our work spans computational biology, computer science, statistical modeling and comparative genomics, with a strong focus on method and theory. The application of DNA sequencing technologies to characterize the genomes of a wide diversity of microbes has generated vast quantities of genome sequence data. Now the intellectual challenge is to develop from this enormous resource more comprehensive and theoretically robust phylogenetic, genetic and ecological models to further our understanding of the many roles of microbes in the biological world.

CGEB researchers are united by the common goal of using this vast resource of genomic information to elucidate evolutionary patterns and processes: the pathways by which microbial organisms have diversified over the last 3.5 billion years of Earth's history and through which they continue to shape the global environment. Only through the integration of experimental genomic approaches and sophisticated bioinformatic modeling will we be able to achieve this goal.

CGEB researchers and trainees are supported by grants from the Canadian Institutes for Health Research (CIHR), Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC), the Nova Scotia Health Research Foundation (NSHRF). The Centre itself is supported by funding from the Tula Foundation (<http://www.tula.ca>), the Faculties of Medicine, Science and Computer Science. CGEB is also supported by a large grant from the Tula Foundation (<http://www.tula.ca>) that provides funds for training top-notch postdoctoral and graduate trainees in the CGEB research specialties. We also have a regular seminar series that brings world renowned scientists to speak at Dalhousie University and interact with faculty members and trainees.

Centre for Environmental and Marine Geology

Director: Professor D. B. Scott

This Centre was originally founded as the Centre for Marine Geology in 1983 to promote interdisciplinary studies of various types of problems in marine Geology, capitalizing on our unique position in Canada with links to related departments such as Oceanography, Physics, Biology, the Bedford Institute of Oceanography and our hosting of the Canadian office of the Ocean Drilling Program. Since 1983 the role of the Centre has changed, reflected in the new name, which better describes the work being done now where marine geology is combined with environmental problems. We have three new faculty that expand our expertise into new chronological techniques and permafrost as well as strengthening our capacity in the petroleum-related environmental geology. Some of the objectives of the Centre are to: 1) continue to expand our participation in a revitalized east coast offshore energy related problems; 2) continue our climate-change work with a variety of approaches both offshore and on land; 3) expand into Arctic regions both with major oceanographic and shore-based programs; and 4) expand our capacity to help solve some of the many environmental geology problems associated with urbanization.

Centre for European Studies

Director: Jerry White (Canada Research Chair in European Studies)

Email: jerry.white@dal.ca

The Centre for European Studies was established in 2007 to promote research on all aspects of European society and its relations with the rest of the world. The Centre facilitates the work of Europeanist scholars at Dalhousie, including the participating Canada Research Chairs in European Studies, enables research collaboration with scholars from Canada and around the world on projects related to Europe and the European Union.

Centre for Foreign Policy Studies

Director: David R. Black, PhD

Lester B. Person Professor, International Development Studies

Established in 1971 the Centre is concerned with teaching, research, publication, policy advice and other professional activities in the various aspects of foreign policy, security studies, development studies, and international politics.

The Centre's work is concentrated in the areas of Canadian and comparative maritime security and oceans policy, Canadian and American foreign and security policies, and global security and international development. Its geographical specializations include Canada, North America, Europe, and the South (especially Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean). The Centre encourages activities in these areas by Faculty, Research, and Doctoral Fellows, and advances communication among local and international communities in these fields through seminars, workshops conferences and colloquia, often in collaboration with local, national, and/or international organizations. It publishes occasional papers and monographs on Maritime Security, Canadian Defence and Security, and Global Security issues.

The Centre is an integral part of the Department of Political Science. Centre faculty offer classes through the Department in foreign and defence policy, international relations and development, and maritime affairs at both undergraduate (majors and honours) and graduate (MA and PhD) levels. They also supervise masters and doctoral theses in these fields.

For further information, consult the Centre's website: <http://centreforforeignpolicystudies.dal.ca>.

Centre for Innovation in Infrastructure

Director: John Newhook, PhD, PEng

Location: Room B233, Sexton Campus

1360 Barrington Street

PO Box 1000

Halifax, NS B3J 2X4

Phone: (902) 494-2847

Email: forgeron@dal.ca

The Centre for Innovation in Infrastructure is an industry-oriented research centre with the Faculty of Engineering and with strong affiliations with the Department of Civil and Resource Engineering. Established in 1983 as the Nova Scotia CAD/CAM Centre, the Centre originally focussed on assisting Atlantic Canadian industry with the integration of computer added manufacturing and computer aided design technology in their operations. Since the 1990's the Centre has continued to evolve to meet the needs of industry in other areas and to take a more active role in research and development in civil infrastructure.

Today the Centre act as a focal point for research, innovation and technology transfer in Civil Infrastructure related areas. The major funding partnerships are with the Atlantic Canadian departments of transportation, industries related to bridge and structural engineering and with companies developing new materials and products for infrastructure.

Our combined areas of expertise and research interests include:

- Structural Analysis and Design
- Structural Health monitoring

- Bridge engineering and innovations
- Soil-steel structures
- Fibre reinforced polymers
- Fibre reinforced concrete
- NDT of bridge decks and pavements
- Sustainable asphalt technology

The Centre has acquired and maintains significant testing equipment related to these research areas and contributes to the maintenance and operation of the research facilities within the Department of Civil and Resource Engineering.

Centre for International Trade and Transportation

Location: Suite 2060, 6100 University Avenue
PO Box 15000

The Centre was established in 1975 with a mission to foster international business teaching and research and enhance Canada's global competitiveness through innovative programs and outreach services. CITT supports a wide range of learning experiences including academic exchanges, the Student Research Symposium, the International Case Competition. The Centre recently partnered with Michigan State University's Canadian Studies Program to work towards increasing global trade between the US and Canada (the world's largest trading partners).

Centre for Transformative Nursing and Health Research

Interim Director: Dr. Gail Tomblin Murphy
Research Coordinator: Julie Barry
Location: School of Nursing, 5869 University Avenue, Halifax NS B3H 4R2
Tel: (902) 494-6125

The Centre for Transformative Nursing and Health Research is a newly designated Research Centre at Dalhousie University. The vision of the Centre is to undertake collaborative research that develops, enhances, expands and disseminates evidence and knowledge to inform ways to improve and sustain people's health and wellbeing. The mission of the Centre is to generate nursing research and inspire discovery that is methodologically sound, actionable, and dedicated to improving outcomes for those requiring health care, their providers and the overall system. Through strong research partnerships and extensive research capacity building initiatives, the Research Centre will be acknowledged as a key resource for health system planning. This collective strength creates a more research-intensive environment, transforming the culture of health research within and beyond the School so that evidence and the quest for new knowledge are well integrated into teaching and clinical practice. The overall improved scholarly environment ensures graduates engage in original research, advance professional knowledge and are well positioned to be leaders in practice and health system change.

In concert with the School of Nursing's transformation strategy, Academic Plan and Research Strategy and informed by Boyer's Model of Scholarship, the Centre's activities will focus on four research pillars: the health needs of people, health workforce and health systems planning, marginalized populations and health equity, and knowledge translation.

Centre for Water Resources Studies

Director: Graham Gagnon, PhD, PEng
Location: Office D-514
1360 Barrington Street
Phone: (902) 494-3268
Email: cwrs@dal.ca

The Centre for Water Resources Studies was established in December 1981, by a resolution of the Board of Governors (TUNS). The objectives of the Centre are to carry out applied research which contributes to the effective and sustainable protection of water resources in Atlantic Canada, nationally and internationally, and to facilitate the transfer of new knowledge to potential users. Research programs directed by the Centre address the design of cost-effective on-site wastewater systems, soil erosion processes, drinking water treatment, the use of roofwater cisterns for domestic water supply, eutrophication, watershed management and the computer modeling of hydrodynamic and hydrochemical processes. The Centre also has a number of research advisory panels, which involve professionals from industry, government and academia in applied research related to water use and water management.

Facilities

The Centre for Water Resources Studies is located on the fifth floor of “D” Building on Sexton Campus. Laboratory and office space is available for specific graduate research topics, as well as ongoing research carried out by Centre personnel. Analytical equipment includes instrumentation for determining low levels of major ions and nutrients, as well as trace quantities of metal ions in water. The Centre has apparatus for laboratory investigation and pilot scale testing of innovative water treatment methods using Dissolved Air Flootation (DAF) and ozonation and has worked with local consultants and municipalities to develop new applications of the technologies. The Centre is a North American leader in the development of on-site sewage disposal and has had an active research program in this area since 1987. In conjunction with the Faculty of Agriculture, the Centre has a field laboratory investigating sloping sand filters and septic disposal.

Educational Opportunities

The Centre co-operates with academic units in the training of undergraduate and graduate students who have an interest in water resources. The Centre also participates in the program leading to a dual degree in water resources engineering and planning, in conjunction with the School of Planning into the Faculty of Architecture and Planning.

Dalhousie Institute for Society and Culture (DISC)

Director: Associate Dean
Research in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences
Email: discfass@dal.ca
Website: <http://arts.dal.ca/Research>

Established in 2008, the Dalhousie Institute on Society and Culture serves as the virtual home for the many divergent research activities and initiatives within the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Its primary function is to support research within the Faculty through various fellowship programs, publicity and fund raising initiatives, publishing ventures, conferences and lecture series, and cross-disciplinary exchanges.

The Institute encompasses two broad and overlapping research clusters: Societies in Local, National, and Global Contexts, and Cultural Representations and Presentations. The former cluster aims to develop new knowledge about political, social, and economic transformations, about national and regional identities, and about global relations, whereas the latter seeks to investigate and preserve cultural traditions, literatures, and languages, to foster studies and theories of cultural identity, to stimulate artistic innovation, to examine the shaping influence of beliefs and religions, and to contribute to the cultural life and profile of the province. These two clusters, with a flexibility and breadth unequalled in Eastern Canada, are uniquely equipped to analyze social and cultural change.

European Union Centre of Excellence

Director: Ruben Zouoth
Phone: (902) 494-7558
Fax: (902) 494-1909
Email: euce@dal.ca
Website: <http://www.euce.dal.ca>

Established in 2006, the European Union Centre of Excellence (EUCE) seeks to promote greater awareness of the European Union (EU) in Canada. The Centre coordinates academic and public outreach activities such as exchanges of faculty and students, conferences, workshops, symposia, and other projects involving the Faculties of Arts and Social Sciences, Law, Management and Science. The Centre supports research in areas such as Canada and EU Arctic policy, transatlantic trade negotiations, migration policies in Europe, EU Copyright legislation, the EU and the economic crisis, public health policy in EU and Canada.

Global Health Office

Director: Shawna O'Hearn
Location: C-241, 5849 University Avenue

Phone: (902) 494-1965
Fax: (902) 494-2799
Email: gho@dal.ca
Website: <http://gho.medicine.dal.ca>

Working through an interprofessional lens, the Global Health Office is committed to training global health leaders who strengthen health systems for vulnerable populations in Canada and abroad. The office prepares students, residents and faculty doing clinical electives, training or research with our international partners as well as leads summer programs in Tanzania, Thailand and The Gambia.

- Events focusing on relevant and timely global health issues are organized through the office including journal clubs, speaker series, conferences.
- Opportunities to become involved in research and mentorship.
- A certificate in “Advocates in Global Health”.
- Annual awards are presented to a student, resident and faculty member who demonstrate leadership in global health
- Partnerships with organizations strengthen the global reach including CSIH (Canadian Society for International Health), CCGHR (Canadian Coalition for Global Health Research), National Network on MNCH (Maternal, Newborn and Child Health), ACIC (Atlantic Council for International Cooperation), GHEC (Global Health Education Consortium), and International Centre (Dalhousie)

Health Law Institute

Director: Constance MacIntosh, BA, MA, LLB
Location: Dalhousie University
6061 University Avenue
PO Box 15000

An Interdisciplinary Institute of the Faculties of Law, Medicine, Health Professions, and Dentistry, the Institute is committed to the advancement of health law and policy and the improvement of health care practice and health systems through scholarly analysis, professional education, and public service. Its objectives are:

1. To foster strong and innovative health law and policy scholarship by:
 - cultivating interdisciplinary health law and policy research networks
 - engaging in principled analysis of both recognized and emerging areas of health law and policy
 - enabling knowledge transfer
2. To advance health law and policy education by:
 - designing and implementing education programs for law, medicine, health professions and dentistry students
 - providing continuing education opportunities for health professionals and legal practitioners
3. To serve the public in our areas of expertise by:
 - contributing to the societal understanding of health law and policy issues
 - providing expertise and consulting to organizations in the public sector
 - engaging in and supporting the policy-making process at local, regional, provincial, national and international levels.

Institute for Big Data Analytics at Dalhousie University

Director: Dr. Stan Matwin
Location: Goldberg Computer Science Building
6500 University Avenue
PO Box 15000
Halifax, NS B3H 4R2
Phone: (902) 494-4320
Email: bigdata@cs.dal.ca
Website: <https://bigdata.cs.dal.ca>

Big data is not a single breakthrough invention, but rather a coming together and maturing of several technologies: huge, inexpensive data harvesting tools and databases, efficient, fast data analytics and data mining algorithms, the proliferation of user-friendly data visualization methods and the availability of affordable, massive and non-proprietary computing. Using these technologies in a knowledgeable way allows us to turn the masses of data that are created daily by businesses and government into an important asset that will result in better, more informed decisions. This could lead, for an example, to intelligent, personalized electric power pricing for consumers, to optimized port traffic management or to the discovery of interesting patterns of migrations in marine life.

The Institute for Big Data Analytics (Big Data @ Dal) acts as a catalyst and a container in which a number of Dalhousie researchers and internationally renowned experts in all of the above areas can work together on Big Data.

The Institute has three main goals. Firstly, we want to become an international hub of excellence in big data research - a place to which scientists will come to work on interesting problems, but also in search of interesting, real-life applications. Our second goal is to make the Institute very relevant to local industries in Nova Scotia, and in Canada. To achieve this goal, we want to focus - for example - on becoming a world leader in the analytics of marine data and all aspects relating to marine biology, fisheries and shipping. Thirdly, we will develop a focused and advanced training program that covers all aspects of big data, preparing our next generation of researchers and practitioners for this important field of study.

Institute for Research in Materials (IRM)

Director: Richard A. Dunlap, PhD
Administrative Offices: 6414 Coburg Road
PO Box 15000
Halifax, NS B3H 4R2
Phone: (902) 494-6373
Fax: (902) 494-8016
Website: <http://irm.dal.ca>

Established in 2002, IRM is made up of over 100 faculty members in seven faculties (Science, Engineering, Dentistry, Medicine, Architecture and Planning, Management and Health Professions) and 17 departments. The goals of the Institute include advancing the collective interdisciplinary research efforts in materials science and engineering at Dalhousie University, facilitating interdisciplinary teaching in materials science within the existing discipline structure, and enhancing interactions between materials researchers at Dalhousie University with relevant government laboratories and industry, especially within the region. The Institute leads collaboration within the university on interdisciplinary applications to funding agencies for major equipment and research infrastructure, and collaborates with external organizations to pursue research opportunities.

All Dalhousie University faculty members carrying out research in the area of materials are eligible to be Members of IRM. Postdoctoral fellows and graduate students associated with these research groups are invited to become Associate Members of IRM.

In addition to equipment operated by individual members of the Institute, IRM has established (2003) the Facilities for Materials Characterization, an $11 million suite of instruments managed by the Institute.

The equipment includes:

- High-field solid-state NMR spectrometer (managed jointly with the Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Research Resource)
- Scanning electron microscope
- Focused ion beam
- X-ray photoelectron spectrometer (XPS)
- Secondary ion mass spectrometer (SIMS)
- Ultra-high speed optical systems
- Physical property measurement system (PPMS)
- Scanning thermal microscope (SThM)
- Hot press
- Grindo Sonic
- High-speed motion recorder/analyzer
- FT-Raman spectrometer

These facilities are open to external users. Please contact IRM@dal.ca for details.

IRM offers an NSERC CREATE program called DREAMS (Dalhousie Research in Energy, Advanced Materials and Sustainability). Students accepted into the program carry out collaborative interdisciplinary research in world-leading laboratories with innovative new courses and direct experience working with industrial partners. DREAMS scholarships are available to graduate students in Chemistry, Physics and Mechanical Engineering. See DREAMS website for details at DREAMS.irm.dal.ca

Law and Technology Institute

Director: Robert J. Currie, BA, MA, LLB, LLM
Associate Director: Steve Coughlan, BA, MA, LLB, PhD
Location: Schulich School of Law
6061 University Avenue
PO Box 15000
Halifax, NS B3H 4R2
Phone: 902 494-1469
Fax: 902 494-1316
Email: lynda.corkum@dal.ca
Website: www.dal.ca/faculty/law/LATL.html

The Law and Technology Institute was established at the Schulich School of Dalhousie in 2001 to provide teaching, research, and continuing education on technology law issues to students, faculty members, and the practicing Bar. The Institute participates, with the faculties of Computer Science and Management, in Dalhousie's Master of Electronic Commerce Program, and has been involved in collaborative projects with the private sector and governments on information technology issues. Also, in conjunction with Dalhousie's Industry Liaison and Innovation Office, the Institute sometimes offers a student placement program in intellectual property and commercialization. Its faculty members provide graduate supervision to students interested in the developing field of technology law, and are active in law and technology organizations, such as IT.Can and the International Society for Law and Technology. Faculty members of the institute are writers of the English edition of IT.Can bi-weekly newsletter. The Institute hosts an Eminent Speakers Series, which brings leading IT lawyers and academics to Dalhousie to share their expertise. The Institute is home to the Canadian Journal of Law and Technology, co-edited by Professors Currie and Coughlan. The CJLT is the pre-eminent technology law review in Canada.

Classes Offered:

- Law and Technology
- Internet and Media Law
- Privacy Law
- Intellectual Property Law
- Information Technology Transactions
- Entertainment Law
- Intellectual Property and Commercialization Placement
- Special Topics on Intellectual Property (IPII)
- Copyright Law
- Patent law

Students also have the opportunity to pursue specialized interests in fields such as criminal law, health law and alternate dispute resolution, as they relate to law and technology.

Marine & Environmental Law Institute

Location: Schulich School of Law
6061 University Avenue
PO Box 15000
Halifax, NS B3H 4R2
Phone: 902 494-1988
Fax: 902 494-1316
Email: MELAW@dal.ca
Website: <http://www.dal.ca/law/MELAW>

The Institute, which is housed in the Law School, carries out research capacity-building and consultancy activities and also directs the MELP academic specialization. MELAW provides a specialization in marine and/or environmental law to JD students. In addition to their scholarly research and publication activities, MELAW faculty, associates and staff carry out research projects and provide advisory services to agencies of the United Nations, international non-governmental organizations, and regional organizations as well as assisting government departments, private sector institutions and non-governmental organizations in Canada and overseas.

The Marine & Environmental Law Institute is also the editorial office of the Ocean Yearbook and the Journal of Environmental Law and Practice (JELP). The Ocean Yearbook is a major international interdisciplinary annual, devoted to ocean affairs published in collaboration with the International Ocean Institute in Malta. Dalhousie law students have the chance to gain experience working as research assistants on the Institute's research projects and workshops, and assisting with editing the Ocean Yearbook. JELP is the leading environmental law journal for practitioners and academics in Canada.

MELAW supports student collaboration in addressing environmental issues through the Environmental Law Students Society and the East Coast Environmental Law Association, a non-governmental organization dedicated to environmental law education and advocacy. MELAW encourages interdisciplinary collaborations within the Dalhousie community including the School for Resource and Environmental Studies (SRES), the College of Sustainability, the Marine Affairs Program (MAP), the International Development Studies (IDS) Program, the Centre for Foreign Policy Studies, the Ocean Tracking Network (OTN) led by the Department of Oceanography and the recently established Institute for Ocean Research Enterprise (IORE). MELAW also promotes national collaborations, for example, through the Ocean Management Research Network (OMRN). International linkages include among others, the Global Forum on Oceans, Coasts and Islands and the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law as well as numerous sister institutions in Asia, Caribbean, Europe, South America and the United States.

Minerals Engineering Centre

Director: Josh Leon, PhD, PEng
Location: G Building, Sexton Campus
1360 Barrington Street
PO Box 15000
Halifax, NS B3H 4R2
Phone: (902) 494-3955
Fax: (902) 494-3506
Email: mec@dal.ca
Website: <http://minerals.engineering.dal.ca>

The Minerals Engineering Centre was established from the Laboratory for the Investigation of Minerals. The Minerals Engineering Centre provides research, analytical and advisory services to industries, universities, and government bodies in Atlantic Canada, Canada and International. The Centre is located in G Building on Sexton Campus and is affiliated with the Materials Engineering program. The services offered include:

- Sample preparation of ores, soils, silts, rocks, cores, clay fraction and wood pellets
- Size analysis, including screening, sieving, and sub-sieve analysis
- Minerals separation using dense liquids
- Physical and chemical analytical methods using atomic adsorption, XRD, ICP-OES, AA, x-ray fluorescence spectographic, wet chemical techniques and carboy/sulphur analysis
- Analysis of samples including geological, metalliferous ores, industrial minerals, coals, metals, alloys and water
- Mineral processing test work covering the whole range of investigative techniques from bench scale to pilot plant, including crushing, grinding, classification, gravity separation, dense medium separation, magnetic separation, electrostatic separation, flotation, flocculation, thickening, filtration, and drying
- Evaluation of biomass fuels calorific value of raw material and wood pellet.

The Minerals Engineering Centre provides opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students to learn various analytical and testing techniques applicable in their course of studies. It also offers services to faculty members to assist in their teaching and research activities.

Further information may be obtained from the Director of the Centre.

Norman Newman Centre for Entrepreneurship

Director: Ed Leach, BComm (Dalhousie), MBA (Ivey), PhD (Nova Southeastern)
Coordinator: Paulette Dun
Entrepreneur in Residence: Brian Lowe
Lead Researcher: Mary Kilfoil
Phone: (902) 494-6975
Website: <http://entrepreneurship.dal.ca>

The mission of Norman Newman Centre for Entrepreneurship (NNCE) is "To build a vibrant entrepreneurial culture among students, faculty and the community at large that embraces innovation in creating value for society led by leaders who manage with integrity, focus on sustainability and make things happen."

This will be accomplished by:

- Supporting the academic programs and courses taught within the Rowe School of Business

- Supporting the entrepreneurial community.
- Providing opportunities for Dalhousie students to work with the entrepreneurial community.
- Facilitating the incubation of student business ideas.

The NNCE is attached to the Rowe School of Business, within the Faculty of Management, Dalhousie University. NNCE promotes entrepreneurship in its many forms, through innovative curriculum, applied research and collaborative extension work (outreach). Our definition of entrepreneurship is broad and includes the development or growth of enterprises for profit, for social benefit and for sustainability. Our research is field-based and involves working with real ventures, on real projects, using state-of-the-art methodologies. Our extension work is multi-disciplinary and ranges from internships with entrepreneurs to collaborations with other faculties throughout the university.

All of our programs are designed to enhance the student's entrepreneurial knowledge, skills, and networks. In addition to supporting technology and technical start-ups through mentoring, coaching and training efforts, the NNCE will provide mentoring, coaching and training to entrepreneurial students, create exemplars of technology and technical entrepreneurship through research projects and further expand the relationship with the business community.

Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Research Resource (NMR3)

Director: J. K. Rainey, BSc, MSc, PhD
 Facility Coordinator: M. D. Lumsden, BSc, PhD
 Solid-state NMR Coordinator: U. Werner-Zwanziger, BSc, PhD

Established in 1982 with assistance from the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council, the Resource is located in the Department of Chemistry and is used by faculty, researchers and graduate students in all Maritime universities, the NRC, local industry and many Dalhousie Departments. It is concerned with applications of magnetic resonance spectroscopy to problems in chemistry, materials science, biology, biochemistry and related areas. Its current instrumentation includes Bruker, Avance 300 and Avance 500 NMR spectrometers for liquids and Bruker Avance DSX 400 and Avance 700 NMR spectrometers for solids. NMR³ users also have direct access to a Bruker Avance III 700 NMR spectrometer with cryoprobe capabilities for liquids experiments. The Avance 500 and Avance 700 NMR spectrometers were installed in 2003 with funding from NSERC, the Canadian Foundation for Innovation and the Atlantic Innovation Fund. The cryoprobes on the Avance III 700 were purchased in 2009 by Dalhousie University through an Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency Grant. The Resource offers facilities for hands-on use by researchers and also provides NMR spectra and expertise to scientists throughout the Atlantic Region and beyond.

For more information see: <http://nmr3.chemistry.dal.ca>.

Trace Analysis Research Centre

Director: A. Doucette, BSc, PhD

The Trace Analysis Research Centre (TARC) was established in 1971 with the assistance of a grant from the National Research Council. Its mission is to train analytical chemists and, through research, to contribute to the advancement of analytical chemistry. Members of TARC from Dalhousie and associated institutions comprise a group with expertise in a wide range of chemical analysis techniques in areas such as spectroscopy, chromatography, mass spectrometry, electrochemistry, and nuclear analytical chemistry.

Resources and Services

Advising and Access Services Centre (AASC)

Our academic advising team provides advising, academic planning and personal coaching to current Dalhousie University students. The Advising and Access Services Centre is also Dalhousie's focal point for expertise on student accessibility and accommodation. As part of our ongoing efforts to facilitate a successful transition to and throughout your university experience, we offer several points of contact for students, including: summer transitions/orientation programs; ABLE @ Dal - a workshop exclusively for students with disabilities; and one-on-one advising appointments. Our programs are delivered through a "coaching as advising" model to help students develop strategies for academic success from first-year to graduation.

We help you build on your ability to make decisions that positively impact your academic and career success. We promote the Learn Well @ Dal philosophy by providing accessible and thorough advising and coaching for students accessing our services.

Early consultation is encouraged to ensure appropriate planning for any of your needs that may include accommodations. AASC advisors meet with you to determine areas to facilitate your success, and if accommodations are required, we ensure those accommodations are put into place by working with your course instructors.

For further information, please visit our website www.dal.ca/learnwell, call (902) 494-3077 or email access@dal.ca.

Alumni Association/Alumni Relations

The Alumni Association is comprised of over 110,000 graduates of Dalhousie University. A global network of volunteers keeps alumni informed and involved with the university. By providing many programs and services, the Association fosters a strong relationship between Dalhousie and its alumni.

Dalhousie alumni play a vital role in the health and future of the university. Many alumni return to Dalhousie regularly to hire graduating students. They also serve as advocates, ambassadors and student mentors. The financial support provided by our alumni helps ensure that Dalhousie will continue to provide exceptional post-secondary education to future generations.

The Alumni Association's Board of Directors works with the Dalhousie Alumni Relations Office, located in the Macdonald Building (902 494-8801/1-800-565-9969/alumni@dal.ca). Together, the Association and Alumni Relations strive to identify opportunities for alumni involvement, and to foster an environment that invites alumni to participate fully in Dalhousie's well-being. Visit the website at www.dal.ca/alumni.

Athletics and Recreational Services

Dalhousie offers a wide array of programs, facilities and services to suit the diverse sport, recreation and wellness needs of our students. Located on the Studley Campus, Dalplex is the university's primary fitness centre. Dalplex membership is included in full-time student fees, so students can simply bring their DalCard and swipe it in the turnstile for access to: the Cardio Plus Centre; two climbing facilities; two weight rooms; more than 35 weekly fitness classes; an eight-lane, 50m indoor pool; a 1/6-mile indoor track; drop-in times for recreational basketball and volleyball; racquet courts; an outdoor tennis and beach volleyball court; and the Fun Zone play area for children. The F. H. Sexton Memorial Gymnasium includes a fitness centre, a gym with hardwood courts, group fitness classes, two squash courts, and change rooms with lockers for easy access for students on the Sexton Campus. The Langille Athletic Centre is the sport and recreation facility for students on the Agricultural Campus.

Athletics and Recreational Services also offers many climbing, fitness, and outdoor recreation programs, classes, and trips each term, along with a broad range of intramural leagues and tournaments. Intramural sports are fun, free and an excellent way to meet other students. Sports offered include soccer, flag football and hockey in the fall, to curling, basketball and inner tube water polo in the winter term-and that's just the tip of the iceberg! Dal offers you the opportunity to take part in more than 20 different recreational and competitive sports clubs, which are organized and run by students. The Rams varsity program represents the Agricultural Campus, offering competitive teams in badminton, basketball, women's rugby, soccer, women's volleyball, and woodsmen. The Tigers varsity program on the Halifax campuses consists of 14 teams (men's and women's basketball, cross country, hockey, soccer, swimming, track and field, and volleyball) that compete regionally in the Atlantic University Sport (AUS) conference and nationally in Canadian Interuniversity Sport (CIS). For more information about sport, fitness and recreation opportunities at Dalhousie visit www.athletics.dal.ca.

Black Student Advising Centre (BSAC)

The Centre strives to foster a sense of community among ALL students, especially those who are of black/African descent. The BSAC hosts programs such as peer and professional mentorship, in-house tutoring and writing support as well as events to promote intercultural awareness. Providing confidential counselling services, personal and community support, advocacy, and relevant resource materials are a few of the roles of the BSAC advisor. The advisor also provides information about scholarships, bursaries and employment, and makes referrals to additional resources for student success. The BSAC includes a study space, a small computer lab and a lounge. For more information, drop by the Centre on the second floor of 1321 Edward Street, contact us at (902) 494-6648 or bsac@dal.ca or visit us online at

Career and Leadership Development Centre (CLDC)

The Career and Leadership Development Centre (CLDC) assists you in:

- exploring a full range of career and work possibilities that match your career goals;
- preparing job-search documents to present yourself effectively as a candidate for employment;
- obtaining information on employment opportunities and prospective employers;
- connecting with career opportunities through campus interviews, job and volunteer listings, referrals, direct application, networking, job search events, publications, and/or information technology; and
- developing and maintaining relationships with organizations that provide career development and employment opportunities for you.

The Co-Curricular Record (CCR) is a document that officially recognizes your accomplishments and experiential learning outside the classroom. The CCR program is available to all Dalhousie students and acknowledges your accomplishments in leadership, campus and community engagement, course-related service learning or experiential learning, awards and recognition, and training and development. Visit <http://www.dal.ca/ccr> for more information.

The CLDC also runs the free DALConnects leadership certificate program for students interested in building stronger connections with their community and learning about leadership through volunteering. Participants are paired with community organizations for volunteer opportunities and attend various workshops on leadership. Visit <http://www.dal.ca/dalconnects> for more information.

Drop by the CLDC on the fourth floor of the Student Union Building in Halifax or in the Dairy Building on the Agricultural Campus, or visit us online at <http://www.dal.ca/cldc> for more information on programs and services.

Centre for Learning and Teaching

The Centre for Learning and Teaching (CLT) works in partnership with the Provost's office, academic units, faculty members, and graduate students to enhance the practice and scholarship of learning and teaching at Dalhousie University. CLT takes an evidence-based approach to advocating for effective learning and teaching practices, curriculum planning, services to support the use of technology in education, and institutional policies and infrastructure to enhance the Dalhousie learning environment. For further information, teaching resources, or a confidential consultation, you are invited to contact the Centre for Learning and Teaching, located at Suite G90, Killam Library, 6225 University Avenue, (902) 494-1622, CLT@dal.ca, or you can visit the CLT website at: www.learningandteaching.dal.ca

Programming: Workshop series, presentations, discussion groups, and demonstrations are scheduled to address the full spectrum of educational issues, including curriculum design, evaluation of student learning, teaching and learning strategies, e-learning and the effective integration of classroom technology.

Confidential Consultations: Educational developers at CLT provide confidential consultation services to teaching assistants, faculty, and administrators on a wide range of learning and teaching issues.

Annual Events: On an annual basis, CLT coordinates New Academic Staff Orientation, TA Day, Teaching Dossier Workshops, and the Dalhousie Conference on University Teaching and Learning that brings together presenters from across the University and the country to explore issues related to specific themes.

Classroom Planning: CLT offers expertise and support to the university in the areas of classroom design, media production, presentation technology, and technical services:

- Video and Audio Production Services offers a full range of creative and production services for educational or other academic purposes.
- Technical Services provides expert advice on the design and installation of classroom technology systems, system programming, video conferencing and system repairs.

Teaching Awards: CLT administers several university-wide teaching awards, including the Dalhousie Alumni Association Award of Excellence for Teaching, Early Career Faculty Award of Excellence for Teaching, Contract and Sessional Instructor Award of Excellence for Teaching, President's Graduate Student Teaching Award, Educational Leadership Award for Collaborative Teaching, Academic Innovation Award, Award for Excellence in Education for Diversity, and the Award for Excellence in Graduate Supervision.

Certificate in University Teaching and Learning: The Certificate program is offered to graduate students by the CLT in partnership with the Faculty of Graduate Studies. The purpose of the program is to assist academic departments in preparing students for their teaching responsibilities and to enhance their professional development opportunities for both academic and non-academic careers.

Student Ratings of Instruction (SRI): Higher education institutions in Canada and abroad encourage faculty to use teaching evaluations to rate their teaching for effectiveness. The CLT is responsible for the administration of the university-wide Student Ratings of Instruction. The ratings are administered online towards the end of each term. Quantitative and qualitative data are collected and the opportunity for departments and individual instructors to add questions to the form is available. Students may access the results of the universal questions, Part A of the form, when instructors consent to release the results of their own course(s).

Grants: CLT offers a number of Teaching and Learning Grants each year for instructors to develop and evaluate new teaching methods, curriculum innovation, and teaching with technology opportunities. The Centre also organizes the Change One Thing Challenge award, inviting instructors to submit their student engagement ideas that they have implemented into their teaching. The CLT Travel grants provide financial assistance to faculty members to travel to a teaching and learning conference.

Publications: The CLT newsletter, Focus on University Teaching and Learning, is published three times a year and is available online on the CLT website (www.learningandteaching.dal.ca). CLT's lending library provides resources on topics related to teaching. CLT's LibGuide of links to electronic sources can be found at: <http://dal.ca/libguides.com/clt> eLearning: The eLearning team with CLT offers eLearning advice and support to the Dalhousie community. With two experienced instructional designers, the eLearning team is available to offer guidance with both online and blended/hybrid course initiatives.

Counselling Services

As a student you'll find that most of the time you can deal with the everyday issues that pop up while attending university. But life can sometimes challenge you in unexpected ways. And when it does, Dalhousie Counselling Services can help. We can help you resolve problems and learn new skills in a confidential, supportive environment. Also, if you are struggling with your classes or assignments and suspect you may have a learning disability, staff in Counselling can pre-screen for learning disabilities, attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) and/or Asperger's disorder, and can suggest various learning strategies that you may find helpful. Career Counselling is a confidential and collaborative process we offer, in which you work with a career counsellor who assists you in your educational and career decision-making.

Counselling is provided by professionally trained counsellors and psychologists and is available for individuals and on a group basis.

For information about the making an appointment, hours of operation or any of the other services, programs and events provided by Counselling Services, please visit us online at www.dal.ca/counselling.

If you have feelings of depression, anxiety or stress, but you're not in Halifax or are uncomfortable about sitting down one-on-one with a counsellor, you can register for SHIFT, an online self-help program at www.dal.ca/shift. It includes modules that you work through at your own pace, along with phone or email contact with a program coach.

Dal Allies/LGBTQ Support

At Dalhousie we encourage and support a respectful and inclusive campus community. Allies work with students, staff and faculty to offer programs, services, training, support, referrals and resources to members of the Dalhousie Rainbow community. For confidential discussions feel free to contact Dalhousie's Peer Ally (peerally@dal.ca). We can help, if you:

- question (or have questions about) sexuality or gender identity and need information
- need support in coming out
- need help dealing with issues you are experiencing on campus
- want to be yourself and not have to hide your identity when seeking services or support
- want to discuss issues without fear of judgment

Contact us dalally@dal.ca or visit us online at www.dal.ca/dalally for more information.

DalCard

The DalCard is your university identification card that has many uses on and off campus. It must be presented at officially scheduled examinations, to receive bursary or scholarship cheques and to use library facilities. It also functions as an access pass to Dalhousie athletic facilities including Dalplex, your meal hall pass with a meal plan and a door key to residence if you live on campus. Your DalCard can also be used as a debit card at the Bookstores, for printing and photocopying, for laundry in residence and at a variety of on and off campus vendors.

The DalCard Office is located at 6230 Coburg Road. Students on the Sexton campus may obtain their DalCard at the Student Service Center, B Building, 1360 Barrington Street.

On the Agricultural Campus students can obtain their DalCards at the Enrolment Services Center located in the Cox Institute, Room 100.

See dal.ca/dalcard for more information.

Dalhousie Arts Centre

Designed as a multipurpose facility, the Dalhousie Arts Centre is home to the Rebecca Cohn Auditorium, Dalhousie Art Gallery, and the Fountain School of Performing Arts. The Arts Centre is an integral part of the cultural experience in our community and stands as the only arts complex of its kind in Nova Scotia.

Of the numerous performing arts spaces in the Dalhousie Arts Centre, the Rebecca Cohn Auditorium is the most familiar and prestigious. The 1,040 seat concert hall is the home of Symphony Nova Scotia, as well as the venue of choice for a wide variety of performers ranging from Ballet Jorgen, Just For Laughs, Indigo Girls, Serena Ryder, and the Trews to name a few. Other performing and visual arts spaces in the Arts Centre include: The Sir James Dunn Theatre (194 seats), the David Mack Murray Theatre, the MacAloney Room, and the Art Gallery.

The Dalhousie Art Gallery offers the public access to national and international touring exhibitions and initiates many ambitious and exciting exhibition programs.

The Fountain School of Performing Arts maintains a full production schedule including student theatre and music productions, faculty recital series and weekly student noon-hour recitals. Further information on the Fountain School of Performing Arts can be found at dal.ca/performingarts.

Dalhousie Multifaith Centre

The Dalhousie Multifaith Centre strives to explore the fundamental issues and concerns of the world from a religious perspective in a setting that encourages open and free discussion, values the raising of questions and doubts, and appreciates divergent histories, attitudes, options, and values. A complete education addresses the whole person: body, mind, and spirit.

The Centre is a non-threatening space where students, staff, and faculty can address the basic questions of meaning and purpose in their lives - no matter what their faith, philosophy, or doubt may be.

For more information about the services and supports we offer, or to speak with a chaplain, drop by the Centre at 1321 Edward Street or visit us online at www.dal.ca/dmc.

Dalhousie Student Union

Every Dalhousie student is automatically a member of the Dalhousie Student Union. The Student Union is recognized by an agreement with the University Administration and by an Act of the Nova Scotia legislature as the single voice of Dalhousie students. All student activities on campus are organized through the Student Union, and the Student Union is the focus of all student representation. The business of the Student Union is conducted by a Council made up of 40 members. Every student is represented by one or more representatives of their faculty, elected within their faculty in the spring. As well, a number of other constituency groups are represented on the Council because they are uniquely affected by many campus issues. Also on the Council are the student representatives elected to the Senate and Board of Governors.

One of the most important resources of the Student Union is the Student Union Building (SUB) located at 6136 University Avenue between Seymour and LeMarchant Streets. The SUB, which is owned by the University and administered, managed and controlled by the Student Union and is paid for through Student Union fees, was opened in 1968 as a centre for student activity on campus. The Student Union Building provides a wide range of services for students including the Student Advocacy Service, Travel Cuts, The Grawood, Campus Copy, food services, and much more. Every student has the opportunity to take advantage of the Union's financial, physical and organizational resources. Students have an opportunity to become involved in committees dealing with various student issues. The DSU also offers over 175 clubs, societies and organizations for students to participate in. All students are invited to satisfy their curiosity by visiting the Student Union Council offices. The Student Council office is located on the second floor of the SUB in room 222 and is open from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm Monday through Friday, telephone number (902) 494-1106 or email dsu@dal.ca. Check out the website at www.dsu.ca, or my.dsu.ca.

Dalhousie Student Union Health and Dental Plan

The DSU Health and Dental Plan is provided to all full time students that begin their studies in the fall term. The fee for the DSU Health and Dental Plan is billed to each student's account and is compulsory unless the student has comparable private health insurance. If students have comparable coverage, they may be eligible to opt out of the DSU Health and Dental Plan during the appropriate opt out period. Please contact the DSU Health Plan Office for the opt out period dates.

All part-time, distance, co-op, and students who begin their studies in January are not automatically billed and enrolled for the DSU Health and Dental Plan and must manually opt in during the appropriate opt in period. Students are also eligible to add immediate family members to the plan during the opt in period by completing an application and paying an additional fee each year.

The DSU Health and Dental Plan Office is located in the basement of the Student Union Building at 6136 University Avenue. The Office is open Monday-Friday 9:30 am-4:30 pm. Should you need to contact the office please phone (902) 494-2850 or email dsuhealth@dal.ca. Visit the website for more information regarding coverage, opt out/in procedures and deadlines www.studentvip.ca/dsu.

Dalhousie Student Union International Health Plan

The DSU International Health Plan is provided to all international students. Please note that all co-op students are not billed and enrolled for the International Health Plan and must opt in should they wish to have coverage. The fee for the DSU International Health Plan is billed to each student's account and is compulsory unless the student has comparable private health insurance or MSI. If students have comparable coverage or MSI, they may be eligible to opt out (cancel) of the DSU International Health Plan during the appropriate opt out period. Please contact the DSU Health Plan Office for the opt out period dates.

Students are also eligible to add immediate family members to the plan when they arrive in Nova Scotia by completing an application and paying an additional fee.

The DSU Health and Dental Plan Office is located in the basement of the Student Union Building at 6136 University Avenue. The Office is open Monday-Friday 9:30 am-4:30 pm. Should you need to contact the office please phone (902) 494-2850 or email dsuhealth@dal.ca. More information regarding coverage, opt out/in procedures and deadlines is available at www.studentvip.ca/dsu.

Housing/Residence Services

The University is pleased to guarantee residence in University-owned properties for all new Dalhousie undergraduate students who complete the residence application process by June 30th. It's important that students planning to attend Dalhousie think well in advance about their accommodation needs.

Students should be aware of several important points of reference in regard to residence accommodation. Upon admission to a program of study, all students will receive university residence information. They will also be asked to pay an admission deposit. It's important to apply to residence (online) and to pay the admission deposit promptly as the dates these are received will determine when the Residence Application is considered. Residence applications will not be considered from individuals who have not gained admission to a program of study, or paid their admission deposit and residence application fee.

Students with disabilities are encouraged to contact the Residence Office at (902) 494-1054, or email: residence@dal.ca, for information and assistance. Students with disabilities are also encouraged to contact Advising and Access Services prior to moving into residence.

The traditional style residences at Dalhousie are chiefly for undergraduate students. All students living in traditional style residences are required to purchase one of the meal plan options available.

The information below gives a description of 1. traditional on-campus residences, 2. non-traditional on-campus residences, which includes apartment style housing owned by the university, 3. the services offered by the Off-Campus Housing office, and 4. general information. For information on residence fees, see the Fees section of the Calendar.

It is the responsibility of the individual student in all cases to make a separate online application to the university housing of her/his choice.

Traditional On-Campus Residence

Studley (Main) Campus

Howe Hall

Howe Hall is centrally located on Studley Campus and is the largest residence. Howe Hall is broken into six houses: Bronson House (1959), Cameron House (1967), Fountain House (2002), Henderson House (1964), Smith House (1958), Studley House (1967). Each house has its own identity and student government. The houses are all co-ed and feature a single and double (two single beds) rooms. Facilities include a 24-hour front desk, dining hall, television lounges, kitchenettes, a large multi-function study area/common lounge, laundry rooms, hockey equipment and bike storage room.

Shirreff Hall

Shirreff Hall provides accommodation to 440+ students. Located in a quiet corner of the campus, it is minutes from classes, the library, Dalplex and other facilities. Shirreff Hall is divided into four areas: the Annex, Newcombe House (female only), Old Eddy and New Eddy. Old Eddy and New Eddy have mostly single and double rooms while Newcombe and the Annex have single rooms only.

Shirreff Hall offers a dining room, an elegant library and visitors' lounge, study areas, games room, television lounges, kitchenettes, laundry room, and 24-hour front desk. ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless), *local telephone service and *cable TV service are provided within each room. Students also have access to a piano.

* These services are subject to change.

Residence Houses

Dalhousie also has two residence houses, which are co-ed. Formerly single family homes, each house has kitchen, living room and washroom facilities, which are shared among the residents in the house. The character of these homes has been maintained as much as possible.

These houses have only single rooms, each with a bed, wardrobe, study desk, lamp and chair. Linen, cooking utensils and small appliances are not provided. The Residence Houses are now part of the Mini-Residence community. All houses require meal plans, ResNet (high speed Internet), *local telephone service and *cable TV service are provided in each room.

* These services are subject to change.

Risley Hall

Risley Hall is located on LeMarchant Street, behind the Student Union Building, and offers 490 single rooms, primarily to undergraduate students. Services include a dining room, laundry rooms, television lounges, and a 24-hour front desk. Each room comes equipped with ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless), *local telephone service and *cable TV service.

* These services are subject to change.

Lyall House, DeMille House, Colpitt House

These properties, which were former faculty offices, have been converted into three mini-residences with a shared courtyard. There are a total of 49 single rooms in a co-ed living environment. Like Residence Houses, these houses have all single rooms. Each room comes with a bed, wardrobe, study desk, lamp and chair. Each house has a kitchenette, living room and washroom facilities, which are shared among the residents in the house. All houses require meal plans. Each room comes with ResNet (high speed internet/wireless), * local telephone service and *cable TV service.

LeMarchant Place

LeMarchant Place opened in the 2014/2015 Academic Year and is Dalhousie's newest residence.

The bottom two floors of LeMarchant Place are occupied by several student services, while the top five floors serve as a home for 326 students.

LeMarchant Place features a mix of two, three and four-bedroom suites. Single rooms sharing private bathrooms are available as well as accessible rooms. Each floor has a full communal kitchen, a lounge and a laundry room.

LeMarchant Place has wireless internet access throughout the building, as well as storage space for bicycles and hockey gear in the basement.

The residence space has its own secure lobby, separate from the other student services offices. Residents are able to collect their mail before getting onto one of two elevators dedicated specifically to the residence floors.

* These services are subject to change.

Sexton Campus

Gerard Hall

Gerard Hall is a 12-story traditional style co-ed residence that houses 241 students in single, super single, and double rooms. It is located in the heart of downtown Halifax on the corner of Morris and Queen Streets. Gerard Hall offers laundry facilities, a big screen TV, DVD player and satellite access in the main lounge. Within residence rooms, ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless),* local telephone service and *cable TV service are provided. Gerard Hall residents commonly use the O'Brien Hall dining hall, only seconds away, or may use the dining halls in Howe, Risley or Shirreff Halls.

* These services are subject to change.

O'Brien Hall

O'Brien Hall is a co-ed residence located in the heart of downtown Halifax. There are approximately 115 Dalhousie students residing in a combination of single and double rooms in O'Brien.

Facilities include a dining hall and laundry facilities. Within residence rooms, ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless), *local telephone service and *cable TV service are provided.

* These services are subject to change.

Agricultural Campus - Truro

Trueman, Fraser and Chapman Houses all offer co-ed living with the option of same sex and quiet sections. These three houses are conveniently located around Horseshoe Crescent, within a few minutes walk of classes, labs, meal hall, the library, the farm and our athletic center. Residence is a great place to meet new friends while developing a good study routine. Meal plans are mandatory. Each room is equipped with ResNet (high speed internet/wireless), *local phone and *cable TV service.

* These services are subject to change.

Fraser House

Fraser House accommodates 116 students in single, super single, and double rooms. Services include comfortable lobby area, TV/games lounge, quiet/study lounge, laundry room and kitchenette. Fraser House has a small all-male section.

Chapman House

Chapman House accommodates 123 students in single, super single, and double rooms. Services include comfortable lobby area, TV/games lounge, quiet/study lounge, laundry room and kitchenette.

Trueman House

Trueman House accommodates 73 students in single, super single and double rooms. It is the smallest house in the complex and tends to offer quieter atmosphere. Services include comfortable lobby area, TV/games lounge, two small quiet/study lounges and a laundry room.

Non-Traditional On-Campus Housing

Studley (Main) Campus

Glengary Apartments

Located on the Studley Campus on Edward Street, Glengary Apartments is a four-storey brick building offering co-ed accommodation for 40+ students.

Glengary has 12 furnished apartments. Each apartment includes a kitchen, living room and bathroom. There are also four furnished bachelor apartments, which are always in high demand. Laundry facilities are located in the basement, where there is also a limited amount of storage space. ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless), *local telephone and *cable TV service are provided in all apartments.

* These services are subject to change.

Meal Plans are not mandatory, but may be purchased for use at any dining hall on campus.

Sexton Campus

Graduate House

This residence is home to 13 returning students, normally in single rooms. It is located next door to O'Brien Hall and is a short walk from Gerard Hall on Morris Street. ResNet (high speed Internet/wireless), *local telephone service and *cable TV service are provided in each room.

* These services are subject to change.

Meal plans are not mandatory but may be purchased for use at any dining hall on campus including O'Brien Hall, which is next door.

Agricultural Campus - Truro

Trueman House Mature/Graduate Unit

Located on the ground level in Trueman House, this unit accommodates 12 students in single and super single rooms. Services include a fully equipped kitchen, tv lounge and laundry room (shared with all students living in Trueman House). Each room is equipped with ResNet (high speed internet/wireless), local phone and cable tv service. A meal plan is not mandatory

Living Off-Campus

Dalhousie's Off-Campus Housing has a website dal.ca/och. The site features a wide variety of housing resources available for students on both the Halifax and Truro campuses.

There is an Off-Campus Housing office for the Halifax campuses located in Risley Hall and offers help to students in finding off-campus accommodations.

The Off-Campus Housing office provides centralized information on available housing in the Halifax metro area including apartments, shared accommodations, rooms, condos and houses. Telephones for calling landlords and material such as maps and transit schedules are available at the office.

Based on the relatively low vacancy rate in Halifax, it is advised that students start looking for off-campus housing well ahead of the academic year.

General Information

A non-refundable $50 fee is payable when applying for residence. Please note that you will not be able to submit an application without paying the $50 non-refundable deposit.

All new Dalhousie undergraduate students are guaranteed a place in residence if they complete the residence application process by June 30th.

Information Technology Services (ITS)

Information Technology Services (ITS) empowers the success of students, faculty and staff through an overall focus on service, advising and consulting. ITS supports university instructional, research and administrative requirements. The department is responsible for all centrally managed computing, networking and telecommunications facilities including university email, My.Dal, the central information system (Banner), online learning systems, wired and wireless network connections and student computer labs.

Need help with a technical problem? Visit one of three Help Desks located on the Halifax campus, or our Help Desk at the Dalhousie Agricultural Campus in Truro.

With a range of new and emerging technologies, ITS staff will help you explore options to make the most of your experience at Dalhousie. See www.its.dal.ca for more information.

International Centre

The International Centre (IC) is committed to welcoming, supporting and serving the needs of new and continuing international degree-seeking and exchange students at Dalhousie. Advisors are available to meet with you on a variety of matters including finances, immigration, exchange opportunities, health insurance and personal issues. Referrals are made to other resources and services on campus when necessary. The IC organizes orientation activities that assist international and exchange students in adjusting to a new culture and in achieving their educational and personal goals. A variety of social, cultural and information programs are held throughout the year. During the fall and winter terms, an international student advisor is also available to meet, by appointment, at the Student Service Centre (Sexton Campus) at 1360 Barrington Street. Agriculture students may contact the International Student Coordinator on the Truro Campus at (902) 893-6905.

Student exchange and study-abroad services are facilitated by the Study Abroad and Exchange advisors at the IC. This branch of the office promotes student mobility by assisting departments and faculties with: the establishment of student exchange agreements; managing university-wide exchange programs; advising students on international study, work and volunteer opportunities; providing pre-departure and re-entry services; administering the Study Work International Fund (SWIF) and the George Burris Study in England Bursary; and maintaining the International Opportunities Resource Library.

Contact us at International.Centre@dal.ca or (902) 494-1566, visit us online at www.dal.ca/international, or drop by the Centre at 1246 LeMarchant Street.

Libraries

The Dalhousie University Libraries accommodate the needs of the undergraduate teaching programs, graduate and faculty research projects, and professional schools. The Dalhousie Libraries are: the Killam Memorial Library – Humanities, Social Sciences, Management, Computer Science, and Science; the Sir James Dunn Law Library, the Kellogg Health Sciences Library; the MacRae Library – Agriculture, and the Sexton Design and Technology Library – Engineering, and Architecture and Planning, as well as the University Archives and Geographical Information Sciences Centre (both located in the Killam Memorial Library).

Staff in all five libraries provide reference and research services. Access to materials outside of the Dalhousie Libraries is available through the Document Delivery Service. The libraries manage DalSpace, an institutional repository where many of Dalhousie's researchers' publications can be found. The libraries also use Open Journal Systems (OJS) software and provide digital publishing services to the university community.

All of the libraries have public access computers and WiFi. Most of the libraries have bookable study rooms for groups as well as individual carrels for private study.

The website libraries.dal.ca provides access to collections, databases, subject guides and other services. The Dalhousie Libraries also has a Copyright Office that provides guidance to students, faculty, and staff on copyright issues. The Killam and Sexton Libraries have Help Desks that offer general computer and software support, and 3D printing.

The Dalhousie Libraries are a member of Novanet, a network of all Nova Scotian university and college libraries, sharing a single automated online catalogue of the holdings of the member libraries. Users borrow from Novanet libraries upon presentation of their university ID card.

Mature Student Services

Applicants who are Canadian Citizens or permanent residents and 21 years of age or older, by the first day of classes, and are not eligible for admission on the basis of regular admission requirements, may apply for admission as a mature applicant. In order to be eligible, the applicant must either have no university-level study, or have attempted less than one year of transferable classwork. The student cannot have been in full-time university-level study for a minimum period of two years.

Applicants must provide a completed application for admission, high school or post-secondary transcripts, any other relevant documents (e.g. SAT scores, if available), and a letter outlining life and work experiences since last attending full-time study. Applicants will be expected to clearly outline their education goals and motivation to succeed at university study. All factors will be considered in the admission decision.

Admission under this policy is restricted to first year of undergraduate programs. Applicants must have completed grade 12 English (or equivalent) with a minimum grade of 65. Admission to some programs will require completion of other required subjects.

A student admitted on this basis may be restricted in the number of classes he/she can register in during the first year. Otherwise, these students have the same rights, privileges and responsibilities as other students within their program.

Services include pre-admission counselling and university preparation classes such as Writing Skills for Academic Study, Chemistry, Physics, Academic Math and Pre-Calculus. For more information call (902) 494-2375 or visit <http://collegeofcontinuinged.dal.ca>.

Native Post-Secondary Education Counselling Unit

The Native Post- Secondary Education Counselling Unit is open to students of First Nations descent. We can help you form support networks in your studies, and we also host social activities, cultural events and information sessions. Visit our Halifax office (6286 South Street, 2nd floor) to enjoy some coffee or tea, take advantage of advising with the Native Post-Secondary Liaison, and meet other Native students, or contact us by phone at (902) 494-8863. In Truro, Agriculture students can contact the Special Cohort Coordinator at havery@dal.ca. Visit www.dal.ca/native for more information.

Office of Human Rights, Equity & Harassment Prevention

The overall mandate of the Office of Human Rights, Equity & Harassment Prevention is to foster and support an inclusive working and learning environment where all members of the University community share responsibility for establishing and maintaining a climate of respect.

The Office is responsible for administering a number of University policies including: the Accommodation Policy; the Employment Equity Through Affirmative Action Policy; complaints based on the Statement on Prohibited Discrimination; the Personal Harassment Policy; and the Sexual Harassment Policy. The Human Rights & Equity Advisor and the Advisor, Harassment Prevention/Conflict Management also liaise with the Office of the Vice-President, Student Services, regarding the Code of Student Conduct.

Other initiatives in the Office of Human Rights, Equity & Harassment Prevention include education and training on topics such as diversity, accommodation, harassment awareness and prevention, conflict resolution and more. Workshops are offered regularly for students, faculty and staff.

The website for the Office of Human Rights, Equity & Harassment Prevention offers downloadable versions of each of the policies, information on the education and training opportunities offered, and additional resources including an annual Mosaic Calendar featuring a variety of religious and cultural holidays.

Registrar's Office

The Registrar's Office is responsible for high school liaison, admissions, awards and financial aid, registration, maintenance of student records, scheduling and coordinating formal examinations, and convocation. Of greater significance to students, however, is the role played by members of the staff who provide information, advice, and assistance. They offer advice on admissions, academic regulations and appeals, financial aid and budgeting and the selection of programs. In addition, they are prepared to help students who are not quite sure what sort of assistance they are looking for, referring them as appropriate to departments for advice about specific major and honours programs or to the office of Student Services or to specific service areas such as the Counselling Services Centre.

Students can access the services of the Registrar's Office at three locations. The main office is located in Room 133 of the Henry Hicks Academic Administration Building on the Studley Campus. Students attending classes on the Sexton or Agricultural Campus can also access Registrar's Office services in Building B (Student Service Centre), Sexton Campus or Cox Institute (Enrolment Services Centre), Agricultural Campus.

South House

A DSU service and Halifax's only full-time women's centre. A volunteer-driven, student-funded, gender-inclusive safe space for all members of the Dalhousie community. South House is a trans- and queer-positive, wheelchair-accessible space that offers a resource centre, library, and free meeting space for woman-positive and anti-oppression organizing and gathering. Visit us online at www.dalwomenscentre.ca or drop by the Centre on the first floor of 6286 South Street.

Student Advocacy Service

The Dalhousie Student Advocacy Service helps ensure that students receive fair and reasonable decisions on issues dealing with academic appeal and discipline matters. Our volunteer advocates advise students about their case, help them draft and edit any written submissions, prepare them for hearings and formal appeals, and provide support through the process and articulates matters of importance during the oral hearing. This year-round service is confidential and operated entirely by students. Contact us at the Student Union Building (Room 310), by phone at (902) 494-2205 or visit us online at www.dsu.ca.

Student Clubs and Organizations

Extracurricular activities and organizations at Dalhousie are as varied as the students who take part in them. Organizations range from small informal groups to large well organized ones; they can be residence-based, within faculties, or university wide and interest based. Some are decades old with long traditions, others arise and disappear as students interests change. A list of clubs, societies and organizations is available every fall to new students who are encouraged to select and participate, this list can be found at <http://tigersociety.dsu.ca>. If there is not a society that meets your interests, the Dalhousie Student Union encourages and will help you to make your own. For more information on DSU societies please contact the society coordinator at society.coordinator@dal.ca or by telephone at (902) 494-1106 or visit www.dsu.ca.

Student Dispute Resolution

Dalhousie's Office of Student Dispute Resolution works with students, community and campus partners to help resolve disputes in a restorative and respectful manner. Referrals come from Campus Security, Code of Conduct Complaints, Halifax Regional Police and the Crown Prosecutors Office (as part of the Dalhousie Restorative Justice Pilot Project) and from Residence Life Managers. Following the principles of respect, responsibility and community, we work with groups to help restore relationships and find satisfactory resolutions. Visit us online to find out more about the resources available through the Student Dispute Resolution office at www.dal.ca/think.

Student Health Promotion

Located on the second floor of 1246 LeMarchant Street, Student Health Promotion staff and volunteers can give you unbiased advice and information to help you live a healthier lifestyle. Find out more about quitting smoking, rethinking your alcohol and substance use, managing your stress, increasing your personal fitness, coping with eating disorders and many other areas of student wellness by contacting us by phone at (902) 494-6830 or visit us online at www.dal.ca/studenthealth.

Student Health Services

The University operates a medical clinic on the second floor of 1246 LeMarchant Street staffed by family doctors and nurses. Further specialists' services are available and will be arranged through Health Services when required. Student information collected by Health Services is completely confidential and may not be released without signed permission of the student.

Appointments are made during the clinic's open hours, from 8:30 am to 10 pm, Monday to Friday, and 11 am to 5 pm, Saturday and Sunday, by calling (902) 494-2171. In the event of an urgent medical problem, students may seek medical advice during clinic hours. After hours, students should seek assessment by calling 811 to speak to a registered nurse, or visit the local emergency room. The QEII emergency room on Summer Street is the closest emergency room for students on the Halifax campus. For students in Truro, the clinic accepts walk-in patients and appointments. For details on the hours the services are offered, please visit Health Services online via www.dal.ca/agstudentservices. Any student who has had a serious illness within the last 12 months, or who has a chronic medical condition, may wish to contact and advise Health Services; preferably with a statement from the doctor.

All students must have medical and hospital coverage. All Nova Scotia students are covered by the Nova Scotia Medical Services Insurance. All other Canadian students must maintain coverage from their home provinces. This is especially important for residents of any province requiring payment of premiums. All non-Canadian students must be covered by medical and hospital insurance prior to registration. Details of suitable insurance may be obtained from the Student Accounts office prior to registration. Further information is available online at www.dal.ca/healthservices.

Student Services

The Vice-President, Student Services (VPSS), is Dalhousie University's chief officer of student affairs. Working with an integrated team of specialists across campus, the office of the VPSS coordinates programs and delivers services in support of students' academic achievement, personal and professional development and community engagement.

Our efforts to enrich the Dalhousie student experience are focused in four key areas: Learning Connections; Community Connections; Wellness Connections; and Leadership and Career Connections. Within each area, professionally trained staff, counsellors and advisors are available to assist you at every step of your journey here at Dal, providing information, resources, programs and services that are tailored to your individual needs and consistent with your educational and life goals.

Studying for Success (SFS)

Our primary goal is to assist you in becoming a more efficient and effective learner. Studying for Success offers workshops to small groups of students to develop or enhance personal learning strategies and, when applicable, workshops are customized to focus on particular disciplines or fields of study ensuring that the workshop content is relevant to your needs.

Topics regularly covered include time management, getting the most from lectures, critical reading, problem-solving, preparing for and writing exams. Study Skills coaches offer personal coaching either by appointment or on a drop-in basis during regularly scheduled hours, and will refer students to other academic resources when appropriate. For further information, drop by our office at the Killam Library, call (902) 494-3077 to book an appointment or (902) 494-2468 to speak with the SFS coordinator, or visit us online at www.dal.ca/sfs.

University Bookstore

Dalhousie's Bookstores are all owned and operated by the university and service the needs of students, faculty, staff and the larger community surrounding Dalhousie.

The Bookstore offers school supplies and course materials in new, used and custom textbook format as well as digital and rental. In addition, the Bookstore is the go-to hub for your Tiger-inspired gear, like black and gold hoodies, t-shirts and scarves! Also popular is the Bookstore's grad gear, like class rings and frames.

The Bookstore offers custom screenprinting and embroidery on a wide array of clothing and giftware items. This service is popular amongst classes, societies, sports teams and other campus groups.

The Bookstore provides a number of supports to residence students, like a huge supply of Bed Bath & Beyond products for residence rooms, mini fridges and free delivery of textbooks to student's buildings before they arrive.

The Bookstore also offers opportunities for students to save money. Once you've purchased your textbooks, learn more about the Book Buyback program. If you're looking for an alternative to buying your textbooks, the Bookstore offers online textbook rental. The textbooks are shipped directly to you, and when you're finished, you simply ship them back.

When you pay for items at the Bookstore with your DalCard, 5% of the purchase price is put back on your account to use towards future purchases.

Learn more and order Bookstore products online at <http://www.dal.ca/bookstore>

University Secretariat

The University Secretariat provides professional and administrative support and advice to the Board of Governors and University Senate so as to facilitate their effective governance of the University.

The Secretariat manages, coordinates and informs the effective operation of the Board and Senate by:

- Supporting the operations of the University's governance bodies and their respective standing and ad hoc committees;
- Proposing and developing objectives and plans to establish and achieve priorities;
- Advising on governance issues and developing and implementing policies, procedures and processes that reflect governance best practices;
- Developing, implementing, managing and coordinating the University academic integrity, student discipline and academic appeals policies and processes, and maintaining official records relative to these processes;
- Serving as a repository for University policies and information and data on matters relating to University governance; and
- Facilitating communication and collaboration with key stakeholders.

Visit the website at www.secretariat.dal.ca

Writing Centre

The Writing Centre's programs recognize that students in all disciplines are required to write clearly to inform, persuade, or instruct an audience in term papers, laboratory reports, essay examinations, critical reviews and other academic assignments. Students benefit from discussing their work with supportive instructors and peer tutors.

The Centre currently offers a number of services. The main office in the Killam Library's Learning Commons allows students to obtain advice on writing issues. Tutors also work part of the week at Sexton and the Law School Library. Students on the Agricultural Campus can visit the Writing Centre on the main floor of the library. Seminars are held throughout the university year on topics such as essay writing, science writing, mechanics of writing, English as a second language issues, admission applications, etc.

Contact the Writing Centre by visiting the main office in the Killam Learning Commons, calling (902) 494-1963 or emailing at writingcentre@dal.ca. For more information, online writing resources or to book an appointment online, visit www.dal.ca/writingcentre.

Introduction

The following section of the calendar outlines the University Regulations on academic fees for both full-time and part-time students enrolled in programs of study during the fall, winter and summer terms. A section on University residence and housing fees is also included. Students wishing to register for the summer term should consult the summer school timetable online at www.dal.ca for information on registration dates and fees.

All fees are subject to change with approval of the Board of Governors of Dalhousie University. The 2015/2016 Academic Fee Schedule will be available in June 2015, at www.moneymatters.dal.ca.

NOTE: Student tuition fees and other fees published herein are applicable only to regular students admitted to a program through the normal application process. Other students who are admitted to Dalhousie under a special program or policy will be charged student tuition and other fees in accordance with such special program or policy. For further information regarding these fees, please contact Student Accounts or the Dean's office of the applicable faculty.

Students should make special note of the academic dates contained in the front section of the calendar as well as fee dates. Students should also be aware that additional fees and/or interest will be charged when deadlines for payment of fees as contained herein are not met.

All the regulations in this section may not apply to Graduate Students. Please refer to the Faculty of Graduate Studies section of the Graduate Calendar.

University Regulations

The following general regulations are applicable to all payments made to the University in respect of fees. Please refer to our website for additional information on payment options: www.moneymatters.dal.ca.

- Fees must be paid in Canadian funds by cash, electronic bank transfer, interac, negotiable cheque or money order.
- Money transferred to a student's account are not to exceed the annual charges associated with tuition and ancillary fees. Funding for off-campus and personal expenses is to be sent directly to the student. Overpayment on a student's account may result in funds being withheld and applied toward future term fees for up to one academic year.
- If payment by cheque is returned by the bank as non-negotiable, there will be an additional fee of $20 and the account will be considered unpaid. Furthermore, if the bank returns a cheque that was to cover payment of tuition, the student's registration may be cancelled and, if permitted to re-register, a late fee will apply.
- Accounts in arrears must be paid by cash, certified cheque, money order or interac prior to registration in a future term.

Admission Deposits

A non-refundable deposit of $200 is payable on acceptance to all new undergraduate and graduate programs. Undergraduate students admitted by April 20 are required to pay the deposit by May 15. Undergraduate students accepted after April 20 must pay the deposit within three weeks of receiving an offer of admission. Graduate students must pay the deposit within four weeks of receiving an offer of admission.

Undergraduate Medicine students are required to pay a $500 non-refundable, admission deposit.

International Dentistry, Qualifying Dentistry and Internetworking students are required to pay a $2,500 non-refundable admission deposit.

Admission deposits are later credited towards tuition fees for the applicable term.

Registration

A student is considered registered after selection of course(s).

Selection of course(s) is deemed to be an agreement by the student for the payment of all assessed fees.

Non attendance does not constitute withdrawal. Students must ensure that they cancel registration in all courses if they choose to withdraw.

Identification Cards (DalCard)

All full and part-time students should obtain identification cards upon registration and payment of appropriate fees. If a card is lost, a fee of $15 is charged. Regular session ID cards are valid until August 31.

Audit Courses

All students auditing a course pay one-half of the regular tuition fee plus full auxiliary fees, if applicable. In such cases, the student is required to complete the usual registration process.

A student who is registered to audit a course, who during the session wishes to change their registration to credit, must receive approval from the Registrar. This must be done on or before the last day for withdrawal without academic penalty. The same deadline applies for a change from credit to audit. Graduate students please see Section 6.6.4 for audit information.

Late Registration

Students are expected to register on or before the specified registration dates. Students wishing to register after these dates must receive the approval of the Registrar. A late registration fee of $50 will apply if registration and payment of fees has not been completed by specified dates. This fee is payable at time of payment and will be in addition to regular fees.

Course Changes and Withdrawals

Please consult Student Accounts for all financial charges and the Registrar's Office for academic regulations.

Students withdrawing from all courses must submit written notification to the Registrar's Office. Non attendance does not constitute withdrawal, you must ensure courses are dropped. Refunds due to class withdrawals will be effective the date a course(s) is dropped online at dalonline.dal.ca or written notification is received at the Registrar's Office. Please contact Student Accounts to have your refund processed.

In the Faculty of Health Professions, students who wish to withdraw from the University must obtain written approval from the appropriate school or college and submit the appropriate forms to the Registrar. Students in these faculties should continue to attend classes until their withdrawal has been approved.

Academic Fees

Note: These rates are for 2014/2015 (for information only)

Fee Schedule

Upon approval of the 2015/2016 academic fees, a complete schedule showing the payment schedule for academic fees and deposits will be made available. The official schedule will be available in June 2015 at www.moneymatters.dal.ca. Students are advised that fees are subject to change by approval of the Board of Governors, and it is likely that tuition and fees will increase during each year of study.

NOTE: Students registered in more than one program are required to pay separate academic fees for each program. Additional course specific auxiliary fees may apply, as well as fees for online courses (or programs) related to distance delivery.

Exchange Students

Outbound exchange students whose fees are paid to Dalhousie University will be assessed tuition and fees for 15 credit hours in their faculty.

International Students

Differential Fee

Registered students, who are not Canadian Citizens or permanent residents are required to pay an additional "Differential Fee" to a maximum of $4,224 per term, subject to increase in 2015/2016. There is a proportional charge for part-time international students. International Dentistry, Qualifying Dentistry and Internet working students are exempt. Graduate Students please see Section 5.7 of the Graduate Studies Calendar to determine the number of years a student is required to pay the differential fee.

If a student receives permanent resident status, the differential fee will not be assessed for the current term and beyond. In order to process a retroactive reimbursement of differential fees in a current term, acceptable proof of residency must be submitted to the Registrar's Office prior to the last business day of December, April, and August for each term.

Health Insurance

International students will be charged for an International Student Health Insurance Plan when they register. If a student already has comparable health coverage, they can apply to opt out of the International Student Plan at the DSU Health Plan Office before September 25, 2015. Costs for the health plan change annually. More details on the international student health plan costs and opt out process can be found at www.dsu.ca. Full-time students will also be assessed the extended DSU Health and Dental plans, see 11.F.2.

Health Insurance - International Students (2014/2015 rates, for information only)

- Single - $491 per year
- Family - $1,227 per year

Student Fees

In addition to tuition and course related fees, the following mandatory incidental fees may apply. These fees are non-refundable beyond the due date for each term. In cases of late cancellations or retro-active withdrawal, the mandatory incidental fees remain payable. Rates provided as information only, subject to change for 2015/2016.

Student Union Fee

Every student registered at Dalhousie is a member of the Student Union and required to pay a Student Union fee as part of their registration procedure. These fees have been approved by students in referenda and, along with other revenue of the Union, are allocated each year by the Student Council budget.

For information only, 2014/2015 full-time student union fees are $72.93 per term.

Health and Dental Insurance

Every fall term, full time students are assessed the DSU Health and Dental Plan. This provides extended coverage from September through August. The current rate is $253 per year.

Students with separate health insurance may apply to the DSU for reimbursement. For more information please contact the Student Union Office in Room 222 of the Student Union Building (SUB), phone: (902) 494-2850 or visit their website at www.dsu.ca.

Student Service Fee

Student Service provides and supports various Dalhousie Services including health services and athletics. For information only, 2014/2015 Student Service fee is $144.93 per term for full-time students.

The following services will be provided without additional charges unless specified:

- Change from Audit to Credit
- Confirmation of Enrolment
- Confirmation of Fee Payment
- Dalplex Membership
- Leave of Absence Fee
- Letter of Permission
- Replacement Tax Receipt
- Transcripts (maximum of five requested at one time)

All students are assessed a facilities renewal fee of $81.90 per term; $27.30 per term for part-time students. 2014/2015 rates provided for information only; subject to increase with approval from the Board of Governors.

University Bus Pass Fee (UPass)

All eligible, full-time students will receive a Metro-Transit bus pass (UPass). The fee in 2014/2015 is $147 and is effective September through April. Please refer to www.upass.dal.ca for further information.

Laboratory Deposits

A deposit for the use of laboratory facilities in certain departments is required. The deposit is determined and collected by these departments. Students will be charged for careless or willful damage regardless of whether or not a deposit is required.

Additional Student Fees

Departments may also charge additional fees on a cost recovery basis not included in the fee schedule. Examples include, but are not limited to, print or copy fees, transportation costs and material fees. Students registered in online courses and distance programs will be assessed additional fees for delivery of these courses.

Miscellaneous fees are charged as outlined in the table below.

Statements and Monthly Notices

Students with current activity will be issued electronic statements. Students will be notified through their official Dalhousie email account when a new statement is available. Subsequent monthly payment reminders will be sent to the student's official Dalhousie email address. Refer to www.moneymatters.dal.ca for more information.

Release of Student Financial Information

Student Accounts is often asked to disclose financial information on a student's account by parents and others so they can make accurate tuition payments.

University policy recognizes the financial account as belonging to the student and therefore, to protect student privacy, account information is considered confidential. For more information on granting permission for financial information to be released to a third party (such as a parent), please contact Student Accounts at (902) 494-3998 or in Truro at (902) 893-6361 www.moneymatters.dal.ca.

Payment

The payment of academic fees will be received at the Student Accounts Office located on the basement level of the Henry Hicks Academic Administration building, the Enrolment Services Centre on Sexton Campus or the Enrolment Services Centre, Truro.

For the convenience of students, Canadian cheques and money orders, payable to Dalhousie University, are accepted by mail. Fees paid by mail must be received by Student Accounts on or before the term due date to avoid late payment and/or delinquency charges.

The following regulations apply to the payment of academic fees. For further information on regulations regarding withdrawal of registration, please refer to II.K:

- All students must pay the applicable deposit in accordance with Section A.
- Those holding external scholarships or awards paid by, or through, Dalhousie must provide documentation of the scholarship or award before term fees are due.
- Those whose fees are paid by a government (or other agency) must have the third party billing form completed and submit to Student Accounts by September 25 or January 15 for the respective term. This form is available online at www.moneymatters.dal.ca
- Those paying the account balance by Canada Student Loan must negotiate the loan by September 25 or January 15 for the respective term. Interest will be charged after these dates and a late registration fee will apply.
- Those whose fees are paid by Dalhousie University staff tuition fee waiver must present the appropriate waiver form and pay applicable incidental fees by September 25 or January 15, for the respective term.
- Those who are Canadian citizens (or permanent residents), 65 years of age (or over) and enrolled in an undergraduate degree program will have their tuition fees waived, but must pay the applicable incidental fees.
- Scholarships or awards paid by, or through, Dalhousie University will be applied to academic and residence fees.
- When a Canada Student Loan, provincial loan or co-payable bursary is presented at the Student Accounts Office, any unpaid charges will be deducted.
- Fees cannot be deducted from salaries paid to students employed at Dalhousie University.
- Any payments made to a student account is first applied to past due balances.

Canada Student Loans

Students planning to pay by Canada Student Loan should apply to their province in April or May so that funds will be available by the time payment is required. The University will deduct fees/charges from the loan at the time of endorsement. Please contact the appropriate provincial office to determine eligibility as well as course load requirements. A late fee of $50 will apply if the loan is negotiated after September 25, 2015. (January 15, 2016 for students registered for winter term and May 13, 2016 for students registering for the summer term).

Provincial Bursaries and University Scholarships

These cheques are distributed by the Student Accounts Office. Any unpaid fees and/or temporary loans along with charges, if applicable, are deducted and payment will be issued following endorsement for any balance remaining. A valid Dalhousie University ID and Social Insurance Number must be presented in order to receive cheques. Please contact the appropriate provincial office to determine eligibility as well as courseload requirements for provincial bursaries.

For more information on student loans, bursaries or scholarships, inquiries should be directed to the Registrar's Office, Henry Hicks Academic Administration Building, Room 130.

Receipts

The amount of academic fees constituting an income tax credit is determined by Canada Revenue Agency.

A special income tax certificate (T2202A) will be available annually through Web for Student at dalonline.dal.ca no later than February 28 for the previous calendar year.

Refunds

Students withdrawing from all courses must submit written notification to the Registrar's Office. Non attendance does not constitute withdrawal, you must ensure courses are dropped. Refunds due to course withdrawals will be effective the date a course(s) is dropped online at www.dalonline.dal.ca or written notification is received at the Registrar's Office. Please contact Student Accounts to have your refund processed.

In the Faculty of Health Professions, students who wish to withdraw from the University must obtain written approval from the appropriate school or college and submit the appropriate forms to the Registrar. Students in these faculties should continue to attend class until their withdrawal has been approved.

Refund Conditions

Refunds will be processed as follows:

- a. Based on the withdrawal date, tuition is refunded based on percentages outlined in the refund schedule at www.moneymatters.dal.ca.
- b. No fee adjustment will be made for a student changing their degree or program as follows:

Regular (Sept - April) and Fall Terms	After September 25, 2015
Winter Term	After January 15, 2016
Summer Term	After May 13, 2016
- c. No refunds will be made for 30 days when payment has been made by personal cheque or 60 days for a cheque drawn on a bank outside of Canada.
- d. Refunds will be made to the appropriate Student Loan service provider if a student has paid with a student loan and no longer meets eligibility criteria.
- e. A student who is dismissed from the University, for any reason, is not entitled to a refund of fees.
- f. Refunds will be prorated on fees paid by Dalhousie scholarships and/or tuition waiver.
- g. A valid Dalhousie University ID must be presented in order for the student to collect a refund cheque.

Refund Schedule

The most current version of the refund schedule is available at www.moneymatters.dal.ca.

Important Information Regarding Refunds

- A portion of fees as outlined in the refund schedule will be assessed if withdrawal from a course occurs after September 25 (Fall Term) and January 15 (Winter Term). Withdrawals before these dates will be completely refunded, but no substitutions will be allowed from a financial perspective after these dates
- Non-attendance does not constitute withdrawal and fees will be payable.
- The refund schedule does not apply to the University of King's College Journalism Program.

- For financial charge inquiries, contact Student Accounts at (902) 494-3998 or Student.Accounts@dal.ca.

Delinquent Accounts

Accounts are considered delinquent when the balance of fees has not been paid by September 25 for the fall term or January 15 for the winter term.

Interest, at a rate set by the University, will be charged weekly on delinquent accounts for the number of days overdue.

Effective July 1, 2014 the rate of interest is 6.0% per annum, compounded monthly.

A student whose account is delinquent for more than 30 days will be denied University privileges including access to transcripts. A student will be reinstated upon payment of the fees outstanding, the arrears interest and a $50 reinstatement fee. Students will not be permitted to register in future terms until all outstanding amounts are paid in full. Subsequently, if the bank does not honour the payment, the student may be deregistered.

Graduating students whose accounts are delinquent on April 15 will not receive their degree/diploma parchment. For fall graduation the deadline is September 1. Transcripts are withheld until payment is received in full.

Accounts which become seriously delinquent may be placed in collection or further legal action may be taken against the individual. Students will be responsible for charges incurred as a result of such action.

Residence Fees

Residence rates vary depending on the location and style of accommodations available. For up-to-date residence options and rates, please visit www.dal.ca/residence. All residence rates include local telephone service with voice mail features, cable TV service and ResNet (high-speed Internet/wireless). Rates do not include the non-refundable $50 Residence Application Fee.

It is important to note that traditional residences have a mandatory meal plan; however, there are several options available for students. Traditional residences on the Halifax campuses include: Howe Hall, Risley Hall, Shirreff Hall, Gerard Hall, LeMarchant Place, O'Brien Hall, Mini Residences and Residence Houses. Traditional residences on the Truro campus include: Chapman House, Fraser House, and Trueman House. Non-traditional residence options on the Halifax campuses include: Glengary Apartments and the Grad House. On the Truro campus a section of Trueman House is reserved for non-traditional accommodations. Meal plans are not required in non-traditional residences but are recommended. For up-to-date meal plan options and rates, please visit www.dal.ca/foodservices.

Important:

- Once offered admission to an academic program of study at Dalhousie, students are eligible to submit a residence application. Application can be made within 48 hours of the $200 admission deposit being paid.
- Students must be registered full-time at Dalhousie to apply to residence.
- No refund will be made to any resident who is dismissed for misconduct. Discretionary power in exceptional circumstances remains with the Director, Residence Operations, in conjunction with the Director, Residence Life or their designates.
- All residence students, new and returning, who have received notification of their room assignment, must pay a $500 deposit to confirm their acceptance. The deposit is due within the time frame specified by the Residence Office.
- $250 of the $500 deposit is refundable if cancellation is received prior to August 1. No refunds are made after August 1.
- The $500 residence confirmation deposit can be paid by credit card (Mastercard, Visa, Amex) by visiting www.dal.ca/admissions.html. For more payment options, please visit www.dal.ca/admissions.html.

No residence room will be held based on post-dated or "insufficient fund" cheques.

Deposits or fees cannot be deducted from scholarships, fellowships, or similar awards.

Residence agreements are for eight-month terms (September – April). Please note, residences close during the December break.

Residence Term

The residence term commences the Sunday prior to Labour Day and ends on the last day of the examination period in the College of Arts and Science in April. Students must vacate the residence 24 hours after their last exam and residences are closed over the December break.

If required, an additional fee is payable by all residents who are registered in a Faculty where the academic session commences before or continues after the session of the College of Arts and Science. Special arrangements are to be made with the appropriate Residence Life Manager for accommodation for periods prior to or following the session as defined above.

Payment of Residence Fees

Payment may be made in full at registration or in two instalments. The first instalment must be paid in full by September 25, 2015. Interest is assessed weekly at a rate as set by the University and will be charged on all accounts outstanding after September 25, 2015 and on any second instalment outstanding after January 15, 2016. The student will not be permitted to register for another session until all accounts are paid in full. A student whose account is delinquent for more than 30 days will be denied university privileges including access to transcripts. The student will be reinstated upon payment of the fees outstanding, the arrears interest, and a $50 reinstatement fee. For additional information regarding outstanding or delinquent accounts, please see II. Fees, Section K.

All residence fees can be paid at the Student Accounts Office, the Student Service Centre (Sexton Campus), or online at www.dal.ca/admissions.html.

Students should make an appointment as soon as possible with the Assistant Manager of Student Accounts if they are having financial difficulties.

Residence Communications

All residences are wired for high-speed Internet/wireless, local telephone service and cable TV access.* The cost is included in residence fees. Check out the website at www.dal.ca/rescomm.

*These services are subject to change.

Financial Aid

Financial Aid

Government Student Loans

IMPORTANT: Please note that federal and provincial student loan regulations include stipulations for the Borrower in terms of the minimum course load, expressed as a percentage of the normal course load at the University, which the Borrower must carry in order to benefit from the program. This minimum must be maintained throughout the academic year, e.g., a student who wishes to receive either money or interest-free status under the Canada Student Loan Plan for the entire academic year must carry not fewer than 60 per cent of the normal course load (expressed in credit hours) for each term. Please note, to be eligible for provincial loan funding from Newfoundland, you must be registered in 80% of the normal class load. At Dalhousie, the normal credit hour load for student loan purposes is 30. The Borrower must carry not fewer than 18 credit hours, distributed equally between the terms, i.e., nine. If your particular program does not conform to this scheme, you should apply to Student Aid for funding for only that term in which your course load would fulfill this regulation. Federal and provincial rules can differ on this matter.

If you must drop or add courses, exercise care so as not to jeopardize your governmental student loan(s).

Addresses of Provincial Student Aid Authorities

Canadian students are to apply for government assistance to the appropriate agency in that province or territory in which the applicant is a bona fide resident.

Temporary Loans

The University has established a temporary loan program to assist all registered Dalhousie students with certain types of short-term financial difficulty when no other resource is available. Students must provide proof of their ability to repay the loan within the time period. (Loans are not made for tuition fee payment.) These loans have a short interest-free period, after which interest will be charged. Refer to the Temporary Loan Application for further details. Applications may be picked up in the Registrar's Office, Room 130, Henry Hicks Academic Administration Building, the Sexton Campus Student Service Centre, the Enrolment Services Centre (Agricultural Campus), or online at <http://www.dal.ca/moneymatters>

Awards

Scholarships, Bursaries, Awards, and Prizes

The Registrar's Office is responsible for:

- Undergraduate Scholarships
- Undergraduate Bursaries
- Undergraduate Awards and Prizes
- Convocation Medals

IMPORTANT NOTE: The University regularly reviews the policy governing undergraduate awards. Consequently, portions of the following statement of policy may be modified or altered and may be implemented during the course of the academic year of this Calendar.

Helpful Terms

Admissions Average

This is the average of the subjects which were used for entry to the Dalhousie academic program and is governed by admission requirements for the degree/diploma selected.

Adjusted Average

This number is the sum of the Admissions Average, plus points which are assigned to the level of course difficulty (for AP and IB courses) and the number of university-preparatory subjects beyond the minimum five.

Faculty Groupings

There are eight: agriculture; architecture and planning; arts and social sciences; computer science; engineering; health professions; management; and science.

Types of Awards

- Scholarships: A monetary award, at the entrance, in-course and/or graduating level, based on academic performance (in specific subject or group of subjects).
- Awards: A monetary award, at the entrance, in-course and/or graduating level, based on academic performance (in specific subject or group of subjects) and on the recognition of additional relevant attributes.
- Bursary: An award granted on the basis of financial need.
- Medal: An award based on recognition of an outstanding academic record at Dalhousie for a specific degree program in a particular subject.
- Prize: A monetary award of any value, or a non-monetary award, based on general academic excellence, or proficiency in a specific area of study or competition.
- External Award: An award given to the student of the university by an external agency. The University may share in the selection, administration and/or payment of such an award.

General Policy

Applicable to those awards administered by the Registrar's Office. Selection criteria may be different for those awards administered by individual faculties/schools/departments.

Where Dalhousie Scholarships can be Used

Dalhousie University scholarships can be used only at Dalhousie unless the Will or Trust Deed should otherwise permit. The University of King's College has its own scholarship program. Insofar as scholarships, bursaries, awards, prizes, and governmental student loans are concerned, Dalhousie and King's are separate. In order to receive Dalhousie funds you must be a registered Dalhousie University student.

Changing Degree Programs or Faculties

Changing degree/diploma programs or faculties can have implications for scholarship retention. Scholarship holders considering degree or faculty changes should consult the Awards Office prior to making the change.

Scholarship Payments and Rebates

To receive scholarship funds, a student must be registered at least as a full-time student (minimum nine credit hours for degree students, six credit hours for technical students) at Dalhousie during the term(s) in which they are receiving the funds. Students registered in Graduate Studies, Medicine, Law and Dentistry (with the exception of Dental Hygiene students), are ineligible to receive in-course scholarships or renew an existing scholarship. These faculties have their own awards programs.

- Payments: Dalhousie University scholarships are credited towards students' accounts in two equal installments first and second term. Awards are applied first to tuition and prescribed fees, and secondly for residence fees.
- Rebates: The portion of scholarship money in excess of the above charges will be refunded to the student. Refunds are made by the Student Accounts Office in October and February upon request.

Entrance Awards

Entrance awards are available to students applying to Dalhousie directly from high school. Transfer students are not eligible for entrance awards, with the exception of the First Nations and Indigenous Black Students Scholarships. Entrants coming from Year II of a CEGEP program are considered to be transfer students. Students entering the third year of engineering (including students entering from Associated Universities) should review the In-Course Awards (Engineering) section of this Calendar for award opportunities.

Dalhousie offers both renewable and non-renewable entrance awards. Non-renewable awards are held for one year. Renewable entrance awards are typically renewable for a maximum of four years. To be considered for entrance awards, applicants must submit a complete Dalhousie application for admission, a scholarship application, and an official transcript, to the Registrar's Office by March 15. Students must be admitted with a minimum 80% average (26 predicted points for IB diploma candidates) for entrance award consideration. Achieving the minimum academic average does not guarantee that an applicant will receive an award.

Applicants will be evaluated for entrance awards based on some or all of the following criteria: academic merit, extracurricular involvement, financial need, initiative to fund their own education, ancestry, and leadership. A DalOnline application is available for accepted applicants in December. A paper-based application is available for applicants yet to be accepted the following February. Visit <http://www.dal.ca/scholarships> for more information.

Eligible Courses for Scholarship Assessment

The Registrar's Office (Awards) considers all those Dalhousie courses which are taken for credit in a designated degree/diploma program during the academic year (or term in the Co-op program) as eligible courses for scholarship assessment.

Correspondence courses are considered for scholarship purposes.

Unless taken on Letter of Permission, transfer credits do not count towards the credit hours reviewed for scholarship assessment.

Please note that courses taken at other institutions are counted, to a maximum of one course per term, for scholarship assessment if such courses are taken on Letter of Permission towards an eligible degree/diploma at Dalhousie.

Scholarship GPA (SGPA) Calculation

The scholarship GPA (SGPA) will be calculated for students who have completed a minimum of 30 credit hours of work over two terms within the preceding academic year. The SGPA will include all eligible courses attempted during this time period. Please note that the scholarship GPA and the sessional GPA normally differ. The scholarship GPA, expressed to two decimal places, does not show on a student's transcript.

Renewable Scholarships

Unless otherwise advised, an SGPA of 3.70 is required to maintain a renewable scholarship. Students must also complete a full course load (a minimum of 30 credit hours) over two terms within the previous academic year to be eligible for renewal. Co-op students who are on a work term during the calendar year must also complete 30 credit hours over two terms to be eligible. Students completing two work terms within one academic year must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours during their one academic term and achieve a minimum term GPA of 3.70 to be considered. In those cases where students have taken more than 30 credit hours, assessment is based on all courses taken within the term(s) being assessed. Transfer credits do not count towards the credit hours reviewed for scholarship assessment. Holders of renewable awards are notified of either the renewal or the non-renewal of their awards annually, via Dalhousie email.

Holders of renewable scholarships are not also entitled to hold Dalhousie in-course scholarships. Students registered in Graduate Studies, Medicine, Dentistry (with the exception of Dental Hygiene students), or Law are ineligible to receive in-course scholarships or renew an existing scholarship.

In-Course Scholarships

All undergraduate Dalhousie students not on a renewable scholarship, in eligible programs in the faculties of Architecture & Planning, Arts and Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management and Science, who have completed a full course load (a minimum of 30 credit hours) over two terms within the previous academic year and achieved a minimum SGPA of 3.70 will be eligible for in-course scholarship consideration. Co-op students who are on a work term during the calendar year must also complete 30 credit hours over two terms and achieve a passing grade in the work term to be eligible for consideration. Students completing two work terms within one academic year must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours during their one academic term, achieve passing grades in both work terms, and achieve a minimum term GPA of 3.70 to be considered eligible for consideration. In those cases where students have taken more than 30 credit hours, assessment is based on all courses taken within the term(s) being assessed. Transfer credits do not count towards the credit hours reviewed for scholarship assessment. In-course scholarship recipients are notified of their award over the summer, via Dalhousie email.

Students registered in Graduate Studies, Medicine, Dentistry (with the exception of Diploma in Dental Hygiene students), or Law are ineligible to receive in-course scholarships or renew an existing scholarship.

Bursaries

The University's bursary program is intended as possible supplementary assistance to help qualifying students with a portion of their educational costs.

The University has funds for the purpose of assisting its students who may face certain types of financial situations. These bursaries are awarded primarily on the basis of demonstrable need as determined by the appropriate University office or committee, satisfactory academic standing (see as defined in Academic Regulations) is also expected. Students whose financial needs are exceptionally large and/or students whose academic standing is unsatisfactory may not be assisted. Normally, bursaries will be awarded only to students who have availed themselves of assistance under the Canada Student Loan Program and/or corresponding provincial or territorial loan programs or bank loans. Normally, receipt of the first installment of such funding is a prerequisite to the University's consideration of an application for bursary assistance. Students may access the bursary program for a maximum of five years.

International Exchanges

Students who have permission to study for one or two terms outside of Canada in an approved exchange program, and are considered to be full-time (normally 30 credit hours), can be considered eligible for in-course or renewable scholarship assessment. Students who hold a Dalhousie scholarship and are planning to study abroad are advised to contact the Assistant Registrar (Awards) prior to departure to discuss their funding schedule.

Scholarship Assessment

Students who hold renewable scholarships will be assessed for renewal in either June or September depending on completion of two academic terms. If a student has previously failed to renew their scholarship and subsequently achieves the required 3.70 SGPA in the next academic year, or in any academic year within four of the original offer, the scholarship may be reinstated.

All other undergraduate students are assessed for in-course scholarships in June or September depending on completion of two academic terms.

Reduced Course Load and Retention of Scholarship

Scholarship holders considering taking a reduced course load should consult the Registrar's Office - Awards before dropping courses. Students must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours over two terms within the academic year to qualify for renewal of their scholarships or an in-course scholarship.

Record of Scholarships

Scholarships, awards, and prizes are recorded on academic transcripts. The University retains the right to reassign the source funding of a student's scholarship as circumstances may warrant (but there would be no reduction in the amount).

Graduation and Renewable or In-Course Scholarships

Students holding a renewable scholarship who choose to graduate earlier than originally expected, and later decide to return to upgrade their degree to a four-year degree, must submit a request to access their scholarship for the final year. In addition, if a student graduates and then decides to upgrade their degree, they cannot be assessed for an in-course scholarship until a further 30 credit hours over two terms within the same academic year are completed and a minimum SGPA of 3.70 is achieved.

Taxation

Students registered as full or part-time students are not required to claim financial awards (i.e. scholarships, bursaries) as income on their taxes.

Withdrawing

Award funds are credited to a student's account with the expectation that they will remain registered at Dalhousie at least as a full-time student (minimum nine credit hours for degree students or six credit hours for technical students) within the applicable term. Therefore, if a student reduces their course load or withdraws, these funds are expected to be returned to the University. However, depending on the time of the withdrawal, a student may be entitled to retain a prorated portion of the scholarship. Students in this situation are advised to contact the Assistant Registrar - Awards prior to withdrawing.

Scholarship Appeals

The deadline to appeal a scholarship decision for an entrance/in-course/renewable scholarship or entrance bursary is October 31.

Students may appeal under the following grounds:

- extraordinary or compassionate circumstances;
- unfair scholarship decision under the circumstances; and/or,
- inconsistent scholarship decision compared to other offers/decisions (compared to other Dalhousie scholarships)

Students must submit their appeal, in written form, to the Assistant Registrar, Awards, in the Registrar's Office, by the deadline noted above. The letter should clearly outline the grounds for appeal and the remedy being sought. Students should include documentation, if applicable, to support the basis of their appeal. The decision of the Appeals Committee is final.

Convocation Awards

The Governor General's Silver Medal, Governor General's Bronze Medal, University Silver Medal, Avery Prize, and University Medals are administered by the Registrar's Office (Awards) and are awarded at convocation. For the aforementioned medals and prize, a student who is completing a second Dalhousie degree will have only those courses required for the second degree used when calculating their cumulative average. Students graduating in the fall convocation are eligible for consideration for the aforementioned medals and prizes in the following spring convocation. In addition, any disciplinary action by the Senate Discipline Committee shall be deemed sufficient cause for any student to be ineligible.

In the College of Pharmacy, the School of Health and Human Performance, the School of Health Sciences, and the School of Nursing, a University medal is awarded annually at the spring convocation to a graduating student who demonstrates the following criteria have been met:

- The candidate has successfully completed the equivalent of three full-time years in their respective baccalaureate program (90 credit hours) at Dalhousie.
- Has met the FHP cumulative GPA requirement or better on courses taken at Dalhousie towards the degree.
- Of those eligible, has the highest GPA.

All credits taken towards the degree at Dalhousie will be used in the calculations. Transfer credits taken prior to entry into the program are not counted towards either the 90 credit hours criterion, or towards the cumulative GPA requirement. Classes taken on Letter of Permission, while registered in the program, are included in the 90 credit hours criterion and calculated as part of the cumulative GPA requirement. As the School of Social Work does not offer a three year (90 credit hour) BSW degree, it is not eligible for the University Medal.

Jeff D and Martha Edwards Scholarship

Hugh Maccagno established this scholarship in 2007 in memory of Jeff and Martha Edwards. As a young child living in the village of Lac La Biche in northeast Alberta, Hugh Maccagno clearly recalls his father speaking to Mr. Edwards and afterwards commenting "What a fine gentleman he is." Mr. Edwards, a black man dressed in a suit, tie, and hat, was in Lac La Biche coaching his baseball team from Amber Valley, Alberta. His father's words continue to inspire Hugh as they were voiced at a time when black people were subjected to so much discrimination in the US and Canada. Jeff Edwards was 21 when he and many other blacks left Oklahoma for Canada in 1910 seeking an escape from segregation and prejudice in the American South. He and his wife Martha homesteaded as pioneers at Amber Valley, raised 10 children, and contributed enormously to the community. Mr. Edwards embraced his new citizenship with pride, and when he died in 1973 at the age of 90, was remembered as a proud Canadian citizen who epitomized the spirit of black pioneers who settled the Canadian West. It is with these sentiments that Hugh Maccagno established this scholarship, which serves to provide post-secondary education to many from the large and long-established Black community of Nova Scotia.

Eligibility: Available to Black students entering any program at Dalhousie University directly from high school, with preference given to Canadian students of Black African descent, followed by native Black Bermudian students.

In-Course Awards

How to use this Section

The term 'awards' in this section is a general term encompassing scholarships, bursaries, awards, prizes, medals, fellowships, and studentships. To see a list of awards that you may be eligible for, select your Faculty or College from the list on the right. You may also have the option to select a department within a faculty. Students who have yet to choose a major or belong to a Faculty of College that does not have Departments should select their Faculty or College, and then 'All Faculty Awards'.

The awards listed under the Department and 'All Awards' pages include those administered centrally (by the Registrar's Office, International Centre, and other units) as well as those administered within faculties and departments.

General Information

Dalhousie In-Course Scholarships

All undergraduate Dalhousie students not on a renewable scholarship, in eligible programs in the Faculties of Architecture and Planning, Arts and Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, and Science, and the Dental Hygiene program, who have completed a full course load (a minimum of 30 credit hours) over two terms within the previous academic year and achieved a minimum SGPA of 3.70 will be considered eligible for in-course scholarships. Co-op students who are on a work term during the calendar year must also complete 30 credit hours over two terms and achieve a passing grade in their work term to be eligible. Co-op students completing two work terms within one academic year must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours during their one academic term, achieve a minimum term GPA of 3.70, and achieve passing grades in both work terms, to be considered eligible. In those cases where students have taken more than 30 credit hours, assessment is based on all courses taken within the term(s) being assessed. Transfer credits do not count towards the credit hours reviewed for scholarship assessment. In-Course Scholarship assessment takes place over the summer months. Scholarship recipients will be notified by Dalhousie email.

Students registered in Graduate Studies, Medicine, Dentistry (with the exception Dental Hygiene Students), or Law are ineligible to receive in-course scholarships or renew an existing scholarship.

Dalhousie Undergraduate Bursary Program

The University's bursary program is intended as possible supplementary assistance to help qualifying students with a portion of their educational costs.

The University has funds for the purpose of assisting its students who may face certain types of financial situations. These bursaries are awarded primarily on the basis of demonstrable need as determined by the appropriate University office or committee, satisfactory academic standing (see as defined in Academic Regulations) is also expected. Students whose financial needs are exceptionally large and/or students whose academic standing is unsatisfactory may not be assisted. Normally, bursaries will be awarded only to students who have availed themselves of assistance under the Canada Student Loan Program and/or corresponding provincial or territorial loan programs or bank loans. Normally, receipt of the first installment of such funding is a prerequisite to the University's consideration of an application for bursary assistance. Students may access the bursary program for a maximum of five years.

Faculty of Agriculture In-Course Awards Program

The Faculty of Agriculture has its own in-course award program (including bursaries), typically due in the fall term. Most Faculty of Agriculture awards require a single application. More information is available at dal.ca/scholarships.

Golden Key International Honour Society

Dalhousie University has a participating chapter in the Golden Key International Society. The Golden Key Society is an academic honours society that recognizes the academic achievements of students. The society provides scholarships and leadership opportunities and career assistance to its student members. Students are invited to become members based upon criteria established by the society. For information please refer to the society's website: goldenkey.org.

Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Class of 1950 Award Fund

The Class of '50 Award was first established in 2000 at the Class of 1950, 50th anniversary weekend celebration. President, Don Young and Vice-President, Jack Johnson spearheaded the campaign to get their classmates involved in their commitment to help future AC students. The group recognizes the difficulty that young students face to finance their post-secondary education, as they too faced similar challenges. After a great deal of preparatory work from Don, Jack and Cliff McIsaac, a proposal was created for the Class of '50 Award fund of to assist deserving students to "stick with it." The group of classmates have made and continue to make significant contributions to the campus and students.

Colonel Charles Coll Memorial Scholarship

The Colonel Charles Coll Memorial was established in memory of Col. Charles Coll Sr. He was the inventor, owner and president of Muskol Enterprises Limited. He manufactured and sold Muskol insect repellent first from his basement in his Truro, Nova Scotia home and later from his manufacturing plant in Hilden, just outside of Truro. In 1957 Charles concocted a perfume to apply to clothing while deer hunting and later registered a company. The deer lure was used by regular deer hunters, bow hunters, wildlife photographers and naturalists. Charles named the ingredient "Muskol" which derives from musk, an ingredient in the lure and the phonetic last name Coll. Federal and Provincial Departments of Fisheries, Resources, Mines, as well as many sportsmen and outdoors people still continue to use the Muskol Insect Repellent.

Ketchum Manufacturing Company Limited Prize

Zebulon Ketchum, an Ottawa, Canada based inventor and former professional lacrosse player turned his love of tinkering into a successful business. He owned a bicycle shop in downtown Ottawa and eventually grew and expanded that business into other products including becoming the first provider of the new "horseless carriage" in the nation's capital. However, it was his inventor's nature that led him to the genesis of the Ketchum business which was metal identification tags to be used in the livestock industry. The company has become the world's leading supplier of tags used to identify and trace the origins of wild caught and farmed seafood and they continue to be a metal stamping company as well and currently produce numerous metal products for various industries around the world. The business started on a rural farm outside of Ottawa and when it moved it found itself in the middle of the city. What started as a niche business serving the local agricultural community spread regionally, then nationally, and now competes in almost every market of the world.

Eligibility: The Ketchum Manufacturing Company Limited Prize is awarded to a graduate of the Animal Science option.

P. Max Kuhn Scholarship

P. Max Kuhn grew up on a small farm in Lawrencetown, Halifax County. He lived from 1887 until 1928 and was the father to Bernard G. Kuhn. Max attended one year of the former NSAC General Course in 1908-1909. He was not able to return the next year because of need for him at home and shortage of funds, it was a great disappointment to him. That year was his only year of formal schooling; his home was so isolated that he was never able to attend grade school or high school, and his mother taught him at home. Max was a dedicated, hard-working farmer, and he made great use of his AC training. He bought his own Manor Hill Farm in 1918, located on Woodlawn Road (Portland Street) just outside what were then the town limits of Dartmouth. He market-gardened and ran a dairy there until his death. It was Bernard's wish to establish this scholarship to recognize his father, Max, give education opportunity to others beyond what his father had, and to "repay Nova Scotia, former NSAC and Canada in small part for the education and support that he received here" (Bernard G. Kuhn).

Eligibility: Available to students in any undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie, with preference given to students who have completed at least one year of study. Applicants must be permanent residents of Nova Scotia, with preference to students from the Halifax Regional Municipality. Awarded to a student with a farm background or those whose course and project work and summer employment demonstrates an interest in working in the agriculture industry after graduation. Selection criteria include financial need and academic performance.

Danny MacEwen Memorial Scholarship

Danny was an example of what typifies a farmer – not afraid of hard work, willing to give everything he had even if the financial return wasn't always there, and proud of what he did for a living and never made an excuse for it. Danny was also very involved with the community and those who lived in it. He enjoyed not only showing off his many talents but also found great satisfaction in teaching others. Although he was not known for his patience, he strived hard to achieve the best at whatever he did. Danny will always be remembered for his passion for farming, and the agricultural world is a better place because of what he gave.

Eligibility: Awarded to a BSc(Agr) student majoring in Agricultural Business who has a background in agriculture or comes from a family farm. The recipient will be involved in the community and athletics, either at the Faculty of Agriculture or in the local area.

Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship

The Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship was established by Clint's loving family, with contributions from his many friends and colleagues. Clint loved life and had many interests including entertaining, fine cooking, travel and music. To Clint family was everything; no amount of trouble, sacrifice, or inconvenience was too much. However, his heart was in agriculture. He lived and breathed agriculture, but dairy had a special corner in his heart. Not only did he talk the talk, he walked the walk. Clint was a graduate of NSAC (Class of 1979) and Guelph University. He was also an active member of his alumni associations, serving as Vice President and President for the Agriculture College Alumni. Clint served on the Agricultural Institute of Canada Board of Directors and on numerous institute committees. He served as the chair of the Atlantic Forage Crops Advisory committee and represented the Atlantic Provinces at the National Expert Committee on Forage. Clint was a distinguished and valued member of the NB Department of Agriculture, taking a leading role in innumerable initiatives to support the true stewards of the land; the farmers of Atlantic Canada. His career was that of a scientist with a human touch.

Eligibility: Awarded to a third or fourth year BSc(Agr) student, with a preference to a student from New Brunswick and a preference to a student involved in the study of dairy. Recipients will have strong academic standing and demonstrate financial need.

Passionate Plants Person Award

In 1976, with two passionate plants men – the late Don Craig and the late Captain Richard Steele – as founding members, they began as RSCAR, the Rhododendron Society of Canada Atlantic Region. They were one of three regions, the other two being Niagara and Toronto. When Niagara and Toronto decided to join the American Rhododendron Society in the 1980s and RSC ceased being its own organization, the three regions – Atlantic, Niagara, and Toronto – became the 3 chapters in District 12 of the ARS. In 2003, they formed the Atlantic Rhododendron & Horticulture Society, to reflect the diversity of plant interests among local gardeners and plants people, while maintaining a central interest in rhododendrons and other ericaceous plants. They are a non-profit society registered in Nova Scotia.

Eligibility: Available to students entering second year of the Environmental Horticulture diploma program in the Faculty of Agriculture who are permanent residents of Nova Scotia. Preference is given to students whose passion for plants is infectious and will most impact the way we regard and understand plants in both public and private environments. Dr. Robert G. Rix Family Farm Scholarship

Robert (Bob) Rix was born in Halifax on July 29th, 1948. Robert graduated from Dalhousie University Dental School in 1974. He practiced in Musquodoboit Harbour, Tatamagouche, and Winsloe, PEI, prior to opening his own dental practice in Bible Hill. He took great interest in his profession and knew the family trees of most of his patients and will be fondly remembered by everyone for his excellent dentistry, story-telling, knowledge of American History, love of gardening, tinkering with mechanical items, love of nature and his family. Robert had originally established the "Robert G. Rix Family Farm Bursary" in 1985. Although not having a farm background himself, he shared his beliefs that everyone's roots are in the land and he felt his way to contribute to the importance of agriculture to our society was through this small bursary each year. A couple years ago, the award became known as the "Dr. Robert G. Rix Scholarship" to allow support to a student where the need was greatest. After Robert's passing, one of the faculty provided funds to continue the bursary in Robert's name. Since then, Robert's family has graciously supported the scholarship to allow his legacy and memory to live on.

Jennifer Hayes Starratt Scholarship

The Jennifer Hayes Starratt Scholarship was created by Jennifer's husband, Mark, as a Christmas gift. Jennifer Starratt attended the Agricultural campus and graduated in 1996 with a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. According to her husband the Agricultural campus holds a very special place in Jennifer's heart and having a scholarship created in her name, is something very special to her. Due to the couple's success in their professional lives, they were able to create a legacy to give back to the communities that have helped enrich their lives.

Eligibility: Available to female students entering their final year of the Bachelor of Science (Agriculture) program, with preference given to students who have completed their first three years at the Faculty of Agriculture. Selection will be based on academic performance, leadership, and involvement in campus activities. The scholarship will not be awarded to a student receiving other significant scholarships.

John Higgins Memorial Scholarship

John was a founding member of The Atlantic Association of Landscape Designers in 1992. He was instrumental to the development of Canada's first ever Certification Program for Landscape Designers, which was available to all designers in the Atlantic Region, and pre-empted the National Certification Program by several years.

John Higgins' dedication and enthusiasm for the Landscape Design Industry throughout his career was unfaltering, his contributions immeasurable. It is for these reasons that AALD decided to offer a Design Scholarship for students attending the AC, to be dedicated in his name. The Atlantic Association of Landscape Designers hope is that, in part through this scholarship, his legacy will live on.

Eligibility: Available to students entering third year of the Bachelor of Technology in Environmental Landscape Horticulture program in the Faculty of Agriculture.

Selection criteria include academic performance and skill and interest in landscape design.

Dr. Bill Jenkins Memorial Scholarship

Bill's career began early and always had the same theme; to improve farm management and education. He held numerous positions with the Provincial Department of Agriculture, the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie University, as well as Chairman of the Nova Scotia Farm Land Settlement Board. Bill retired as Principal of the former NSAC (now Dalhousie Faculty of Agriculture) in 1972 after witnessing growth in both the level and training for all sectors of the agricultural industry. He then joined the staffs of the Council of Maritime Premiers' Higher Education Commission, Services Overseas (CESO) in 1992. As a result of Bill Jenkins' sincere commitment to his chosen career path, and his lifetime of contributions to both the AC and the Agricultural Industry, a scholarship has been created in his memory.

Eligibility: Available to students entering second or third year in any of the business degree programs in the Faculty of Agriculture. Selection criteria include overall academic performance, leadership, and financial need.

P. Max Kuhn Scholarship

P. Max Kuhn grew up on a small farm in Lawrencetown, Halifax County. He lived from 1887 until 1928 and was the father to Bernard G. Kuhn. Max attended one year of the former NSAC General Course in 1908-1909. He was not able to return the next year because of need for him at home and shortage of funds, it was a great disappointment to him. That year was his only year of formal schooling; his home was so isolated that he was never able to attend grade school or high school, and his mother taught him at home. Max was a dedicated, hard-working farmer, and he made great use of his AC training. He bought his own Manor Hill Farm in 1918, located on Woodlawn Road (Portland Street) just outside what were then the town limits of Dartmouth. He market-gardened and ran a dairy there until his death. It was Bernard's wish to establish this scholarship to recognize his father, Max, give education opportunity to others beyond what his father had, and to "repay Nova Scotia, former NSAC and Canada in small part for the education and support that he received here" (Bernard G. Kuhn).

Eligibility: Available to students in any undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie, with preference given to students who have completed at least one year of study. Applicants must be permanent residents of Nova Scotia, with preference to students from the Halifax Regional Municipality. Awarded to a student with a farm background or those whose course and project work and summer employment demonstrates an interest in working in the agriculture industry after graduation. Danny MacEwen Memorial Scholarship

Danny was an example of what typifies a farmer – not afraid of hard work, willing to give everything he had even if the financial return wasn't always there, and proud of what he did for a living and never made an excuse for it. Danny was also very involved with the community and those who lived in it. He enjoyed not only showing off his many talents but also found great satisfaction in teaching others. Although he was not known for his patience, he strived hard to achieve the best at whatever he did. Danny will always be remembered for his passion for farming, and the agricultural world is a better place because of what he gave.

The Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship was established by Clint's loving family, with contributions from his many friends and colleagues. Clint loved life and had many interests including entertaining, fine cooking, travel and music. To Clint family was everything; no amount of trouble, sacrifice, or inconvenience was too much. However, his heart was in agriculture. He lived and breathed agriculture, but dairy had a special corner in his heart. Not only did he talk the talk, he walked the walk. Clint was a graduate of NSAC (Class of 1979) and Guelph University. He was also an active member of his alumni associations, serving as Vice President and President for the Agriculture College Alumni. Clint served on the Agricultural Institute of Canada Board of Directors and on numerous institute committees. He served as the chair of the Atlantic Forage Crops Advisory committee and represented the Atlantic Provinces at the National Expert Committee on Forage. Clint was a distinguished and valued member of the NB Department of Agriculture, taking a leading role in innumerable initiatives to support the true stewards of the land; the farmers of Atlantic Canada. His career was that of a scientist with a human touch.

The Grace and Cliff Retson Memorial Bursary was first created by Grace in memory of her husband, Cliff Retson who graduated from the AC in 1934. Cliff passed away in 1997. Grace was born in Waskada, Manitoba and grew up in Kerrobert, Saskatchewan. She attended secretarial school in Saskatoon and after retiring, she received her Bachelor of Arts from St. Mary's University. Grace met Cliff, her husband of 56 years, while she was working at the Senate in Ottawa. They married on July 26, 1941 and moved to Truro in 1947. The Retson's (Grace & Cliff) hosted several international students studying at the Faculty of Agriculture over the years. It is for this reason and to ensure ongoing support of the educational interests of International students studying at Dal-AC, that Grace created the scholarship.

Eligibility: Available to international students in any undergraduate program at the Faculty of Agriculture. Selection criteria include financial need, academic performance, and interest in and involvement in multi-cultural activities on campus.

Dr. Robert G. Rix Family Farm Scholarship

Robert (Bob) Rix was born in Halifax on July 29th, 1948. Robert graduated from Dalhousie University Dental School in 1974. He practiced in Musquodoboit Harbour, Tatamagouche, and Winsloe, PEI, prior to opening his own dental practice in Bible Hill. He took great interest in his profession and knew the family trees of most of his patients and will be fondly remembered by everyone for his excellent dentistry, story-telling, knowledge of American History, love of gardening, tinkering with mechanical items, love of nature and his family. Robert had originally established the "Robert G. Rix Family Farm Bursary" in 1985. Although not having a farm background himself, he shared his beliefs that everyone's roots are in the land and he felt his way to contribute to the importance of agriculture to our society was through this small bursary each year. A couple years ago, the award became known as the "Dr. Robert G. Rix Scholarship" to allow support to a student where the need was greatest. After Robert's passing, one of the faculty provided funds to continue the bursary in Robert's name. Since then, Robert's family has graciously supported the scholarship to allow his legacy and memory to live on.

Eric Williams Memorial Scholarships

Born in 1938 Eric P. Williams started farming in 1959 with nine cows and twenty acres. Today the Williams' family own and operate a two hundred head Holstein dairy farm in the Goulds and employ a nephew and one other worker. Eric worked hard to introduce supply management for milk producers in Newfoundland. In 1983 he was appointed the first chair of the Newfoundland Milk Marketing Board now known as the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador. During his lifetime he fought to improve the cost of production formula for milk producers in the province. Eric was also nominated by the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador in recognition of his tremendous contributions to agriculture, to become an inductee into the Atlantic Agricultural Hall of Fame. It is for the same reasons that the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador have established a scholarship in his memory for his dedication and commitment to agriculture.

Class of 1950 Award Fund

The Class of '50 Award was first established in 2000 at the Class of 1950, 50th anniversary weekend celebration. President, Don Young and Vice-President, Jack Johnson spearheaded the campaign to get their classmates involved in their commitment to help future AC students. The group recognizes the difficulty that young students face to finance their post-secondary education, as they too faced similar challenges. After a great deal of preparatory work from Don, Jack and Cliff McIsaac, a proposal was created for the Class of '50 Award fund of to assist deserving students to "stick with it." The group of classmates have made and continue to make significant contributions to the campus and students.

George and Lottie Cook Memorial Scholarship

Lottie Cook first developed her passion for agriculture on her family farm on Cape Breton Island. Lottie's parents were pioneers in the agricultural industry, and her father a renowned farmer. At a young age Lottie became involved in 4-H where she achieved some of the club's top honours. She later graduated from the former Nova Scotia Agricultural College and worked as an assistant agricultural representative to J.C.F MacDonnell for many years. In 1943 Lottie married George Cook and the pair later opened a chick hatchery in Truro and became one of the foremost producers of high quality chicks in the Maritime Provinces. After the passing of her husband in 1954, Lottie continued to operate the family business. Due to Lottie's involvement in the agricultural industry and former NSAC community from both herself and family business, a scholarship has been created in her and her husband's name.

Co-op Atlantic Scholarships

Co-op has established a scholarship open to employees and dependents of members of Co-op Atlantic. Co-op is an association of volunteer board members who have joined together to create a business that can supply products and services at a fair and reasonable cost. Specifically, Co-op focuses on a shared partnership with the members of the community in which it resides. The most unique attribute of the Co-op is its democratic control. The control is left to the members only, and is not powered strictly by a dollar figure. This allows for farmers and other entrepreneurs to grow and prosper, all while offering goods and services at a low cost to their customers.

Eligibility: Awarded to current first year students at the Faculty of Agriculture based on academic performance, demonstrated leadership ability, extracurricular and community involvement, work experiences, and interest in and understanding of co-operation and co-operatives. P. Max Kuhn Scholarship

P. Max Kuhn grew up on a small farm in Lawrencetown, Halifax County. He lived from 1887 until 1928 and was the father to Bernard G. Kuhn. Max attended one year of the former NSAC General Course in 1908-1909. He was not able to return the next year because of need for him at home and shortage of funds, it was a great disappointment to him. That year was his only year of formal schooling; his home was so isolated that he was never able to attend grade school or high school, and his mother taught him at home. Max was a dedicated, hard-working farmer, and he made great use of his AC training. He bought his own Manor Hill Farm in 1918, located on Woodlawn Road (Portland Street) just outside what were then the town limits of Dartmouth. He market-gardened and ran a dairy there until his death. It was Bernard's wish to establish this scholarship to recognize his father, Max, give education opportunity to others beyond what his father had, and to "repay Nova Scotia, former NSAC and Canada in small part for the education and support that he received here" (Bernard G. Kuhn).

Eligibility: Available to students in any undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie, with preference given to students who have completed at least one year of study. Applicants must be permanent residents of Nova Scotia, with preference to students from the Halifax Regional Municipality. Awarded to a student with a farm background or those whose course and project work and summer employment demonstrates an interest in working in the agriculture industry after graduation. Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship

The Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship was established by Clint's loving family, with contributions from his many friends and colleagues. Clint loved life and had many interests including entertaining, fine cooking, travel and music. To Clint family was everything; no amount of trouble, sacrifice, or inconvenience was too much. However, his heart was in agriculture. He lived and breathed agriculture, but dairy had a special corner in his heart. Not only did he talk the talk, he walked the walk. Clint was a graduate of NSAC (Class of 1979) and Guelph University. He was also an active member of his alumni associations, serving as Vice President and President for the Agriculture College Alumni. Clint served on the Agricultural Institute of Canada Board of Directors and on numerous institute committees. He served as the chair of the Atlantic Forage Crops Advisory committee and represented the Atlantic Provinces at the National Expert Committee on Forage. Clint was a distinguished and valued member of the NB Department of Agriculture, taking a leading role in innumerable initiatives to support the true stewards of the land; the farmers of Atlantic Canada. His career was that of a scientist with a human touch.

Dr. Robert G. Rix Family Farm Scholarship

Robert (Bob) Rix was born in Halifax on July 29th, 1948. Robert graduated from Dalhousie University Dental School in 1974. He practiced in Musquodoboit Harbour, Tatamagouche, and Winsloe, PEI, prior to opening his own dental practice in Bible Hill. He took great interest in his profession and knew the family trees of most of his patients and will be fondly remembered by everyone for his excellent dentistry, story-telling, knowledge of American History, love of gardening, tinkering with mechanical items, love of nature and his family. Robert had originally established the "Robert G. Rix Family Farm Bursary" in 1985. Although not having a farm background himself, he shared his beliefs that everyone's roots are in the land and he felt his way to contribute to the importance of agriculture to our society was through this small bursary each year. A couple years ago, the award became known as the "Dr. Robert G. Rix Scholarship" to allow support to a student where the need was greatest. After Robert's passing, one of the faculty provided funds to continue the bursary in Robert's name. Since then, Robert's family has graciously supported the scholarship to allow his legacy and memory to live on.

Eric Williams Memorial Scholarships

Born in 1938 Eric P. Williams started farming in 1959 with nine cows and twenty acres. Today the Williams' family own and operate a two hundred head Holstein dairy farm in the Goulds and employ a nephew and one other worker. Eric worked hard to introduce supply management for milk producers in Newfoundland. In 1983 he was appointed the first chair of the Newfoundland Milk Marketing Board now known as the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador. During his lifetime he fought to improve the cost of production formula for milk producers in the province. Eric was also nominated by the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador in recognition of his tremendous contributions to agriculture, to become an inductee into the Atlantic Agricultural Hall of Fame. It is for the same reasons that the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador have established a scholarship in his memory for his dedication and commitment to agriculture.

George and Lottie Cook Memorial Scholarship

Lottie Cook first developed her passion for agriculture on her family farm on Cape Breton Island. Lottie's parents were pioneers in the agricultural industry, and her father a renowned farmer. At a young age Lottie became involved in 4-H where she achieved some of the club's top honours. She later graduated from the former Nova Scotia Agricultural College and worked as an assistant agricultural representative to J.C.F MacDonnell for many years. In 1943 Lottie married George Cook and the pair later opened a chick hatchery in Truro and became one of the foremost producers of high quality chicks in the Maritime Provinces. After the passing of her husband in 1954, Lottie continued to operate the family business. Due to Lottie's involvement in the agricultural industry and former NSAC community from both herself and family business, a scholarship has been created in her and her husband's name.

P. Max Kuhn Scholarship

P. Max Kuhn grew up on a small farm in Lawrencetown, Halifax County. He lived from 1887 until 1928 and was the father to Bernard G. Kuhn. Max attended one year of the former NSAC General Course in 1908-1909. He was not able to return the next year because of need for him at home and shortage of funds, it was a great disappointment to him. That year was his only year of formal schooling; his home was so isolated that he was never able to attend grade school or high school, and his mother taught him at home. Max was a dedicated, hard-working farmer, and he made great use of his AC training. He bought his own Manor Hill Farm in 1918, located on Woodlawn Road (Portland Street) just outside what were then the town limits of Dartmouth. He market-gardened and ran a dairy there until his death. It was Bernard's wish to establish this scholarship to recognize his father, Max, give education opportunity to others beyond what his father had, and to "repay Nova Scotia, former NSAC and Canada in small part for the education and support that he received here" (Bernard G. Kuhn).

Eligibility: Available to students in any undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie, with preference given to students who have completed at least one year of study. Applicants must be permanent residents of Nova Scotia, with preference to students from the Halifax Regional Municipality. Awarded to a student with a farm background or those whose course and project work and summer employment demonstrates an interest in working in the agriculture industry after graduation. Passionate Plants Person Award

In 1976, with two passionate plants men – the late Don Craig and the late Captain Richard Steele – as founding members, they began as RSCAR, the Rhododendron Society of Canada Atlantic Region. They were one of three regions, the other two being Niagara and Toronto. When Niagara and Toronto decided to join the American Rhododendron Society in the 1980s and RSC ceased being its own organization, the three regions – Atlantic, Niagara, and Toronto – became the 3 chapters in District 12 of the ARS. In 2003, they formed the Atlantic Rhododendron & Horticulture Society, to reflect the diversity of plant interests among local gardeners and plants people, while maintaining a central interest in rhododendrons and other ericaceous plants. They are a non-profit society registered in Nova Scotia.

Eligibility: Available to students entering second year of the Environmental Horticulture diploma program in the Faculty of Agriculture who are permanent residents of Nova Scotia. Preference is given to students whose passion for plants is infectious and will most impact the way we regard and understand plants in both public and private environments. The student should also demonstrate leadership abilities and financial need.

Dr. Robert G. Rix Family Farm Scholarship

Robert (Bob) Rix was born in Halifax on July 29th, 1948. Robert graduated from Dalhousie University Dental School in 1974. He practiced in Musquodoboit Harbour, Tatamagouche, and Winsloe, PEI, prior to opening his own dental practice in Bible Hill. He took great interest in his profession and knew the family trees of most of his patients and will be fondly remembered by everyone for his excellent dentistry, story-telling, knowledge of American History, love of gardening, tinkering with mechanical items, love of nature and his family. Robert had originally established the "Robert G. Rix Family Farm Bursary" in 1985. Although not having a farm background himself, he shared his beliefs that everyone's roots are in the land and he felt his way to contribute to the importance of agriculture to our society was through this small bursary each year. A couple years ago, the award became known as the "Dr. Robert G. Rix Scholarship" to allow support to a student where the need was greatest. After Robert's passing, one of the faculty provided funds to continue the bursary in Robert's name. Since then, Robert's family has graciously supported the scholarship to allow his legacy and memory to live on.

George and Lottie Cook Memorial Scholarship

Lottie Cook first developed her passion for agriculture on her family farm on Cape Breton Island. Lottie's parents were pioneers in the agricultural industry, and her father a renowned farmer. At a young age Lottie became involved in 4-H where she achieved some of the club's top honours. She later graduated from the former Nova Scotia Agricultural College and worked as an assistant agricultural representative to J.C.F MacDonnell for many years. In 1943 Lottie married George Cook and the pair later opened a chick hatchery in Truro and became one of the foremost producers of high quality chicks in the Maritime Provinces. After the passing of her husband in 1954, Lottie continued to operate the family business. Due to Lottie's involvement in the agricultural industry and former NSAC community from both herself and family business, a scholarship has been created in her and her husband's name.

Co-op Atlantic Scholarships

Co-op has established a scholarship open to employees and dependents of members of Co-op Atlantic. Co-op is an association of volunteer board members who have joined together to create a business that can supply products and services at a fair and reasonable cost. Specifically, Co-op focuses on a shared partnership with the members of the community in which it resides. The most unique attribute of the Co-op is its democratic control. The control is left to the members only, and is not powered strictly by a dollar figure. This allows for farmers and other entrepreneurs to grow and prosper, all while offering goods and services at a low cost to their customers.

Eligibility: Awarded to current first year students at the Faculty of Agriculture based on academic performance, demonstrated leadership ability, extracurricular and community involvement, work experiences, and interest in and understanding of co-operation and co-operatives. Applicants must be employees or dependents of members of Co-op Atlantic.

Ketchum Manufacturing Company Limited Prize

Zebulon Ketchum, an Ottawa, Canada based inventor and former professional lacrosse player turned his love of tinkering into a successful business. He owned a bicycle shop in downtown Ottawa and eventually grew and expanded that business into other products including becoming the first provider of the new "horseless carriage" in the nation's capital. However, it was his inventor's nature that led him to the genesis of the Ketchum business which was metal identification tags to be used in the livestock industry. The company has become the world's leading supplier of tags used to identify and trace the origins of wild caught and farmed seafood and they continue to be a metal stamping company as well and currently produce numerous metal products for various industries around the world. The business started on a rural farm outside of Ottawa and when it moved it found itself in the middle of the city. What started as a niche business serving the local agricultural community spread regionally, then nationally, and now competes in almost every market of the world.

Eligibility: The Ketchum Manufacturing Company Limited Prize is awarded to a graduate of the Animal Science option.

P. Max Kuhn Scholarship

P. Max Kuhn grew up on a small farm in Lawrencetown, Halifax County. He lived from 1887 until 1928 and was the father to Bernard G. Kuhn. Max attended one year of the former NSAC General Course in 1908-1909. He was not able to return the next year because of need for him at home and shortage of funds, it was a great disappointment to him. That year was his only year of formal schooling; his home was so isolated that he was never able to attend grade school or high school, and his mother taught him at home. Max was a dedicated, hard-working farmer, and he made great use of his AC training. He bought his own Manor Hill Farm in 1918, located on Woodlawn Road (Portland Street) just outside what were then the town limits of Dartmouth. He market-gardened and ran a dairy there until his death. It was Bernard's wish to establish this scholarship to recognize his father, Max, give education opportunity to others beyond what his father had, and to "repay Nova Scotia, former NSAC and Canada in small part for the education and support that he received here" (Bernard G. Kuhn).

Eligibility: Available to students in any undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture at Dalhousie, with preference given to students who have completed at least one year of study. Applicants must be permanent residents of Nova Scotia, with preference to students from the Halifax Regional Municipality. Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship

The Clint McLean Memorial Scholarship was established by Clint's loving family, with contributions from his many friends and colleagues. Clint loved life and had many interests including entertaining, fine cooking, travel and music. To Clint family was everything; no amount of trouble, sacrifice, or inconvenience was too much. However, his heart was in agriculture. He lived and breathed agriculture, but dairy had a special corner in his heart. Not only did he talk the talk, he walked the walk. Clint was a graduate of NSAC (Class of 1979) and Guelph University. He was also an active member of his alumni associations, serving as Vice President and President for the Agriculture College Alumni. Clint served on the Agricultural Institute of Canada Board of Directors and on numerous institute committees. He served as the chair of the Atlantic Forage Crops Advisory committee and represented the Atlantic Provinces at the National Expert Committee on Forage. Clint was a distinguished and valued member of the NB Department of Agriculture, taking a leading role in innumerable initiatives to support the true stewards of the land; the farmers of Atlantic Canada. His career was that of a scientist with a human touch.

Eligibility: Awarded to a third or fourth year BSc(Agr) student, with a preference to a student from New Brunswick and a preference to a student involved in the study of dairy. Recipients will have strong academic standing and demonstrate financial need.

Dr. Robert G. Rix Family Farm Scholarship

Robert (Bob) Rix was born in Halifax on July 29th, 1948. Robert graduated from Dalhousie University Dental School in 1974. He practiced in Musquodoboit Harbour, Tatamagouche, and Winsloe, PEI, prior to opening his own dental practice in Bible Hill. He took great interest in his profession and knew the family trees of most of his patients and will be fondly remembered by everyone for his excellent dentistry, story-telling, knowledge of American History, love of gardening, tinkering with mechanical items, love of nature and his family. Robert had originally established the "Robert G. Rix Family Farm Bursary" in 1985. Although not having a farm background himself, he shared his beliefs that everyone's roots are in the land and he felt his way to contribute to the importance of agriculture to our society was through this small bursary each year. A couple years ago, the award became known as the "Dr. Robert G. Rix Scholarship" to allow support to a student where the need was greatest. After Robert's passing, one of the faculty provided funds to continue the bursary in Robert's name. Since then, Robert's family has graciously supported the scholarship to allow his legacy and memory to live on.

Eric Williams Memorial Scholarships

Born in 1938 Eric P. Williams started farming in 1959 with nine cows and twenty acres. Today the Williams' family own and operate a two hundred head Holstein dairy farm in the Goulds and employ a nephew and one other worker. Eric worked hard to introduce supply management for milk producers in Newfoundland. In 1983 he was appointed the first chair of the Newfoundland Milk Marketing Board now known as the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador. During his lifetime he fought to improve the cost of production formula for milk producers in the province. Eric was also nominated by the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador in recognition of his tremendous contributions to agriculture, to become an inductee into the Atlantic Agricultural Hall of Fame. It is for the same reasons that the Dairy Farmers of Newfoundland and Labrador have established a scholarship in his memory for his dedication and commitment to agriculture.

Eligibility: Available to current students who have completed at least one year of study in any technical or undergraduate program in the Faculty of Agriculture.

Applicants must be permanent residents of Newfoundland and Labrador. Selection will be based on academic performance. Typically one award is given to a technical student and the other to an degree-seeking student.

Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support. Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Applicants will have demonstrated financial need and have satisfactory academic standing.

Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.
Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support. Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support. Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program. Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund

From time to time at Dalhousie contributions have been made to the University as a memorial subscription in honour of some student or former student. Until now there has been no proper place into which these funds could be channeled. Because of these occurrences a Dalhousie Memorial Bursary Fund has been established. The existence of the fund will be commemorated by a book of remembrance to be located in a prominent place in the Killam Library. Names of persons in whose memory contributions have been made by relatives, friends, individuals or groups, to the Memorial Fund will be recorded in the book, along with the date of their birth and death. The pages will be turned on a regular basis. All money contributed to the Fund will be invested by the Board of Governors and only the investment income will be awarded. The award will be available to any full-time Dalhousie student, already registered and in attendance at courses, who can show a need for additional support.

Eligibility: Available to undergraduate students registered in the Faculty of Architecture & Planning, Arts & Social Sciences, Computer Science, Engineering, Health Professions, Management, Science, or the Dental Hygiene program.
