Dean's Message

As we begin our 101st year as a Faculty of Dentistry, it is only fitting that we begin our next 100 years with a celebration. 2013 marks the 50th anniversary of our School of Dental Hygiene's first graduating class!

The amazing leadership, quality dental hygiene education, outreach initiatives and scholarly endeavors have allowed the School of Dental Hygiene to develop a well-deserved reputation in Canada.

The major celebratory events took place over April 26-27. These two days were filled with activities from continuing education programs with homegrown talent, an outstanding celebratory dinner and more than 40 class reunions. I believe our dental hygiene alumni had an amazing time.

I wish to congratulate Professor Nancy Neish, Director of the School of Dental Hygiene, and her colleagues on a job well done. Memories were created that will live on for many years to come!

Wouldn't it be neat if we could interview our first Dean of Dentistry, Dr. Frank Woodbury (1908-1922)? I think he would be very satisfied that our Faculty of Dentistry, which for the most part he had nurtured and created, continues to raise the bar of success.

I think Dr. Oskar Sykora summed up Dr. Woodbury's legacy quite nicely in his book Maritime College and Dalhousie Faculty of Dentistry – a History, when he wrote: "His impeccable honesty, his uncompromising devotion to all that was highest and best in civic, provincial and national endeavor, his unclouded vision based firmly upon the values that lie beyond, his philosophy of life, which led him to make a part of himself all the things that are honest, just and true and lovely, secured for him a memory that will be cherished by successive generations of dental students and dentists who have a better school and a better profession because of his influence."

This is the legacy we have inherited, and as a Faculty we have maintained it to this day. In that same spirit, I believe we have an obligation to Dr. Woodbury and all the dedicated generations of our Faculty

Family to continue with these same grounded values. They are now reflected in our Faculty's mission statement, which you can find on our website at www.dal.ca/dentistry.

As we begin our next 100 years, I believe we have an opportunity to continue our outstanding legacy and build upon that amazing foundation. Please join us in making Dr. Woodbury proud!

In the words of John Quincy Adams, "If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader". A fitting dedication to all Faculty Family leaders. Here's to our future together!

Most sincerely,

Thomas L. Boran (DDS'78)
Dean, Faculty of Dentistry

Letter to the editor: Greetings from across the Atlantic

Dear Alumni Anchor,

So many congratulations on achieving the prestigious William J. Gies Award for Achievement. It makes me immensely proud to have been part of this same Dental School in the 1970s.

My best wishes also to Bruce Moxley for a happy and fulfilling retirement. He was a huge help to me in the Orthodontic workshops, pioneering video recordings of class work.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jenny Hall (DDS'77)
Londonderry, UK

A golden celebration

School of Dental Hygiene marks 50 years of graduates

By Haley Beaton

IN APRIL 2013, Dalhousie University's School of Dental Hygiene marked an exciting milestone, commemorating the 50th anniversary of its first graduating class.

More than 300 alumni, faculty, staff, students and friends were a part of the DH50 festivities, held April 26-27 on the Dalhousie campus. More than 40 classes gathered for class reunions, with participation as far back as the class of 1966.

"DH50 was an excellent way to celebrate the past 50 years; to see how much we've grown," says Prof. Heather Doucette (DipDH'94), Chair of the DH50 Committee. "I am so happy that I was able to be a part of this special event. I had an amazing time and spoke to many others who enjoyed themselves just as much!"

On the Friday evening, attendees were provided with a guided tour of the Dalhousie Art Gallery, as well as the opportunity to tour around their old stomping grounds at the Dentistry Building. The night was capped off by a "Live at 5" pub night in the student lounge, organized by the Class of 2013. The social was very well attended and was a great opportunity for alumni, students, faculty and staff to reconnect with friends from the past, and also to meet new people within their chosen profession. Dr. Wayne Garland (DDS'77) operated a prop-fuelled photo booth throughout the evening. Judging by the smiles, it was a surefire hit!

Saturday's events began bright and early with some very insightful and engaging continuing education courses on oncology, periodontics, sleep hygiene, wellness and more. During the breaks, attendees had the opportunity to observe some of the latest products and supplies (and also to load up their delegate bags with swag!) at the conference trade show. Those who did not participate in the continuing education program had the opportunity to take part in the second annual Dalhousie Dentistry Fun Run in Point Pleasant Park, organized by the DDS Class of 2015.

Later that evening, the McInnes Room in the Dalhousie Student Union Building served as the venue for the closing Celebratory Dinner. The JP Ellis Trio provided a cool jazz introduction while many visited Dr. Garland for a final photo shoot. Prof. Nancy Neish (DipDH'74), Director of the School of Dental Hygiene and Prof. Denise Zwicker (DipDH'04, BDH'12) served as co-hosts, incorporating elements of audience participation and fun throughout the course of the decadent dinner.

Before dessert, former Directors Dr. Joanne Clovis and Margery Forgay (LLD'94) delivered a wonderful tribute to the Dental Hygiene Student Externship with the Labrador-Grenfell Health Authority, which marks its 25th anniversary in 2013. (see page 5 for details)

50 YEARS

School of Dental Hygiene

After dinner, guests danced the night away to the music of No Longer Hip, a group comprised of members of Dalhousie's Department of Biomechanical Engineering. Their excellent rhythm was a great way to wrap up the fun-filled weekend.

"This was unquestionably the largest alumni event in the history of our School of Dental Hygiene," says Alumni Officer Jon Bruhm. "One of the main keys to its success was the efforts of our dozens of class reunion coordinators, committee members and on-site volunteers. Thank you all for helping this dream become a reality!"

From its first graduating class of just four students in 1963 to more than 1,400 total alumni who live and work all across Canada and around the world, Dalhousie's School of Dental Hygiene has flourished over the past 50 years. Moving forward, it will continue to find new and innovative techniques to educate future practitioners.

School of Dental Hygiene celebrates partnership with Labrador-Grenfell Health

During the School of Dental Hygiene's DH50 Celebratory Dinner, former Directors Dr. Margery Forgay and Dr. Joanne Clovis took to the stage to pay homage to the Dental Hygiene Externship with the Labrador-Grenfell Regional Health Authority (LGH). The partnership between the School of Dental Hygiene and LGH has seen more than 150 students hone their skills as part of the cooperative program in the four clinical sites operated by the health authority across Labrador and the northern peninsula of Newfoundland.

The program was established by Dr. James Messer, former Chief Dental Officer of Labrador-Grenfell Health (then called Grenfell Regional Health Service), and Dr. Margery Forgay, Director of the School of Dental Hygiene from 1985-1990.

"We realized that there was a unique opportunity for service and for learning between the School of Dental Hygiene and the Grenfell Regional Health Service," remarks Dr. Forgay. "The program began in 1988 – it wasn't just a success, it was a barnburner!"

The program continues under the leadership of Dr. Peter Hornett, Chief of Dental Services with LGH since 1993, and Dr. Joanne Clovis, Professor in the School of Dental Hygiene. Dr. Annie Hornett and many other clinical dentists in four communities have guided the students in their learning. Throughout the life of the program, Donna Parsons, Administrative Officer with LGH, has consistently gone above and beyond the call of duty to help organize the student placements.

Dr. Peter Hornett, was invited to the Dalhousie celebration as a special guest. During the Celebratory Dinner, he was presented with the following framed inscription:

"In appreciation for the 25-year educational partnership of the School of Dental Hygiene at Dalhousie University with Labrador-Grenfell Health, the commitment to its establishment by Dr. Jim Messer and Dr. Marnie Forgay, its continuation by Dr. Peter Hornett and Dr. Joanne Clovis, the extraordinary experiences of the Dental Hygiene students, and the improvements in the oral health of the patients and the communities."

After reading the inscription, Dr. Clovis added: "For their constant and caring maintenance of this partnership, we express our thanks by presenting this certificate of appreciation which we hope will be placed in the clinic at St. Anthony. We also have six sets of dental hygiene instruments that have been donated to us by Hu-Friedy and we are passing these on to you for placement in various locations in Labrador-Grenfell Health."

Meet Max Greenberg, Dalhousie Dentistry's oldest living alumnus

By Jon Bruhm

2013 | 2014

ALUMNI ANCHOR

IN DECEMBER 2012, a Dalhousie student named Larissa Crossman was working in the University's Annual Giving call centre. That evening, she connected with Dentistry alumnus Dr. Max Greenberg (DDS'40), and during the course of their conversation, he asked if anyone from his graduating class was still living. Unsure, Larissa agreed to pass his query along.

As it turns out, Dr. Greenberg is the last surviving member of his class – and according to our records, is also the Faculty's oldest living alumnus. I had the opportunity to contact him the following week and observed a remarkable zest from this centenarian. From the moment he picked up the phone, it was clear to me that we had to profile Dr. Greenberg in our annual alumni publication.

"The Anchor? I have every single copy and have read them all cover to cover," he says, in his thick Brooklyn accent. "I love hearing about what's going on at Dalhousie. But I don't know why anyone would want to read about me."

According to his birth certificate, Dr. Greenberg was born in Brooklyn, New York on May 27, 1912, making him now a spry 101 years of age. "I was really born on the 22nd but the doctor didn't put the certificate in until five days later," he remarks. "I go by the certificate – nothing I can do about it." Either way, he was born just one month after the first Dalhousie Dentistry class graduated in April of 1912. As such, last year's Centennial celebrations commemorated not only the Faculty's 100th, but his as well!

Following some gentle persuasion, an interview after the holidays was arranged.

As I gave him another call at his northeastern Florida home in January, he had just completed a round of golf – which he tends to do two or three times per week.

“I’ve been doing nine holes now because the weather isn’t the best, but usually I try to do 18,” he says. “Incidentally, I walk, which is very, very good. We have a foursome and we have a tee-time, otherwise you’ve got to wait there an hour or two and I don’t like to wait.”

In 1936, Dr. Greenberg headed up to Halifax to attend Dalhousie. “Truthfully, I was going to go for medicine,” he recalls. “I forget how many they took in at the time and I didn’t qualify for it, but I stayed and went for dentistry thinking that maybe after two or three years I would switch over. But I enjoyed dentistry and I stayed with it.”

“I had a lot of friends who went there before me. One was Dr. Sidney Berkowitz (BSc’34, MD’38). What a wonderful man, but unfortunately he passed away at an early age. When I was at Dal, there was another fellow, Dr. Harry Goldberg (MD’41), who was in medicine and he played the violin. We used to play duets. We had an enjoyable time, no question about it!”

Although he has some difficulty remembering much about his time at the Faculty of Dentistry, Dr. Greenberg does recall the likes of former Deans Dr. William Woodbury and Dr. J. Stanley Bagnall, along with his classmate Dr. Arthur Smith (DDS’40). “He did a lot of boxing, if I’m not mistaken,” recalls Greenberg. He also remembers a few quips from his time in Halifax.

“It was a very enjoyable time,” he says. “It was cold there. We used to go into the restaurants and for 25 cents, you got a meal. 25 cents! I’ll never forget that, God there, everyone, the faculty... I wasn’t in the new building, but it must be beautiful and they’ve got the best equipment in it, I’m sure. Let me tell you, when I read about it, they have the best there. The teaching staff and the people they get in there, I think they’re doing a wonderful job, no question about it.”

At one point in our conversation, he seemed to grasp why his fellow alumni might want to read about him: “My class was 1940,” he says with a gasp. “Wow. God almighty, that’s 60, 70...oh my God, that’s a lifetime! When you say 100, my God, to me it doesn’t sound like much. But when I think of it and I think of my friends, it really is something. It doesn’t happen every day, and you never know.”

“The main thing is, when you do get to be 100, it’s about quality of life. It’s not just sitting around and you can’t do anything. I still play the violin, I enjoy it, and as far as golf, I think it’s the exercise of course, and there’s something to it that you want to get better and better. I think that’s what keeps me going. I feel 50, 60 at the most! God almighty, I don’t know what it is. I think exercise, keep your mind going and live a clean life. That’s what it is.”

A few months after the profile interview, I connected with Dr. Greenberg to check some facts and to wish him a happy birthday. “I didn’t do anything spectacular,” he reiterates. “I’m 101 and I feel fine. Age doesn’t really mean anything if you suffer all your life. You have to be lucky and I think good genes have something to do with it. I really can’t complain!”

almighty! We used to go to the Nova Scotian Hotel – we’d go there once in a while to get a good meal, and there it was 50 cents. No one believes that.”

After graduation, Dr. Greenberg returned home to New York. He lived and practiced in his native Brooklyn while wife Ida stayed at home to look after daughters Susan and Clare. “It worked out very nicely,” he says. “It was a medical building, parking was easy and things were good. I retired in 1982, that’s when we came down to Florida. One of the reasons was the climate. In winter, it was very, very cold – but not as bad as Halifax!”

“I always wanted to go back to Halifax, but we never got the chance for some reason. Now that I’m alone, I don’t know if I’ll ever make it, but I’m hoping that maybe one day I can get back. Dalhousie was a wonderful time in my life. The people

Lovely leaving a legacy

Dr. Frank Lovely supports the future of Dal Dentistry with a bequest in his will

By Mark Campbell

For nearly six decades, Dr. Frank Lovely (DDS'59) has maintained a tight connection to Dalhousie University. He's been a student, Professor and the Head of the Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery program. He served on the 1818 Society, was Alumni Association President, and a member of the Development Committee of the Board of Governors when it merged with the Technical University of Nova Scotia (TUNS).

It's a connection that will endure for generations to come, thanks to a bequest in Dr. Lovely's will to the Faculty of Dentistry.

"Legacy planning is a time when gratitude for our educational opportunity and enhanced quality of life should come to the forefront," says Dr. Lovely. "Many things will have contributed to our successes – our church affiliations, families, communities and friends. Most important of all will be our education."

Dr. Lovely recalls with fondness the small classes and attention each student received at Dalhousie. "Everyone seemed to be motivated for you to get all you could out of your education." In fact, it was the Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry who encouraged him to study Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the University of Michigan so he could come back and start a graduate program at the University.

A firm believer that estate planning should be culmination of a lifetime of gifting, Dr. Lovely has made generous contributions to the University over the years through capital campaigns and the 1818 Society. With this bequest, he wants to inspire fellow alumni to make a gift of their own.

"Dalhousie and the foundation education I obtained there and built on provided me and my family with such an enriched and bountiful life. I would hope other alumni would draw the same conclusion I have and make a wish through their will to provide potential students the same opportunity we have richly enjoyed."

As for his bequest, he says "my hope is that it helps enhance the student experience, such as the buildings, clinics and educational programs they are exposed to."

Dean's Office News

Faculty of Dentistry welcomes new Development Officer

In June, Dalhousie University welcomed Victoria Colpitts as its new Development Officer for the health faculties. In her new role, Victoria will work closely with Dean Boran and the Faculty of Dentistry team on its strategic major gifts, fundraising and stewardship plans.

Victoria obtained a Bachelor of Commerce degree from Saint Mary's University, specializing in marketing. She was most recently an Account Development Representative for the Atlantic region with Hallmark Canada, and previously worked at the TESL Centre at Saint Mary's.

"I have heard great things about Dal's Faculty of Dentistry, and I look forward to building relationships with alumni, faculty, staff, students, donors and friends," she says. "On the heels of the very successful Centennial and Dental Hygiene 50-year celebrations, I am eager to learn how we can continue to serve our Faculty Family!"

Bruhm recognized as CCAE Rising Star

Also in June, the Canadian Council for the Advancement of Education (CCAЕ) presented its Rising Star Award to the Faculty of Dentistry's Alumni Officer Jon Bruhm. This is a distinction for professionals who have demonstrated achievements, accomplishments and commitment to the field of educational advancement early in their careers.

Jon has been with Dalhousie since July 2010 and has played a significant role in the Faculty's communications, student relations and social activities. He has organized more than 60 alumni events – including the Centennial in 2012 and the Dental Hygiene 50-year celebrations earlier this spring.

"His knowledge, skills and enthusiasm made an immediate and dramatically positive impact," says Dr. John Christie (DDS'71), Chair of the Dentistry Alumni Committee and one of Jon's supporting nominators. "From day one he was a major driving force in all aspects of our alumni activities."

"It really makes a difference when you love what you do, where you work, and the people you work with," says Bruhm.

"I am so proud to be a part of the Faculty Family at Dalhousie Dentistry. Most people don't know this, but I first met the Dean, Dr. Boran, at a CCAE conference in January 2010. He delivered the most inspiring presentation on being a university administrator who understands and values the importance of alumni relations – a rarity in this business. When I saw this job posted shortly thereafter, I knew it was the place for me. Three years later, I still feel exactly the same way!"

Clinical Tip: Better beginnings for children

By Dr. Joanne Clovis

What's our best bet for giving children a better beginning in oral health? Those of us in specialty practices who don't normally see children, and others who may avoid some of the youngest children because they're not easily managed, can still make a positive difference because we're all in professional and personal situations where information is shared.

With Early Childhood Caries (ECC) and severe forms of it (S-ECC) on the rise, all oral health organizations recommend that infants be assessed by an oral health professional by age one for early intervention. These organizations also support community-based approaches to prevent and control the devastating effects of ECC. Despite the rising tide of ECC, the good news is that we now also have a growing body of readily available evidence-based resources to guide us.

So when and how do we start? Prenatal is critical; we can intervene on an individual level or assist in community programs. A comprehensive new training and resource site with free videos, chart forms, tables and guidelines is available at www.prenataloralhealth.org. Relevant literature, appropriate prenatal treatment, and oral health messages for expectant women and infant oral care are provided.

Early assessment of infant and child oral health status establishes the need for professional treatment and appropriate homecare regimen. The Canadian Dental Association and the Canadian Academy of Pediatric Dentistry recommend caries risk assessment that takes into account family social and cultural circumstances. A very useful downloadable tool for caries risk assessment for children aged 0 to 6 years is available at www.bit.ly/10D6gkL.

Anticipatory guidance is the oral health education that we provide based on our assessment of caries risk, family history and present circumstances. This role appears to be more complex in our increasingly multicultural and multilingual Canadian society. One size does not fit all! The growing field of health literacy is showing us the gaps in our communication even when we believe we are understood. Professional association websites and Health Canada offer current advice for children – an excellent guide is available at www.bit.ly/11QPcSa.

We must continue to rely on the preventive regimen that are time-tested and proven – fluorides and sealants. In the case of young children, fluoride varnishes at six month intervals or more frequently (depending on caries risk) are recommended, and sealants for newly erupted molars. Clinical recommendations can be found at the ADA Centre for Evidence-Based Dentistry (www.bit.ly/199y2c5). Note the difference between Canadian and American recommendations for fluoride supplements; in Canada the recommendation is not to use fluoride tablets or drop supplements unless they have been specifically recommended by a dental professional following an intensive needs assessment.

And remember: for every one dollar invested in adding fluoride to drinking water, $38 is saved in dental care. That's a return on investment of 3,700 per cent!

Dr. Joanne Clovis is a Professor in the School of Dental Hygiene. She served as Director of the program from 1990-1994.
