

Session: Network Development

Description:

While we all recognize networking is an important skill that will contribute to the success of our individual careers, Dalhousie University, our region and our province, we often don't take time to develop this critical skill. In fact, many of us feel too busy to invest effort into consciously expanding our networks. Take advantage of this opportunity to develop your networking skills and apply what you learn immediately by participating in a networking activity. Bring a supply of business cards, and prepare to make meaningful connections with other Dalhousie managers and professionals.
