

Respect Award Siobhan Smith

Campus Planning

Siobhan oversaw a complex audit of the university to help create its first Accessibility Plan. This will help those not just with visible disabilities but also those who struggle with invisible disabilities linked to mental health and neurodivergence. Her colleagues have been thoroughly impressed by her leadership, including her organizational skills, and her ability to truly listen and respond to others. Her understanding of accessibility is broad and complex, and they look forward to what the team envisions for a more accessible Dalhousie under Siobhan's leadership within the built environment.
