Out of the Box Thinking

Mike McClair's journey from Universal Service Person to Apprentice Instrumentation Technician highlights both his strong work ethic and natural problem-solving abilities. When a difficult pipe repair stumped the team because the damage was inaccessible from below, Mike devised an innovative solution: remove the top of the header, repair it from the inside, and weld it back together. His creativity, determination, and willingness to tackle challenges make him a tremendous asset to the team as he progresses toward becoming a journeyperson.

Anonymous