

SECURITY'S PROFESSIONALISM APPRECIATED

Dalhousie Security officers Kelsea Schofield and Anthony Doolittle were praised in April for the way they handled an unfortunate parking incident. Kelsea and Anthony responded to a call at Sexton where they observed an individual jumping on the roofs of cars parked on Dal property. The individual gave all appearances of experiencing a drug overdose and was acting in an aggressive manner. Dal Security with HRP assistance were able to subdue the individual so he could be transported to the Hospital for follow up treatment.

Meantime a Dalhousie employee returned to his car at the end of the day to find his hood and windshield had been severely damaged. The employee called Security the next day to thank them for their cool heads and professionalism. He acknowledged that it was a very stressful situation and an unpleasant way to end the day, but appreciated their efforts in defusing the situation. Shift supervisor Ed MacNeil took the opportunity to express his gratitude as well.
