

TALKING RESPECT WITH MONICA MUNROE

“I don’t see divide I see in other parts of the city here on campus. I come from a biracial background, so I don’t see colour, I see people. We need to accept everyone from the heart”, is what Monica Monroe describes Dal community for Respect Week. Monica is our custodian on Studley Campus for over 12 years. She said working here gave her opportunities to get involved and to see big pictures. She’s so proud to work at Dalhousie because people have so much respect for each other. She even tells us that how some people call Dal, Canada’s Harvard.
