

The Racial Justice Symposium was an exciting conference to build racialized and indigenous leadership, organizing skills, and consciousness on campus. There was a full day of workshops, panels, and other activities to promote and work towards racial justice on campus and in our community. MA History student, Mercedes Peters, was one of the speakers and panelist.