

Dan Boudreau
Recipient of the Dr. Ron Stewart Award in 2006

Originally from Arichat, Cape Breton, Dan Boudreau has been an active participant in Dalhousie's International Health Education Program in both Tanzania and South Africa. As a medical student, Dan has also focused his efforts to raise financial resources to help support the global health and community development work of individuals and groups.

In the nomination letter for this award, a fellow student writes: "What makes Dan's work so special and so important is that he truly does what he does for the benefit of others; his work is often done "behind the scenes"... He leads by example and has no expectation of recognition or reward. So many of us begin medical school with the hope of someday making a difference in our communities and in the world around us; Dan is a true example of how to begin today."
