Part Two: Narrative Report

This section is your opportunity to write about your experience more thoroughly. It is an opportunity to reflect on your professional and personal learning and development; the highlights, the lowlights, shifting expectations, and unique insights. It will be an invaluable piece of information for students preparing for an elective, for sponsors who are interested in funding such experiences further, and for the Global Health Office as part of our knowledge base on global health education. The narrative report should be 3-5 pages and include the following information:

1. Your Name, Program, Year of Study, Country, and Title of Elective on the cover page.
2. Reflections on your professional learning objectives.
3. What clinical skills and knowledge did you gain during your elective?
4. Reflections on your personal learning objectives.
5. What opportunities and what challenges did you encounter during your elective?
