6-8 PM

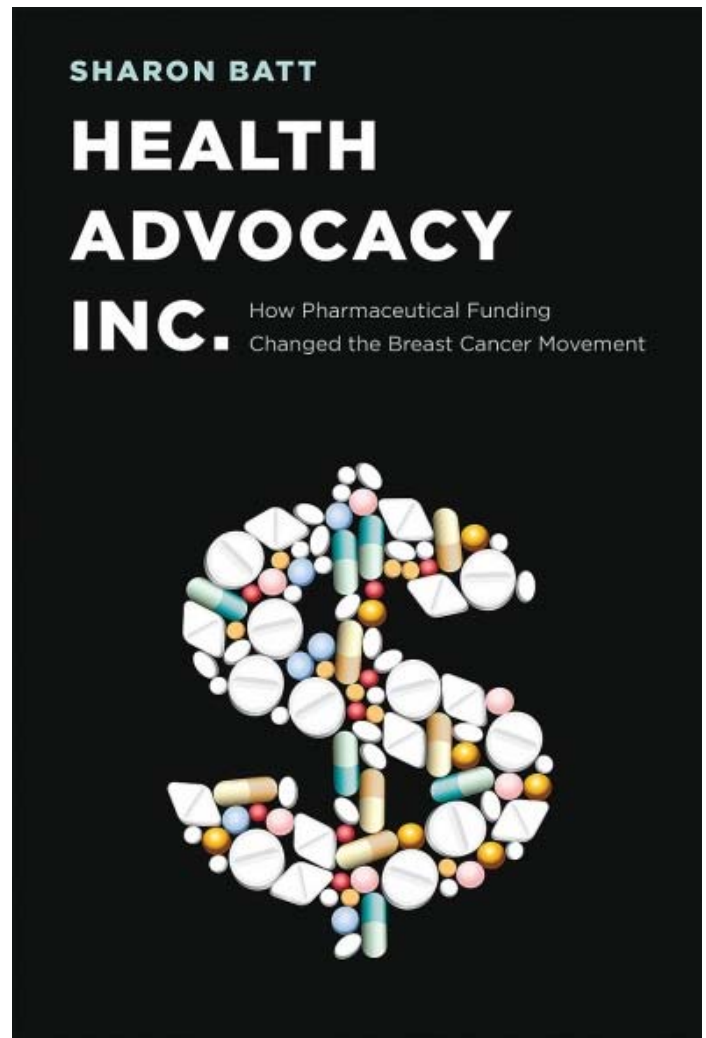

Room 301

Halifax Public Library

5440 Spring Garden Road

Everyone is welcome.

The Department of Bioethics at Dalhousie invites you to join the author for a reading, discussion, book signing, and light refreshments.

In Health Advocacy Inc., Sharon Batt examines how pharmaceutical industry funding has come to shape the activities of breast cancer patients' advocacy groups. What processes and debates happened within the groups? What are the implications for health policy? What options do patient groups have—or should they have?

Dr. Batt is a Halifax researcher, a former Nancy's Chair, co-founder of a Montreal-based patient group, and a Lillian Robinson Visiting Scholar.
