

Alex Graham Memorial Prize

The Alex Graham Memorial Prize was established in 2003 in memory of Alex Graham who was tragically killed in a rafting accident in New Zealand, where she was studying for her Masters degree in Marine Biology. While studying for her B.Sc. in Marine Biology at Dalhousie, Alex had been very active in student affairs, especially in the Dalhousie Association of Marine Biology Students (DAMS).

To perpetuate Alex's memory, the Biology department, DAMS and Alex's family, established an annual prize to be given to a student in the Marine Biology degree Programme who has:

1. shown outstanding participation, dedication, and contribution to the Marine Biology Programme and to the Dalhousie Association of Marine Biology Students (DAMS)
2. demonstrated satisfactory academic performance
3. declared their major as Marine Biology.

The selection will be made by the Biology Undergraduate Awards Committee and a non-voting member of the executive of DAMS who has not applied for the prize. The prize will be presented at the AGM of DAMS in March.

Submit completed application to Dr. Margaret Cooper (mhcooper@dal.ca) by 16 February 2024. See additional details below.
