Master of Journalism

The Master of Journalism offered jointly by Dalhousie and the University of King’s College prepares leaders for the rapidly evolving news industry. The professional degree focuses on new methods of journalism research, multimedia and multiplatform story forms and emerging business models. The degree has two streams: Investigative Reporting and New Ventures in Journalism. Core courses built around the craft and economics in digital journalism see students in both streams produce a professional project by the end of the year. The New Ventures stream can also be taken as part of a combined Master of Journalism/Juris Doctor degree.
Why study Journalism at Dalhousie & King's?

AREAS OF STUDY

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS
Applicants must satisfy the general requirements for admission to the Faculty of Graduate Studies. An undergraduate degree in journalism or equivalent with an average grade of B or higher.

LENGTH OF PROGRAM
The typical time to complete this program is 1 year

APPLICATION DEADLINE
December 31 – International applicants
February 15 – Canadian and USA applicants

POTENTIAL CAREERS
- Journalist
- Administration
- Communications
- Business

CONTACT INFORMATION
902.422.1271 Ext. 263
zaa.nkweta@ukings.ca

www.ukings.ca/journalism