Course Description

This class will help you achieve two primary objectives: understanding how the common law process developed through judicial decisions, and knowing how the doctrines and precepts of the law governing contracts are created and upheld. To achieve the first objective, the “case method” of teaching is used to enable you to acquire a lawyer-like understanding of various legal concepts. We will undertake a critical evaluation of judicial lawmaking by examining legislative intervention in the field of contract law.

To fulfill the second objective, we will examine the substantive rules of contract law. We will examine specific questions such as: How is a contract formed? What is an offer? How can it be accepted? Are all promises legally enforceable? Should parties to a contract be allowed to avoid certain obligations? What factors may affect the validity of a contract? What happens when a party makes a mistake about the nature or quality of what they buy or sell? What happens when one person takes advantage of another in order to conclude an agreement? What about “fine print” in a contract? How exactly can one terminate a contract? And what remedies are available for breaches? These and other questions are at the heart of the law of contracts – a complex body of rules and principles developed over centuries of adjudication, interpretation, and codification.

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, students should:

- Possess a critical understanding of the judicial decision-making process;
- Be familiar with the general principles of the law of contracts, especially principles related to the formation, performance and validity of contracts;
- Have the ability to apply contracts principles to problems;
- Have a background understanding of the law of contracts that prepares them for advanced commercial law courses.
- Have an awareness that contract law operates in a larger social, economic and political context.

Email Communication & Office Hours

Email is not an alternative to meeting with the course professor before or after class or during office hours. Please include in the "subject line" for any email, the course name and a brief statement of purpose (ie, Contracts: Review Class). Inquiries of interest to all students will be addressed in the next class. All other email inquiries will be answered by email on the date for the next scheduled office hour (e.g., If an email is received on Wednesday afternoon, it will be addressed either in class or by email on the following Monday in the Fall Term). Please note that exceptions to these rules will be allowed in exceptional circumstances.

Law School Policies:

1. Student Requests for Accommodation

Requests for special accommodation for reasons such as illness, injury or family emergency will require an application to the Law School Studies Committee. Such requests (for example, for assignment extensions) must be made to Associate Dean, Academic Michael Deturbide or the Director of Student Services and Engagement Dana-Lyn Mackenzie as soon as possible, before a scheduled exam or a deadline for an assignment, and will generally require documentation. Retroactive accommodation will not be provided. Please note that individual professors cannot entertain accommodation requests.

Students may request accommodation for either classroom participation or the writing of tests and exams due to barriers related to disability, religious obligation, or any characteristic under the Nova Scotia Human Rights Act. Students who require such accommodation must make their request to the Advising and Access Services Center (AASC) at the outset of the regular academic year. Please visit www.dal.ca/access for more information and to obtain the Request for Accommodation – Form A. Students may also contact the Advising and Access Services Centre directly at (902) 494-2836.

2. Plagiarism

All students must read the University policies on plagiarism and academic honesty <http://academicintegrity.dal.ca/> and the Law School policy on plagiarism <http://www.dal.ca/faculty/law/current-students/jd-students/academic-regulations.html>. Any paper or assignment submitted by a student at the Schulich School of Law may be checked for originality to confirm that the student has not plagiarized from other sources. Plagiarism is considered a serious academic offence which may lead to loss of credit, suspension or expulsion from the law school, or even revocation of a degree. It is essential that there be correct attribution of authorities from which facts and opinions have been derived. Prior to submitting any paper or other assignment, students should read and familiarize themselves with the policies referred to above and should consult with the instructor if they have any questions. Ignorance of the policies on plagiarism will not excuse any violation of those policies.
