Federation of Law Societies of Canada Model Code of Professional Conduct (<https://flsc.ca/interactivecode/>) (online).

Course Overview

This course is structured in two parts. After an introductory session, in our first six classes (Part 1) we will focus on recognizing and resolving lawyers' ethical dilemmas. We will explore the structure of ethical decision-making, and discuss the implications of research from behavioural psychology about how ethical decisions are made, followed by in-depth study of key topics on the lawyer-client relationship, competence, confidentiality and conflicts. In the final four classes (Part 2), we will step back to examine the nature of lawyers self-regulation in Canada, the challenges facing this regulatory model—especially the problem of access to justice—and future directions for the regulation of lawyers.

Evaluation

You will be evaluated in this course based on a two-hour, open-book written examination scheduled for Wednesday, December 12 at 9:30AM.

All examinations will be written on computer. Further information will be sent to students from the Associate Dean's Office. Rules governing exams are included in the Academic Calendar.

Requests for Accommodation

Student requests for special accommodation for reasons such as illness, injury or personal circumstances will require an application to the Law School Studies Committee. Such requests must be made to the Associate Dean's Office as soon as possible, before a scheduled exam or a deadline for an assignment. Retroactive accommodation will not be provided. Please note that individual professors cannot entertain accommodation requests.

Students may request accommodation as a result of barriers related to disability, religious obligation, or any characteristic under the Nova Scotia Human Rights Act. Students who require academic accommodation for either classroom participation or the writing of tests and exams should make their request to the Advising and Access Services Center (AASC) prior to or at the outset of the regular academic year. Please visit www.dal.ca/access for more information and to obtain the Request for Accommodation (Form A). Students may also contact the Advising and Access Services Centre directly at 494-2836, or they may contact the Associate Dean for more information.

Plagiarism

All students in this course must read the University policies on plagiarism and academic honesty referenced in the Policies and Student Resources sections of the <http://academicintegrity.dal.ca/> website, and the Law School policy on plagiarism, available online at <http://www.dal.ca/faculty/law/current-students/jd-students/academic-regulations.html>. Any paper or assignment submitted by a student at the Schulich School of Law may be checked for originality to confirm that the student has not plagiarized from other sources. Plagiarism is considered a serious academic offence which may lead to loss of credit, suspension or expulsion from the law school, or even revocation of a degree. It is essential that there be correct attribution of authorities from which facts and opinions have been derived. Prior to submitting any paper or other assignment, students should read and familiarize themselves with the policies referred to above and should consult with the instructor if they have any questions. Ignorance of the policies on plagiarism will not excuse any violation of those policies.
