Interesting honours topic to supervise:

I am open to supervising a range of topics so long as they are original, creative, and related to one of my broad research interests.

Previously supervised topics:

Some examples of recently supervised theses include:

- An examination of Twitter-based incivility and whether women and other marginalized Members of Parliament as disproportionately targeted.
- An exploration into the relationship between populist ideals and voting preferences among Canadian voters.
- An examination of gender and party leadership in Canada – specifically exploring whether parties led by women are punished during elections.
- An examination of media coverage of anti-trans legislation in four provinces – specifically considering the volume and tone of coverage.
