

Centre for the Study of Security and Development (CSSD)

Adrift Abroad? Canada in a post- Trudeau, pre-Trump world

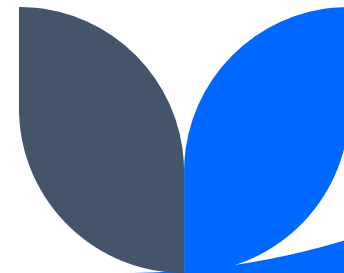

Meet Our Speakers

Meet Our Speakers

Brian Bow

Brian Bow is a Professor in the Political Science Department at Dalhousie. He's written quite a bit about Canada-US relations and Canadian foreign policy, and his current research is on industrial policy in Canada and the US.

Leigh Spanner

Leigh Spanner is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at Saint Mary's University. Dr. Spanner's research provides feminist-informed perspectives on policies of national security, military, and veteran life in Canada.

Maya Eichler

Maya Eichler is an associate professor of Political and Canadian Studies and Women's Studies at Mount Saint Vincent University. She is the director of the Centre for Social Innovation and Community Engagement in Military Affairs and a co-director of the DND-funded Collaborative Network Transforming Military Cultures.

John Cameron

John Cameron is a professor at the Department of International Development Studies at Dalhousie. His current research focuses on civil society engagement in public policy making in Canada.

