Course description

The objective of the course is to introduce students to the institutions and political actors in Canadian Parliamentary democracy. In doing so we will contemplate these questions and many more:
• Who has power in the House of Commons?
• Who should have power in the House of Commons?
• Does the Prime Minister really make most of the decisions?
• Why did the Parliamentary Budget Officer sue the federal government?
• Why a bill is not a law until the Queen’s representative gives it Royal Assent?
• Should tens of millions of taxpayers’ dollars be spent to advertise government decisions?
• Should Canada abolish the Senate? Should Canadians elect Senators? Who should decide?
• Should judges have the power to strike down legislation passed by democratically elected MPs?

The course spends considerable time covering the major debates and contestation present in contemporary Canadian politics. Our discussions will focus on both the theoretical understandings and the practical issues that confront and challenge our system of governance.

Student Learning Outcomes

At the end of the course students should be able to:
• articulate the dominating theories influencing the practice and decision-making of parliamentary government in Canada
• identify and describe the institutions that are important in parliamentary systems and their functions within the Canadian context
• identify and describe the various influences and actors present in the practice and decision-making of parliamentary government in Canada
• make independent and informed determinations on the dominating theories, institutional roles and practices of Canadian parliamentary government
• identify and describe the relationships between elected officials and the public, the media, the public service and organized interests.
Rationale for Course

POLI 2220 is a core course for students majoring in the Canadian stream of Political Science.

Course Prerequisites

A 1000-level course in Political Science or Kings FYP is recommended.

Required reading

There is no required text for the course. However, the course does rely heavily on a few sources that are available locally and online at a reasonable cost.

Course evaluation

In-class group discussions: 25 per cent (5 at 5 points each)
Group presentation: 25 per cent
Group formal paper: 25 per cent
Take home exam: 25 per cent

Grades will be determined as per the Dalhousie University Grade Scale and Definitions found on page 84 of the 2016/17 Dalhousie University Undergraduate Calendar.

Assignments

- In-Class Group Discussions

The course has considerable group work. During five classes you will organize yourselves into predetermined groups where you will discuss a question provided. To guide your discussions and evaluate your work a template will be provided. The group is expected to answer the questions and submit its work at the end of class. Each group will have a spokesperson who will articulate the group’s response during the last 30-40 minutes of each class. Attendance and active participation are expected and will be noted—by me and your group members. A high degree of student collaboration is required for group discussions.

Assessments are determined via peer evaluations, self-evaluations and instructor evaluations. Peer and self-evaluations will compose 25% of the total points allocated for this assignment. Instructor evaluation will compose 75% of the points allocated for this assignment.

Failure to attend a group discussion will result in a mark of 0/5 for each missed discussion.

- Group Formal Paper

A formal paper must be submitted the same day that the group presents its work. Topics must be approved in advance and must address a theme discussed during the course. Groups will be determined based on student interest in the various themes presented throughout the course. Papers should be approximately 14 double-spaced pages in length, excluding graphics. A high degree of student collaboration is required for the group paper.

Assessments are determined via peer evaluations, self-evaluations and instructor evaluations. Individual group members will be responsible for pre-determined sections of the research and the writing of the final paper. Group members will be evaluated on their individual performance (75%) and collectively (25%) for the overall final product. Peer and self-evaluations will compose 25% of the total points allocated for this assignment. Instructor evaluation will compose 75% of the total points allocated for this assignment. Plagiarism detection software might be used by the instructor when evaluating formal papers.

Late papers will be penalized at a rate of 10% per day, including weekends.

- Group Presentation

  The last two classes will be dedicated to group presentations. The purpose of the presentations is to highlight the major findings outlined in the formal paper. A high degree of student collaboration is required for a successful group presentation.

  Assessments are determined via peer evaluations, self-evaluations and instructor evaluations. Peer and self-evaluations will compose 25% of the total points allocated for this assignment. Instructor evaluation will compose 75% of the points allocated for this assignment. Plagiarism detection software might be used by the instructor when evaluating group presentations.

  Failure to attend the group presentation will result in a mark of 0/25 for the assignment.

- Take Home Exam

  On dates agreed to via class consensus, students will complete a take home exam. The exam will be delivered electronically by the instructor to students and will outline detailed instructions for its completion. Students will have 48 hours to complete the exam and return it electronically to the instructor.

  Late take home exams will be penalized at a rate of 10% per day, including weekends.

Technology in the Classroom

It is acknowledged by the instructor that students use various forms of technology to aid in their learning and academic success. Therefore, technology is tolerated during class time; however there is an expectation that students’ use of technology will be used exclusively for this purpose.

Recorded Lectures

Lectures are to be recorded only with the advance permission of the instructor. If permission is given, recorded lectures are to be used for the sole purpose of aiding in student success.
University Policies, Statements, Guidelines and Resources for Support

This course is governed by the academic rules and regulations set forth in the University Calendar and the Senate.

- University Statements

  Academic Integrity
  At Dalhousie University, we are guided in all of our work by the values of academic integrity: honesty, trust, fairness, responsibility and respect (The Center for Academic Integrity, Duke University, 1999). As a student, you are required to demonstrate these values in all of the work you do. The University provides policies and procedures that every member of the university community is required to follow to ensure academic integrity. Click here to read more.

  Accessibility
  The Advising and Access Services Centre is Dalhousie's centre of expertise for student accessibility and accommodation. The advising team works with students who request accommodation as a result of: a disability, religious obligation, or any barrier related to any other characteristic protected under Human Rights legislation (NS, NB, PEI, NFLD). Click here to read more.

  Student Code of Conduct
  Everyone at Dalhousie is expected to treat others with dignity and respect. The Code of Student Conduct allows Dalhousie to take disciplinary action if students don’t follow this community expectation. When appropriate, violations of the code can be resolved in a reasonable and informal manner—perhaps through a restorative justice process. If an informal resolution can’t be reached, or would be inappropriate, procedures exist for formal dispute resolution. Click here to read more.

  Diversity and Inclusion – Culture of Respect
  Every person at Dalhousie has a right to be respected and safe. We believe inclusiveness is fundamental to education. We stand for equality. Dalhousie is strengthened in our diversity. We are a respectful and inclusive community. We are committed to being a place where everyone feels welcome and supported, which is why our Strategic Direction prioritizes fostering a culture of diversity and inclusiveness (Strategic Priority 5.2).   Recognition of Mi'kmaq Territory
  Dalhousie University would like to acknowledge that the University is on Traditional Mi'kmaq Territory. The Elders in Residence program provides students with access to First Nations elders for guidance, counsel and support. Visit the office in the McCain Building (room 3037) or contact the programs at elders@dal.ca or 902-494-6803 (leave a message).
